Justice Black Seriously Ill After Stroke

34-Year Veteran Of Supreme Court Retired Last Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hugo L. Black's condition weakened Thursday and he was placed on the "very serious" list at the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

An official statement said the prognosis for the 85-year-old former Supreme Court justice was poor.

Black entered Bethesda Aug. 28 with what his office described on Sept. 15 as "an inflammatory condition of the blood vessels." He retired from the court Sept. 17.

The new hospital statement said Black's condition worsened Sunday when he suffered a fairly severe stroke. "He has gotten progressively weaker until he was placed on the hospital very serious list at 10 a.m. today," the statement added.

Black's retirement came with another justice, John M. Harlan, 72, also in a Washington hospital with a back ailment.

President Nixon is expected to announce a nominee to the court to fill Black's spot before it convenes Oct. 4 but Nixon has declined to say who is being considered for the job.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said today he hopes a Southerner will be appointed and that this will not touch off a sectional battle.

Consult Scott

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., a Judiciary Committee member, suggested Nixon would be well advised to consult with GOP Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania before submitting a nomination.

"I believe he is a man uniquely qualified to offer very sound advice to the President in the selection of a new justice, and I trust he will have the opportunity to do so," Mathias said.

Both Eastland's and Mathias' statements reflected the battles that led to Senate rejection of two Southerners Nixon nominated for the Supreme Court, Judges Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., of South Carolina and G. Harrold Carswell of Florida.

Eastland said Haynsworth and Carswell "were victims of a prejudice against the South—a slap at a certain region of the country."

Sectional Differences

"I hope the Senate—and the nation—recognize that the time has come to lay aside sectional differences and let a man stand on his merits when he is nominated for the highest judicial post in the land," Eastland said

After the defeat of Carswell's nomination in 1970, following the rejection of Haynsworth the previous year, Nixon accused the Senate of prejudice against Supreme Court nominees from the South.

He then nominated Judge Harry A. Blackmun of Minnesota, who was confirmed by a 94-0 vote. However, Eastland said Nixon had promised his next appointee would be from the South

"The South is entitled to one—if not two—members of the Supreme Court," Eastland said. If a Southerner is not chosen to succeed Black, he said, "a vast segment of the nation's population will have no voice whatsoever on the court."

U.S. Gains, Loses in Bid for Two Chinas

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States has met success and failure in the opening round of its campaign to prevent the expulsion of Nationalist China from the United Nations.

The victory came in getting its two-Chinas proposal recommended Wednesday for the General Assembly agenda, and rounding up a good number of cosponsors for its two resolutions, including Japan.

The first resolution, which calls for the seating of Peking and Taiwan in the General Assembly with Peking getting China's permanent Security Council seat. had 17 cosponsors The other, which calls for a two-thirds vote instead of a simple majority to pass any resolution to oust Taiwan, had 19.

The defeat was in the Steering Committee session, which recommended that both the U.S. proposal and a rival Albanian-sponsored resolution to seat the Communists and oust the Nationalists be placed on the agenda, but as separate items. The Albanian resolution had 18 cosponsors.

The committee voted down a U.S. motion that they be combined for debate by a 12-9 tally with 3 abstentions. This meant the assembly was being advised to debate the Albanian resolution before the American one. However, U N. precedent indicated both would be debated under the Albanian resolution's title.

The Albanian resolution was recommended for the agenda 17 to 2 with 4 abstentions.

The U.S. two-Chinas proposal was recommended 11 to 9 with 4 abstentions.

Taiwan's Foreign Ministry issued a statement after the vote criticizing the U.S. resolution and declaring the Nationalist government is "firmly opposed" to giving China's Security Council seat to Peking.

"Such a move to sacrifice a founding and faithful member is in flagrant violation of the charter of the United Nations," the statement said.

"The government of the Republic of China solemnly declares that it is firmly opposed to such an attempt."

Fire in Washington

5 Children Die

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five of the six children in one family died Wednesday night in a fire that gutted a two-story row house, police and fire officials report.

Grace Dabney, 26, the mother of the victims, and a son Keith, 9, were the only family members to escape.

The victims were identified by their mother as Terry, 10; Fonda, 8; Darryl, 7; Michael 5, and Charlene Dabney, 2

Keith survived when he obeyed his mother's instructions to jump from the second floor, she told a reporter at Freedmen's Hospital where she was being treated for shock.

The bodies of the victims were discovered on the second floor. Three were in a bathroom and two in a front bedroom.

"I kept telling them to jump," Mrs. Dabney said, "but they wouldn't jump."

A fire Department spokesman said that, pending further investigation, the fire is believed to have been started by a short circuit.

Mrs. Dabney said she was going outside the house from the basement when the flames shot upward

"My children called to me." she said. "The house was ablaze. I told them to jump."

A fireman and the owner of the house, who occupied the first floor, were injured, neither seriously.

Tax Plan Wins Crucial Victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tax portion of President Nixon's new economic program has won the crucial approval of the House Ways and Means Committee—but in sharply revised form that gives business less and individuals more short-range tax relief.

By rough preliminary estimates, the Democratic-controlled committee's decisions would mean about $4 9 billion less ... in tax breaks over a three-year span for business and about $3.4 billion more for individuals than Nixon recommended. In the long run, the business relief could increase somewhat.

There is at least a little income tax relief for all individuals in the package approved by the committee Wednesday and scheduled to be voted on by the House about Oct. 6 It would begin showing up in the returns due next April.

Much more relief proportionately would go to low-income taxpayers, those at poverty levels or close to them.

Investment Credit

For business, the package includes an investment credit allowing 7 per cent of the cost of equipment to be charged off against taxes and special help for exporters. But the committee would take back part of the gains for business by brimming the special depreciation advantages the Treasury already had put in effect without new legislation.

The 7 per cent excise tax on automobiles and 10 per cent excise tax on light trucks also would be repealed under the bill.

Major provisions affecting individuals:

—The personal exemption for this year would be increased from $650 to $675. Instead of increasing to $700 next year, it would go to $750.

Tax Benefits

—Increased tax benefits for low income persons would begin this year and by 1972 would help some 25 million return-filers, relieving an estimated 1.9 million completely of income tax.

—Next year, a single individual would have to have $2,050 income before owing any tax, a couple $2,800, a family of four $4,300

—The estimated poverty levels for these categories are $2,170. $2,810 and $4.290.

Most of the individual relief was added by the committee. Nixon had recommended only a speedup of the increase in the personal exemption. to $750 next year instead of a year later

Preliminary estimates were that the committee changes, as compared with the original Nixon program, would add $925 million in tax relief for 1971 through the increase in personal exemption and $443 million through the minimum deduction change Next year the additional minimum deduction was estimated to be worth $1 billion.

Industry Provisions

Major provisions affecting corporations:

—The investment credit would be restored in the 7 per cent form previously agreed on by the committee rather than a two-stage version Nixon asked.

However, the committee offset some of the gain to business, by deleting from the Treasury's new faster depreciation guidelines a provision for a special large first-year writeoff.

Nixon's proposal for tax aid to U.S. exports also was approved in sharply trimmed form.

The committee's repeal of the 10 per cent tax on trucks up to 7,500 pounds was described as a move in favor of farmers, small businessmen and individuals who use light trucks for personal transportation or to support camper bodies.

Although the Democratic-controlled committee carried out its announced intention of switching a substantial part of the Nixon-proposed tax relief from business to individuals, the result did not satisfy all its own members.

Rep. Charles A Vanik, D-Ohio, said the package is "harsh and cruel to the average taxpayer."

He calculated it would save only about $26 for a taxpayer with $9,000 income and three dependents.

My Lai Killings

Medina Found Innocent

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

FT McPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — Capt Ernest L Medina, acquitted of My Lai massacre charges, says he has no bitterness toward the Army but still plans to leave it.

The 35-year-old career officer who commanded a U.S company which swept through My Lai on March 16, 1968, was acquitted Wednesday of murder, involuntary manslaughter and assault after a court-martial jury of five Vietnam veterans deliberated an hour

All Charges

"It is my duty as president of this court to advise you that the court in closed session and upon secret ballot has found you not guilty of all specifications and charges," Proctor told Medina, who stood at attention

The trim, black-haired Medina appeared stunned by the verdict He saluted again and then looked toward his sobbing wife Barbara, who had sat on the front row each day since the trial began Aug 15

Extremelyl Happy

"I am extremely happy," Medina said later, his usually expressionless face broken by a wide grin "I have always had complete faith in the military and the military justice system I always felt I'd be found innocent"

Medina, who joined the National Guard when he was 15 and has been an officer for seven years, said he still plans to resign from the army.

Asked if he felt any bitterness toward the Army, he replied, "None whatsoever."

During the trial Medina testified in his own behalf and maintained that he was not aware of atrocities at the time of the massacre.

"Reflecting back now, I know I lost control because there were noncombatants killed by my company," he testified. "If I had been aware of it that day, I would have stopped it."

The jury also said it was convinced Medina was not aware of civilian deaths.

Col. Robert E. Nelson, one of the jurors, said the verdict does not signify that the jury believes no war crimes were committed at My Lai.

"I am certain war crimes were committed," he said. "In the case of Capt. Medina, the jury was convinced he did not commit war crimes."

Nelson was asked if the jury gave special consideration to the nature of the war in Vietnam.

"I don't see how we can distinguish war in Vietnam from

Charges by War Critic

Thieu Hired Rioters, McGovern Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen George S. McGovern charged today that the rioters who hurled firebombs and stones at him in Saigon last week included South Vietnamese civil defense forces hired by President Nguyen Van Thieu.

McGovern, South Dakota Democrat and bitter critic of the Vietnam war, made the charge at a news conference at which he reported on his 11-day trip to Paris, Saigon and Tokyo

Asked for evidence, he said members of the antigovernment group with which he was meeting identified some members of the crowd. He noted, too, that Saigon's police chief said the next day the civil defense force members "were serving patriotically in breaking up a meeting with Viet Cong cadres" something McGovern said was completely untrue.

Withdrawn From Race

He also reported that Gen. Duong Van Minh, one of the candidates who withdrew from the South Vietnamese presidential race charging Thieu had rigged it, told him "there was not the slightest doubt" the rioters were paid by the government in an effort to embarrass McGovern.

In Saigon, there was no comment immediately by Thieu's government. However, the day after the incident, Saigon's mayor said the demonstrators were mostly members of the People's Self Defense Force, a government - organized neighborhood militia Saigon's police chief claimed that Viet Cong agents were at the meeting McGovern attended.

McGovern, the only announced Democratic presidential candidate, said Thieu told him he would resign if Congress cuts U.S. economic or military aid because he knows he is "totally dependent" on American support.

McGovern also denied that in saying he would soft pedal the Vietnam issue that he had dropped it in favor of domestic economic issues. He contended "those issues are inseparable."

Army Afflicted

He said further that the U.S. Army in Vietnam is afflicted by "a mounting tide of boredom, disgust, antiwar sentiment, racism and drug addiction"

"As I walked among our troops. I saw more peace signs flashed than I experienced five days later on my trip to Hawaii, or for that matter at Berkeley or the University of Wisconsin.

"Indeed," McGovern said, "we could not find one single GI in all of South Vietnam who did not regard our presence there as anything other than disastrous."

He pledged that if elected president he would withdraw U.S. troops "with the same urgency that one would bring—and for the same reasons—to rescuing men trapped in a burning building."

Owners Must Pay

Post Office Clamps Down on Dog Bites

By HENRY GOTTLIEB
Associated Press Writer

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The U S Post Office is putting the bite on dog owners whose pets chew on letter carriers.

Since July 1, the Post Office has been authorized by law to bill dog owners the cost of treating postal employes bitten while on their rounds.

The Newark Post Office has five such cases pending, including one for $2,100 against a family whose dog tore a mailman's leg and put him out of work for six weeks

"I don't know what it is ' said Newark Postmaster Joseph Bennuci. "A dog sees a mailman and goes wild."

Every year in the United States, 20,000 mailmen are bitten by dogs the Post Office says. The problem is worst in suburban areas

Guard Dogs

Postal officials blame the increasing use of guard dogs for some of the troubles. Unfortunately, they say, the guard dogs are doing their thing to mailmen as well as to burglars.

Most mailmen nowadays are equipped with dog repellant that causes at least five seconds of eye irritation.

Local post offices are also authorized to stop delivery to families whose pets have attacked mailmen. The household is notified that unless the dog is leashed at mail delivery time, service to the home will stop.

"The trouble with that " said Jersey City Postal Supervisor Harry Brophy, "is that sometimes you even get bitten when you deliver the notice that services is stopping "

Bennuci adds "It's not only the pain of being bitten that hurts

Lost Pay

"It's a question of negligence There's not only the cost of medical treatment, tetanus shots and sometimes sutures but the loss in salary for the employe who gets bitten."

When a dog bites a letter carrier the owner is billed for the damages The owner is given 15 days to pay or notify his insurance company

If no action is taken the postal department's legal counsel files suit

"It's a funny thing " Bennuci said. I've got a dog at home too and every time he sees the mailman look out "

Express Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General Winton M Blount has opened overnight Express Mail Service between 33 large cities to general public use and put a money-back guarantee on delivery

Downtown post offices in the 33 cities have been designated as deposit and pickup points for the service, which went into effect Wednesday at the rate of $1 50 per letter or package weighing up to eight ounces For heavier parcels, the postal increases

Blount promised that mail deposited in one of the cities may be picked up at the designated downtown post office in the destination city by 10 a.m. the following morning, or the sender may claim a refund.

The package or letter must be left at the Post Office by 5 p m the day before

The special service previously available only to business firms on a contractual basis has made 97 per cent of its deliveries on time Blount said

The 33 cities covered are Atlanta, Baltimore, Birmingham, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland Dallas, Denver, Detroit, Hartford, Houston, Indianapolis, Jacksonville, Kansas City (Mo), Los Angeles, Louisville, Memphis, Miami, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Newark, New Orleans, New York, Oklahoma City, Omaha, Philadelphia, Phoenix, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, San Antonio, San Francisco, and Washington, D C

The Postal Service said expansion to additional cities is expected

Saving Kevin's life didn't mean losing the family's new home.

On the very day Kevin's parents* put money down on the first home of their own, trouble struck hard. The baby was choking with croup, fighting for every breath of life.

A race to Children's Hospital. A tracheotomy and then came 24 days of Intensive Care, including scores of X-ray and lab tests, two surgical procedures, constant medical and nursing care, continuous oxygen. Specialized skills, scrupulous care restored Kevin to his family, about a month after the emergency run to the hospital.

Hospital and doctor bills came to over $5,000. An amount that would have wiped out any chance of a new home. But the family moved in without a hitch because Kevin's dad worked for a company that protects their people with Blue Cross and Surgical Care Blue Shield coverage. It makes a critical difference, with "Service Benefits" that expand automatically to cover the cost of needed care. Kevin's bills were covered completely.

Significantly, a recent survey of 196 cases with charges above $5,000 shows Blue Cross paid $7,362 of the $7,722 average charge per total hospital stay. Today's care. Today's costs. That's what our job is all about.

Ah, yes. I remember it well.
I was but a mere lad when first introduced to that palace of gastronomy known as Henry's.
One taste of their food was like the dreams of a thousand peacocks.
Pretty good variety, too.
Fried chicken, shrimp, fish sandwiches, and that staple of American cuisine, the hamburger. Hamburger fresh from the fabled
beefsteak mines of Arconia.
All in all, a pretty good place.
But they could do with a little more spirited liquid refreshment.

Parachute Fails, Woman Is Killed

MARSHALL, Wis. (AP) — Mrs. Gary P. Venden, 25, Madison, member of a sky divers club, was killed Wednesday when her main chute failed to open over the airport near Marshall.

Jack Johnson, Madison area safety officer of the U.S. Parachute Association, said Mrs. Venden's main chute failed to open at about 3,000 feet and for an unknown reason her reserve chute did not open.

Mrs. Venden's body was found in a cornfield adjacent to the airport.

Her husband, who was waiting at the airport for his jump, said his wife had completed about 80 successful jumps during the last year.

Federal Aviation Administration and parachute association officials were investigating.

Carrier Will Sail Despite Protest

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A peace group says more than 82 per cent of the 54,721 ballots cast in a street corner straw vote here favored keeping the Navy aircraft carrier Constellation at home. But the Navy says the vessel and its 5,000-man crew will sail for Southeast Asia Nov. 1 anyway.

The vote, held over a five-day period throughout the county with no guarantee that a person did not vote more than once, showed 45,060 ballots opposing the Constellation's departure and 9,661 favoring it, organizers said Wednesday.

Hurricane Damages Costa Rican Bananas

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Hurricane Irene caused more than $1 million damage to Costa Rica's banana crop. The loss will seriously curtail exports to North American markets, a spokesman for the industry said Wednesday. The storm passed along the nation's northern Atlantic coast Sunday and Monday.

Nixon May Bow to Kleindienst Opposition

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A backstairs struggle at the White House with possibly serious repercussions on the 1972 Presidential election has now broken out over the future status of Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, with the anti-Kleindienst faction now holding a clear edge.

Boiled down, the question is

Evans

whether President Nixon should risk a mean Senate confirmation fight and nominate Kleindienst as attorney general in January. Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and Mr. Nixon have now privately reached solid agreement that Mitchell will leave in early January to take active leadership of the Nixon re-election campaign.

That agreement between th President and Mitchell by itself represents a concession to political reality. There was serious talk several weeks ago that, to avoid the potentially messy question of Mitchell's successor at Justice, he would stay on as Attorney General until well into next spring, running the President's campaign from his hip pocket in his panelled office at the Justice Department.

Acting Boss

Under that arrangement, with Mitchell's departure long delayed, Kleindienst might have been given Mitchell's job with the title of "Acting" Attorney General, thus avoiding either a Senate confirmation battle or a humiliation to Kleindienst by the appointment of someone else. There is ample precedent for long tenures at Justice as "acting" boss, with Nicholas Katzenbach holding the modern record of almost six months.

But Mitchell rejected that untidy solution. With the New Hampshire primary only a little more than five months away, party politicians around the country have been clamoring for him to take command of the plush offices of the Nixon campaign headquarters one block from the White House (officially styled "The Committee for the Re-election of the President").

Accordingly, with Mitchell's departure from Justice now set for early January, the Kleindienst problem has suddenly moved off the back burner and powerful anti-Kleindienst lobbies are beginning to work on both Mitchell and the White House, led by the moderate National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

Blames Kleindienst

Thus, Clarence Mitchell, who runs the NAACP's Washington office and has close ties to liberal Republican Senators blames Kleindienst more than Mitchell or Mr. Nixon for the President's two Supreme Court fiascoes: the nominations of Clement Haynsworth and G. Harrold Carswell, both rejected by the Senate.

Perhaps more to the point, Clarence Mitchell and the NAACP claim that Kleindienst personally vetoed New Jersey Republican Sen. Clifford Case's campaign to win a seat on the Third Circuit Court of Appeals for Clarence C. Ferguson, former dean of the law school at Howard University. Ferguson would have replaced another Negro, retiring Judge William H. Hastie last spring.

Likewise, Kleindienst has run afoul of powerful newspaper and television executives, partly as a result of his actions during the bitter litigation over publication of the Pentagon papers.

Allies in Congress

Such implacable opponents of Kleindienst have allies in Congress for entirely non-ideological reasons, based on nothing more than Kleindienst's power to make or withhold recommendations of all federal judgeships. A stickler for form, Kleindienst has leaned heavily on the recommendations of local bar associations, only to find himself on the receiving end of outraged senators whose own judicial preferences have been overridden.

To this active opposition must be added presidential advisers who have no specific grievance against Kleindienst but who fear the political impact of an all-out confirmation fight on the eve of the President's re-election campaign. With one of the two or three highest jobs in the federal government about to open up, they want Mr. Nixon to milk the appointment for every political advantage he can find in it.

As of today, these advisers have a clear edge, and Mitchell, whose opinion may well be the controlling one, seems to be leaning that way too. That poses the strong possibility that Mr. Nixon will pass up Kleindienst in still another affront to his own right wing on the theory that the right has nowhere else to go.

Ducks Relocated Into Alligators

DANIA, Fla. (AP) — The Broward County Humane Society decided to relocate some ducks in a little-used pond behind its Griffin Road Shelter.

The shelter director, Lyle Benjamin, said about 40 ducks which had worn out their welcome in residential areas were released in the pond about two weeks ago.

Then Benjamin began to notice the number of ducks seemed to be dwindling.

He said he had not known there were alligators in the pond.

Life in Prison Nurtures New Militancy

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Politically aware and increasingly military, a new breed of prisoner is challenging the right of prison authorities to subject him to privation and brutality.

Although in a growing number of cases defiant prison inmates are finding an ally in the courts, more are turning to violence to gain redress of grievances, real and imagined.

A prison revolt at Attica, N.Y., and what officials call an escape attempt in San Quentin, Calif., have left 48 persons dead in the past month. In California prisons, officials report, the seven guards murdered so far this year outnumber the total for the entire period 1953-70.

"There is a new breed of prisoner," says a leading Senate expert on prisons, Republican Roman L. Hruska of Nebraska. "He is younger, more intelligent and more aggressive."

System Failing

At the root of prison unrest is a correction system that, in the judgment of federal authorities, is failing to rehabilitate criminals or protect the public.

Subhuman squalor in cells built 50 or more years ago, sadistic brutality at the hands of keepers or fellow convicts, inadequate rehabilitation facilities or none at all: these are the lot of prisoners across the country in a system that one federal law enforcement official has called "a national disgrace" and President Nixon himself has condemned as "a convincing case of failure."

Building on and adding to grievances among all convicts is a new factor; a growing conviction, particularly among blacks who make up a far greater proportion of inmate populations than they do of the total population, that imprisonment is political repression rather than punishment for a crime.

"There are still some blacks here who consider themselves criminals—but not many," wrote the late George Jackson in his book "Soledad Brother."

Dedicated Group

"Believe me, my friend, study and think, you will find no class or category more aware, more embittered, desperate or dedicates to the ultimate remedy—revolution. The most dedicated, the best of our kind—you'll find them in the Folsoms, San Quentins and Soledads."

Jackson, shot to death in the San Quentin incident, had spent 10 of his 28 years in prison for a $70 robbery.

Paradoxically, the rising militance comes at a time when national leaders, including President Nixon and Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, have signaled an unprecedented call for prison reform.

It also is a time when the courts are abandoning their traditional hands-off policy to declare substandard prison conditions unconstitutional, and to expand legal rights of prisoners.

To Ellis McDougal, Georgia's director of corrections and a past president of the American Correctional Association, prison revolts reflect conditions on the outside.

Surprise No One

"No one should be surprised," McDougal said. "What's true in society is true in its institutions. Any problems that develop in the streets wind up six months later in the prisons."

Many prison officials point to the changing characteristics of the nation's prison population.

With expansion of probation and parole, America's prison population has declined from a peak of 213,000 in 1960 to slightly less than 200,000.

The offenders still behind bars are likely to be those who have committed the most serious crimes: murder, rape, robbery and assault. In California, where the prison population has dropped from 28,000 to 21,000 in less than three years, about half the inmates were convicted of such offenses.

Stabilizing Influence

Ten years ago, said California prisons spokesman Philip D. Guthrie, such offenders made up only a third of the inmate population. Gone are the "two-bit burglar" and the "alcoholic check-writer" who, said Guthrie, exercised a stabilizing influence on other convicts.

Throughout the American criminal justice system, blacks are disproportionately represented in relation to their percentage of the total population.

FBI crime statistics for 1970 indicate blacks comprise 53.3 per cent of all persons arrested for the violent crimes of murder, rape, robbery and assault, and for 32.8 per cent of arrests for the property crimes of burglary, larceny and auto theft. Yet blacks comprise only 12 per cent of the total U.S. population.

The imbalance is even more evident in the prisons. In New York state prisons, for example, blacks comprise 70 per cent of the inmate population.

Lived in Ghetto

In a philosophical sense, at least, some prison administrators sympathize with black inmates' claims that they are "political prisoners."

"I can see a heli of a lot of truth to it," said Leighton W. Dudley, Maryland's deputy secretary for correctional services. Noting that many of the state's inmates grew up in Baltimore's black ghetto, he describes them as "victims of a rotten social system."

Whether or not prisoners are developing, as radical California lawyer Fay Stender contends, "a consciousness of themselves as a convicted class," the effects of a new militance are being felt in prisons around the country.

"It used to be that if an offender was recalcitrant, he was placed in disciplinary segregation and didn't get out until he played the game," Dudley said. "Now, instead of going along with the system, they're fighting it—and they're getting support from the inside and the outside."

On the inside, according to Heywood Burns, executive director of the National Conference of Black Lawyers, such groups as the Black Muslims and the Black Panthers are helping to create an "increased awareness on the part of the black prisoners of the nature and extent of their victimization."

Outside Organizations

Outside prison walls there are such organizations as Mrs. Stender's Prison Law Project in California, the Fortune Society in New York, the External Committee of the Afro-American Society of the Adult Correctional Institution in Rhode Island, and a score of others around the country.

Both the Fortune Society and the Rhode Island group are composed of ex-convicts who perform such tasks as maintaining family contact with prison inmates and smoothing their transition into society at the end of their terms.

California is also the home of the United Prisoners' Union, which seeks recognition by the state as a bargaining agent for inmates on such matters as wages and living conditions.

The state's response thus far has been to ban distribution to inmates of the organization's newspaper, the Anvil.

State Readies I-94 Stretch For Opening

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A 24-mile headache for Interstate 94 motorists between Milwaukee and Chicago is to become a six-lane pleasure in October.

Wisconsin's Transportation Department has said the new paving should be open after Oct. Oct. 1, replacing a four-lane di-1, replacing a four-lane divided highway through Racine County to near the Illinois line.

The I-94 segment carries an estimated 28,000 vehicles daily, making it the nation's sixth busiest section of rural interstate, the Division of Highways reports.

During addition of extra lanes in recent months, heavy trucks have been channeled to inside lanes to avoid weak shoulder lanes.

Speed limits have been curtailed, making a trip along the route less than enjoyable.

Improvements are being incorporated during the period of construction nuisance. Highway officials said plastic pavement markers are being used to reduce the number of periodic traffic interruptions for surface paint jobs.

Other safety features include better median dividers and breakaway roadside sign posts.

Governors Plan Exchange Visit to Russia, Romania

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says eight U.S. governors will visit the Soviet Union and Romania and comparable groups from the two nations will visit the United States to promote international understanding.

Visiting the two European nations next month are Govs. Warren E. Hearnes, D-Mo.; Marvin Mandel, D-Md.; Dale Bumpers, D-Ark.; William Milliken, R-Mich.; John Love, R-Colo.; David Hall, D-Okla.; Stanley Hathaway, R-Wyo.; and Luis Ferre of Puerto Rico.

The State Department said the Soviet and Romanian officials will visit the United States next year.

All-Electric Homes Called Source of Waste, Pollution

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An energy specialist has told a congressional committee that all-electric homes and buildings not only help pollute the environment, but also waste the nation's limited fuel supply.

Frederick Wall, executive director of the American Chemical Society, appeared Wednesday before the Joint Committee on Defense Production to testify on the nation's natural resources supply.

"All over the country, especially here in Washington, one sees 'all electric' buildings, the operations of which can have a serious impact on our fuel supplies," Wall said. "Not only is electric heating wasteful of fuel but . . . it contributes unnecessarily to thermal pollution which can upset the environment."

Inefficient Use

Wall said it takes two and one-half times as much fuel to produce heat from electricity as it does to produce it from gas steam plants, he said, only convert about 33 per cent on the average of the energy released by fossil fuels into electricity. The rest of the heat he said, is discharged into lakes and streams and causes thermal pollution.

"It is definitely more efficient to burn gas in a space heating furnace than to burn gas to generate steam to make electricity to heat the same building space," he said.

Wall said he was not suggesting the elimination of electric lights, minor heating appliances or electric motors, but wished to focus attention on electricity used to heat buildings

Harold B Scott, general counsel to the Office of Emergency Preparedness, told the committee the nation's power companies cannot meet strong pollution controls immediately and still provide enough energy or minerals to sustain the nation's standard of living.

"The economic cost to the minerals industry of maintaining and expanding production while giving full attention to environmental protection will, of course, affect our efforts to assure adequate supplies of minerals and energy," he said.

"In the case of emissions from currently operating mineral-processing operations, the impact will be huge if companies must attempt to meet very stringent standards quickly," Scott added

Mail-Carrying Guards to Get Medal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has ruled that National Guardsmen and reservists mobilized for last year's Great New York Mail Strike Crisis rate a medal

This means that more than 17,500 New Yorkers who spent up to a week on federal active military service helping the post office move the mails in March 1970 are entitled to wear the National Defense Service Medal.

The same medal established in 1954, is worn by regulars, including men who have fought in Vietnam.

The ruling was made by Army headquarters after an inquiry from New York National Guard officials

Guardsmen and reservists mustered into federal service for various foreign and domestic emergencies since then are eligible for the decoration. Included are the Berlin, Cuban and Pueblo crises and civil disturbance duty dating back to the use of federal troops to enforce school desegregation at Little Rock, Ark., in 1958.

For years, critics have accused the American military of a penchant for overly generous awards of decorations.

Topped by the Medal of Honor, there are about nine awards for heroism or wounds. Some military men have complained that certain decorations, notably the bronze star, have been cheapened by being granted for non-combat work as well as for outstanding battle performance.

There also are medals for good conduct, longevity and some 30 marking service in World War I, World War II, Korea, Vietnam and other campaigns or episodes.

In addition, there are several which are given for non-combat achievement alone.

One of these, the Legion of Merit, often is handed out when officers finish desk job tours at the Pentagon

Three years ago, Pentagon officials felt the Legion of Merit was being awarded too freely for not much more than workmen-like accomplishment They wanted its status restored.

What was their solution? Still another medal, a new Meritorious Service Medal, ranking below the Legion of Merit and recognizing distinction "in a duty of lesser though considerable responsibility."

Peace Candidate Campaign Kickoff Set for Weekend

By JOHN MARTZELL
Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — An estimated 8,000 young persons from more than 50 Wisconsin communities are expected to gather in Milwaukee this weekend to kick off a campaign aimed at electing antiwar candidates.

The two-day conference is being held by a group called Register for Peace. It is to open Friday night with speeches by former Rep Allard Lowenstein, D—N.Y., former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D—Minn, and Rep. Paul McCloskey, R—Calif.

Lowenstein led forces of the "Dump Johnson" movement in 1968. McCarthy was the first 1968 presidential candidate to challenge former President Johnson on the Vietnam was issue

McCloskey has challenged President Nixon on the war and other issues.

Significant Victory

"Register for Peace believes that a significant majority of Wisconsin's 565,000 new 1972 voters want out of Vietnam and a new direcion for America," the organization stated in a conference pamphlet

"Register for Peace believes that young people have a greater capacity to believe, a greater capacity to feel. Register for Peace believes, in other words, that young people can shake the electoral system to its roots, and bring to it the revitalization it so urgently needs."

The group has named coordinators in 50 communities, organizers said these communities are to send delegations to the conference.

Conference work shops will be aimed at providing instruction and materials necessary so delegates can return to their hometowns and college communities fully informed on the variety of voter registration techniques possible

Work Around State

Register for Peace said it will operate after the conference with assistance and guidance for voter registration projects around the state, publishing literature and preparing posters.

Some 50,000 Wisconsin residents are being sought to sign pledges supporting candidates committed to the immediate withdrawal of American troops from Southeast Asia and re-ordering of the nation's priorities.

"The peace directory will be a potent political weapon to convince candidates of the power of the peace vote in Wisconsin," Register for Peace spokesman Theodore Gill said.

"It will also be of help in local elections, where a peace candidate will have an instantaneous file of willing workers," he said.

Use Names

"When presidential candidates come to Wisconsin in February," Gill said, "Register for Peace is going to use 50,000 names in the same way other special interest groups have used massive numbers in the past—as a tool, a political technique, and if need be, as a threat."

The conference kickoff speeches are to take place Friday night at the Milwaukee Auditorium.

Events scheduled at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee include a speech by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., Saturday.

DA's Son Indicted On Draft Charges

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The 24-year-old son of San Mateo County Dist. Atty. Keith Sorenson has been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of refusing to report for induction.

The indictment returned Wednesday charges Thomas Keith Sorenson, a former senior at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, failed to appear for induction as ordered Nov. 12, 1970, at Oakland Induction Center. He resides with his family in suburban Redwood City.

James C. Browning Jr., who served as a prosecutor on the elder Sorenson's staff before being appointed U.S. attorney by President Nixon, signed the indictment.

Guard to Stress Community Service

HONOLULU (AP) — Maj. Gen L E Weber, new director of the Army National Guard, says community service at the grass roots level will be stressed in an effort to make the organization more appealing to youth and to help it solve recruiting problems.

The Guard also will try to recruit more blacks, he added

Weber said in an interview Tuesday that the Guard will emphasize work in federal Head Start and other programs as an incentive for signing up It also will organize community groups for tackling pollution and other related problems.

But Weber, here for a convention, said that recruiting of blacks is of prime importance

"This is probably the biggest single problem we face for the moment," said Weber, a veteran of World War II and Korea whose military career began as a Marine private in 1942 He was adjutant general for Oklahoma when selected for his new post

More Blacks

He hopes to get more blacks into the Guard by working with national black organizations

"If we can get blacks to accept the Guard on that level and if it trickles down from them to the local level, that should go a long way in solving the problem," Weber said

The Guard's long-range goal is to have the same percentage of black members in a unit as there are in the general population for a particular geographical area, he added Now, only a little over 1 per cent of the Guard is made up of black members, a Guard spokesman said

The general said that riot control would not get special stress in the future But he added "The National Guard has a multiple role, and civil disturbance is just one task that probably doesn't deserve any emphasis over others.

"We can't deny the importance of the civil disturbance role, but there are others, such as the Guard's role in disasters, that are of equal importance."

Better Equipment

He also noted that the Guard now has better equipment to cope with riots.

The general said the Guard at the local level has been issued riot batons and other weapons of "low-lethality" which fire wooden pellets. And the guard's M16 rifles have been modified so they cannot be fired in automatic or semi-automatic positions.

Weber said the Guard also will strive for uniformity in training. In October, he said, a 20-day training program will begin for all men entering the Guard upon leaving active Army duty.

A major task facing the Guard in the next several months will be adjusting to an increased importance placed on it as the United States decreases its military posture in many parts of the world, Weber said

The Guard has the latest equipment and it must adjust accordingly, he said "It's going to be a big challenge to adjust to this situation where our people ask for services and equipment and get it because the active Army has made it available," he said.

"For our pilots, this means a transition from old to new aircraft (helicopters), for our armored units, it means a move from the M48 tank family to the M60. And our artillerymen will have to adjust from old, towed artillery to the self-propelled type"

Youths Win Spot on School Board Ballot

SEATTLE, Wash (AP) — With divergent platforms, two 18-year-old Washington youths have swept onto general election ballots

William Lynch, is assured of a spot on the Bremerton, Wash., school board after defeating Board Chairman Eldon Matlock, 60, in Tuesday's primary election Lynch got 1,025 votes to 938 for Matlock in the nonpartisan race.

In Richfield, Wash., Walter Sobol trailed City Councilman Ron Johnson in another non partisan race, but earned the right to have his name on the November general election ballot Sobol, with 713 votes to Johnson's 2,107, were the top two finishers in a field of five candidates.

"This was a very significant election for two reasons that an 18-year-old could win and that voters were really ready for a change," Lynch said. He called for strengthening discipline policies within the school district and favored use of undercover narcotics agents in schools, if necessary.

When the Richland City Council approved construction of a freeway through the city's south end, Sobol entered the race, claiming the road would create noise, pollution and ruin natural resources.

City government, he said, "isn't responsive enough to the people. I think the councilmen act like 'we're the government and we know better.'"

Simple Burial Manual Offers Ways to Save

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — You may not be able to do much about the cost of living, but you may be able to cut hundreds — perhaps thousands — of dollars off the cost of dying with a newly revised 64-page booklet.

The publication, the fifth edition of "A Manual of Simple Burial," provides frank answers to almost every question that arises at the time of death. Its aim is to show "how to obtain simplicity, dignity and economy in funeral arrangements through advance planning."

It also offers information to help people donate parts of their body to medical research or to various "banks" such as eye banks in order to serve other people. Names and addresses of medical facilities and organ banks are given along with special conditions wherever they apply.

The theme of the booklet is "advance planning." By looking ahead to the inevitable, says author Ernest Morgan, you can assure dignity and simplicity at comparatively low costs. Failure to make advance plans can leave you at the mercy of costly customs while you are under great emotional stress.

Kind Words

Unlike best-selling books of a decade or so ago, this booklet has some kind words for the majority of funeral directors:

"It is important that we not judge funeral directors in general by the occasional shady operator who is to be found among them, and that we understand their problems and appreciate the service they perform."

Morgan believes that candid information and advance planning can benefit both the public and the funeral industry.

The basic problem, says Morgan, is the surplus of funeral directors. There are some 24,000 to handle enough business for only 2,000 working at maximum efficiency. With an average of only about one adult funeral a week, a funeral director is forced to charge considerable overhead in the price.

It is no wonder that a Congressional study a few years ago found that the average price of a funeral in this country exceeded $1,000. It may be even more now although many morticians have scaled down their fees.

The main thrust of the booklet is away from elaborate funerals and fancy caskets and toward simple memorial services after the body is either cremated or donated for charitable or scientific purposes.

A special section of the booklet lists more than 100 member organizations of the Continental Association of Funeral and Memorial Societies, with their addresses, phone numbers and principal services. Some two dozen other memorial societies also are listed.

In a series of questions and answers, Morgan explains what a memorial society is and what it tries to do:

"A memorial society is a voluntary group of people who have joined together to obtain dignity, simplicity and economy in funeral arrangements through advance planning." The booklet tells how to organize a society.

It explains further that they are usually formed by church, labor or civic groups and have a single membership fee without annual dues. The list shows that membership fees range from $10 to $20 and the costs of cremation and other services range from about $150 to $250.

For the name of the nearest funeral society, write to the Continental Association of Funeral and Memorial Societies, 59 E. Van Buren St., Chicago, Illinois, 60605.

For a copy of the booklet, send a dollar to The Celo Press, Box 79, Burnsville, N.C., 28714.

London Papers Close in Dispute

LONDON (AP) — Millons of Englishmen were without their daily newspapers today as publishers shut down the presses over a pay dispute. The only paper Londoners could buy was a Communist one.

The Newspaper Publishers Association — NPA — ordered Britain's eight national dailies and two local London evening papers closed until a dispute is settled with a printers union. The 10 papers have a combined circulation of about 16.5 million.

Trying to mediate the dispute, Vic Feather, general secretary of the Trades Union Congress, Britain's labor confederation, was meeting today with officials of the union involved, the National Graphical Association—NGA.

But Feather said he was "not too optimistic" about an early settlement.

Octopuses Saved By Oxygen Tank

BOSTON (AP) — "It's a matter of life and breath—my octopi need oxygen," said the frantic professor to the fireman.

So the fireman rushed across the street with an oxygen tank to a hotel and revived the babies.

The Brandeis University professor, Jerome Wodinsky, had been transporting the octopuses from the Bahamas to the New England Aquarium where he planned to use them in animal behavior experiments.

When he arrived at the hotel at 1 a.m. recently he realized that the octopuses in little plastic bags, were dying from lack of oxygen. So he ran across the street to a firehouse for a fireman and an oxygen tank.

CHICAGO (AP) — Make love, not babies.

This seems to be the attitude of the modern American male.

The number of men undergoing vasectomy—the male sterilization operation — has shown a "sensational increase" recently, says John R. Rague, executive director of the Association for Voluntary Sterilization in New York City. He estimated 750,000 American males had vasectomies in 1970.

That's up from an estimated 200,000 the year before.

And Rague predicted in an interview that the 1971 figure will be even greater than 1970's.

So far, an estimated three million men in the United States have had sterilization surgery—a simple procedure, done often in the doctor's office in a few minutes. The American male is not alone.

In India, where reduction in the birth rate is a major concern, an estimated 8.2 million men have been sterilized. In Great Britain some 20,000 men underwent vasectomies last year and it is estimated the figure will be double for 1971.

Clinic Proposedy

Rague said his association offered $30,000 in October 1969 to any New York hospital which would open a vasectomy clinic. There were no takers. The money went to the Margaret Sanger Research Bureau, which did open such a clinic.

Since then, Rague said, 154 vasectomy clinics have opened in 36 states. Among them are 82 hospitals which do vasectomies in their outpatient departments.

Rague, as well as medical authorities, attributes the recent upsurge in requests for male vasectomies to fears about possible adverse side effects from the contraceptive pills taken by women.

There is also, he said, "a finer understanding of human sexuality, especially among the young," so that males are willing to take responsibility for preventing pregnancy.

Puritanism Declining

And "the Puritanism which has been a strong influence in the development of the United States" has been declining in the past decade, especially among those under age 30, Rague said.

The Rev. Don C. Shaw, an Episcopal clergyman who is director of the Midwest Population Center in Chicago, said in an interview that some who seek vasectomies "are motivated by the population thing."

The Rev Mr. Shaw said recent changes in American attitudes "have made it easier for couples to admit they don't want children."

$150 Fee

The center in Chicago opened in March and since then has performed more than 1,400 vasectomies. An additional vasectomy service has since been opened in Chicago by the Planned Parenthood Association.

The usual fee at the center is $150, which is about standard around the country. At the center, that includes $25 for the initial interview. Shaw said this fee discourages applicants who are not genuinely interested.

There is a sliding fee scale, however, which makes it possible for any male—regardless of income—to have a vasectomy. The scale is based on income and number of children in the family.

While most of the vasectomies at the center have been performed on middle and upper-middle-class males, the number of applicants from other socioeconomic levels is increasing.

Dr. Lonnie Myers, the center's director of medical education, said she had done 14 vasectomies the morning of the interview. Among the men who had them, she said, were a fireman, a policeman, an electrician, a sheet metal worker and a man who earned more than $50,000 a year.

An obstacle to male sterilization has been the popular misconception that the operation makes the man less masculine, less able to perform sexually.

This is untrue.

In fact a survey by the Association for Voluntary Sterilization of 25,000 men who had had vasectomies found that 85 per cent of the men felt that their sexual performances was better, 13 per cent felt it was about the same, and 2 per cent felt that it had declined.

In the last group, Rague noted, the aging process could have been a factor. And he estimated that less than .5 per cent of the men who have vasectomies ask to have it reversed, a difficult but sometimes possible operation.

Shaw said a vasectomy removes the fear of pregnancy and the bother of precoital contraceptive preparation so that the experience becomes more enjoyable for the couple.

Simple Procedure

The male sterilization operation is much simpler and less expensive to perform than that for females, which requires hospitalization. Vasectomies are performed under local anesthetic, with little or no pain.

Vasectomy interrupts the flow of sperm into the ejaculatory system. The sperm, which are microscopic in size, continue to be manufactured, but they deteriorate and are absorbed with no danger to the body.

Scientists are working on means of reversing the vasectomy, but Shaw emphasized that, "basically the vasectomy should be regarded as permanent sterilization."

"We are anxious that men not think it's reversible," he said.

Elaborate Precautions

To make sure that the man and his wife fully understand the nature of vasectomy, sterilization centers and doctors take elaborate precautions.

At the Midwest Population Center, for example, there is an initial interview by Shaw with the man and, if he's married, his wife. Then there is an instruction period in which the whole procedure is explained. The surgery may follow within a few days, if the couple still want it.

A release form, stating that the man and wife understand and desire the operation, must be signed by both. And at the Chicago center, a letter written by the man also is required so there is double assurance of no misunderstanding.

Official of State Democratic Party Registers as Lobbyist

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Delbert Beno, executive secretary of the state Democratic party, has interpreted the Wisconsin law requiring the registration of lobbyists more literally than most politicians.

Beno has paid a $10 fee to the secretary of state and obtained a license as a registered lobbyist on behalf of the party which employs him.

His purpose, he declared in the registration application, is to promote the enactment of the proposals contained in the 1970 state platform of the party.

Beno formerly lived in New London.

Grant's Ordered To Limit Interest

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A judgment enjoining the W. T. Grant Co. from exceeding Wisconsin's usury law has been obtained in Dane County Circuit Court, Atty. Gen. Robert Warren announced Wednesday.

State usury law prohibits businesses from charging more than 12 per cent interest.

Warren said the company also was enjoined from computing monthly finance charges on the so-called "opening balance," method which does not deduct payments made by the customer during the month.

Hearing Scheduled on Mobile Phone Service

MADISON — The Wisconsin Public Service Commission will conduct a public hearing Oct. 8 on the request by Wisconsin Telephone Co. to file revised tariffs for mobile telephone service and to offer a new dial type mobile service.

The hearing will begin at 10 a.m. in room 404 of the Hill Farms Office Building, 4802 Sheboygan Ave., Madison.

Two "naturals" highlight the Fox Valley Association's second week of 1971 football action.

Friday night, Oshkosh — just ranked No. 1 in the state — invades Kimberly to meet the Papermakers, who were the pre-season choice to win the FVA title.

Saturday afternoon, defending champion Neenah will try to rebound from its only FVA defeat, and Kaukauna strives to avenge its lone FVA football loss ever as the long-time rivals clash on the Ghosts' Bayorgeon Field.

A third game with bearing on the potentially turbulent title race matches Appleton West and Menasha Saturday afternoon on the Terrors' Witte Field

Meets Case

Appleton East makes its second non-league start in three weeks with a Friday night visit to Racine Case.

Neenah Shattuck's Rockets, who won the FVA title with a perfect record last year, were nipped by AHS-W, 8-7, in last weekend's opening round for their first defeat in the 2-year-old league. The Rockets are aware that another loss might well permanently wreck their chances of repeating. In a 6-game schedule such as the FVA plays, two losses are almost tantamount to elimination.

The Ghosts, who were 5 1 in the league last year and won their 1971 opener, suffered their only FVA loss by a narrow margin. The 1970 Rockets scored a 12-6 win on a 3-yard touchdown run by Scott Rasmussen with 46 seconds left in the game. As it turned out that TD deprived runnerup Kaukauna of at least a share of the first FVA championship

The Ghosts have shown plenty of power to date, with a 2-touchdown non-league win over Beaver Dam and a 38-0 victory over Menasha Kaukauna has a strong defensive unit in addition to its dangerous offense, paced by quarterback Warren Hacker and running backs Dan Deering and Gary Kerkhoff

Neenah lost a close decision to non-conference Antigo before bowing to West's rally last Saturday. The Rocket attack is led by Glen Rodgers, who completed nine of 14 passes in his FVA debut as a starter Rodgers has dangerous receivers in Joe Meixl, Dene Storch and Paul Hollinbeck.

Shattuck's strong point defensively is its secondary, as it has a corps of experienced pass defenders.

Kimberly seeks to reverse last year's 16-6 loss to Oshkosh. The big Papermaker team prepped for its FVA schedule with non-loop dates against Stevens Point and Mosinee. Kimberly dispatched the former but lost to the latter, 27-13, last Saturday

Runs Wild

Oshkosh beat non-loop Madison East, as quarterback Jeff Hielsberg ran wild, then whipped AHS-E, with workhorse Jim Kurzynske rushing for 166 yards in 12 carries

Quarterback John Kotkosky and end Jim Rooyakkers, who combined for a TD aerial against the Indians last year, will be vital cogs in the Papermaker attack again Friday Kimberly ground power is keyed by Stan Swokowski and Tight-fisted Pennings will be out to fasten its hold on the Fox Valley Christian Conference lead Saturday when it ventures into the realm of the Lourdes Knights.

Certainly last week was a week of upsets. The FVCC set the pattern for the pros as St. John stunned Roncalli, Fond du Lac Springs tarnished the Knights' armor with a tie and Pennings' Squires defeated Premontre, which to many wasn't really an upset.

A close eye also will be cast at the Springs confrontation at Manitowoc Roncalli. The Ledgers weren't regarded too highly by many but gave Pennings a real battle before relenting 14-6 and then tied pre-season favorite Oshkosh, looking extremely tough in doing it.

Injuries Strike

Injuries, which always hurt but really take their toll when a top performer is taken out, have been striking Lourdes.

John Zahalka, the leading returning rusher from 1970 has been out of action with damaged ligaments in his knee. As a result, Oshkosh has had a marked curtailment in its rushing game.

And, that certainly will be no asset Saturday against the Squires, who lead the league in total defense. Penning's forte is closing off the other team's rushing attack So far the Squires have yielded a meager 34 yards on the ground.

The win over Premontre snapped a 2-season victory streak and also was the first time in the 15-year series the Squires had beaten the Cadets

Rick Lemerond picked the Squire pass defense apart pretty good but was capable of denting the goal line only one time, that coming on a 70-vard explosion involving Bob Bratkowski, son of Green Bay quarterback Zeke

Lourdes must get a standout effort from its entire contingent. Another big loss for the Knights is guard Pat Foy, while Jamie Zahalka had his bell rung last week.

Sweet Nectar

Bob Pliska-coached Xavier rolls its crunching ground attack into Marinette Saturday, while St John — still tasting the sweet nectar of victory over Roncalli — invades Menasha St. Mary.

Schumerth Steamroller In High Gear Again

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Warning to Wisconsin high school football teams: The "Schumerth Steamroller" is in high gear again.

The Oshkosh Indians, one of the dominant teams in the state during the 1960s, had injury problems a year ago and finished 6-2.

But after impressive victories over Madison East and Appleton East in their first two starts this year their 28th under Coach Harold Schumerth, the Indians were ranked No 1 in the state today in the first Associated Press weekly poll of the season.

Oshkosh totaled 60 points to 58 for runnerup Schofield (3-0), which had finished second to Green Bay Premontre in last year's final poll

Oshkosh had only one first-place vote to four for Schofield, but had more statewide support Much of Schofield's support stemmed from its 6-7 victory over powerful Antigo last weekend.

Parker Third

Janesville Parker, the state public high school basketball champion is unbeaten in two football starts and is ranked third with 51 points

Baraboo, ranked fourth a year ago has won its first three games this year, including a 21-7 showdown over South Central Conference rival

Giants Increase Lead

Pirates Capture Crown

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The corks popped, the champagne spilled and the superlatives flowed.

This was title-clinching time for Pittsburgh Pirates.

"On to the World Series," crooned big Willie Stargell, leading the celebration after the Pirates nailed down the National League's Eastern Division championship with a 5-1 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night.

Stargell jerked open a champagne bottle and jettisoned a stream at teammates, sparking a crossfire in the euphorious clubhouse.

If Stargell and the rest of the Pirates were happy, they were also a little relieved to shake off the mounting pressure of pennant-chasing.

Responded Well

"This club had pressure on it," said Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh, "but it responded well. We went into a little slump and came out of it."

The "little" slump to which Murtaugh referred was a string of two losses Sunday and Tuesday as the Pirates failed to clinch the title while lugging the champagne around. But everyone kne wit would come sooner or later, right Mr Stargell? "It's been a team effort," said the slugging outfielder in the time-worn baseball tradition. "We couldn't have gone all the way without every man on this club."

While Pittsburgh locked up the East, the Western Division remained a hot item although in better perspective than in recent days. The front-running San Francisco Giants topped the Houston Astros 3-1 and moved their lead to 2½ games over the Los Angeles Dodgers, who lost 4-1 to the Cincinnati Reds.

The third-place Atlanta Braves, meanwhile, were mathematically eliminated after losing 7-3 to the San Diego Padres.

Cubs Win

In the other National games, the Chicago Cubs bounced the New York Mets 4-1 and the Montreal Expos bested the Philadelphia Phillies 2-0.

The Eastern title was the second straight for the Pirates, who lost last year's National League playoffs to the Cincinnati Reds and watched the World Series on television.

"To a great extent, winning the title was a lot like last year," said Pittsburgh third baseman Richie Hebner. "Only this time, I hope we're around to go to the World Series."

Luke Walker and Dave Giusti combined for a six-hitter as the Pirates clinched the division title five days earlier than last season. Walker pitched the first six innings and yielded four singles while Giusti finished up for his 29th save.

Stargell Scores

The winning run, the Pirates' second tally in the fourth, was scored when Stargell opened with a walk and Robertson and Manny Sanguillen delivered singles.

Bobby Bonds knocked in two runs, including a tie-breaking homer in the fifth inning and Juan Marichal pitched a six-hit-

Devine Returns to Practice Field

Hunter Runs With 1st Unit

GREEN BAY — I had the best seat in the house," Dan Devine jested.

Ensconsced in a wheelchair, he delivered the quip from the rear platform of a golf cart nestled against the east fence of the Packers' South Oneida Street practice field early Wednesday afternoon.

A billowy plastic covering enveloped his cast-encased left leg, fractured in a sideline mishap during the fourth quarter of last Sunday's 42-40 loss to the Giants, and it was supported by a board to assure stability.

It was Devine's first appearance on the practice field since the accident — he had been required to forego Tuesday's workout under doctor's orders — and the weather could have been more benevolent.

No Complaints

But the Packer coach had no complaints, despite the nippy temperatures, which he endured in virtual immobility for nearly two hours. He had arrived in a small van, driven by new assistant Gary Lane.

"I was able to see every play said Devine, whose Tuesday absence marked the first time he had missed a practice in 21 years. It was an oblique reference to the fact that the cart had been stationary through practice.

"Almost all of the activity took place right out here in front of me," he added with satisfaction.

Devine also expressed approval of the quality of effort expended by his athletes in preparation for Sunday's date with the Denver Broncos in Milwaukee County Stadium

"It was a good practice," he said. "They showed good hustle and were very attentive."

Although he injected himself into the proceedings only infrequently, permitting Aide Daye Hanner to conduct the session, Devine did make an occasional comment and also summoned Hanner to his station for a conference at one point

This will be his practice field modus operandi until he is able to get about extensively on crutches, which he used briefly for the first time Wednesday afternoon following his return to St. Vincent Hospital. That, team physician Dr. James W. Nellen said, could be some time next week.

Two or Three Days

"He started using crutches a little bit today but he won't be able to be on them much for two or three days," Dr. Nellen said. "And he won't be able to stand with them for any length of time. And, of course, he will have to wear the cast for several more weeks."

Devine will direct operations in Milwaukee County Stadium. He said, "I'm pretty sure I'm going to be working in the press box on the field telephones

"I think I could maintain contact as well from there as from a field platform. Either you're right in the middle of your team or you're not, and if you're not you might as well be a distance away"

Devine presumably would be carried to the press box area by motorized cart, commonly used for passenger purposes in County Stadium.

Personal transportation is only one of his current con-

Powell Clouts 2 Homers

Orioles Clinch Tie In AL East

Associated Press Sports Writer

Boog Powell, the massive Baltimore Oriole first baseman, has been playing with two sore wrists and a sore hand, and he says it hurts to swing a bat However, he has not been hurting himself recently only the New York Yankees.

The 6-4, 250-pound slugger slammed his 20th and 21st home runs of the season Wednesday night, each a two-run shot, as the Orioles pounded the Yankees 10-1 and clinched a tie for the American League's East Division title.

One more Baltimore victory in seven games or one more loss by second-place Detroit in six games will make the Orioles East Division champions for the third straight year and put them into the AL playoffs against Oakland's West Division winners Both East teams are idle today, so the earliest pennant clinching could be Friday when the Orioles play the Indians in a twi-night doubleheader at Cleveland, and the Tigers entertain the Yankees

The Tigers' pennant chances were virtually extinguished Wednesday night when they dropped a 3-2 decision to Boston. Elsewhere in the AL, Chicago blanked Oakland 3-0; Kansas City walloped California 10-3, Washington edged Cleveland 3-2, and the Milwaukee at Minnesota game was rained out

Far Behind

Powell's two homers boosted his runs batted in total for the season to 87 and his batting average to .251, the first time he has been over the 250 mark this year. However, he still is far behind last year's figures of 297, 35 homers and 114 RBI which enabled him to win the AL's Most Valuable Player Award.

Powell was just getting over an injury to his right hand, which was hurt in a slide, when he was hit by a pitch on the hand last week in Detroit

"It's still sore," he said "but rest won't help I just have to keep playing I can't lay off now and be ready for the playoffs," which are scheduled to begin Oct 2 in Baltimore

Powell was not the only Orioles' hitting star Rookie Bobby Grich hit his first major league homer, a three-run shot in the fifth, and Ellie Hendricks collected four hits, drove in two runs and scored one

The Orioles power barrage helped Jim Palmer win his 19th game. He scattered six hits

Palmer Gets Nod

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver said Palmer will get a chance for his 20th victory Sunday against Cleveland Weaver also said the other Baltimore starters—20-game winner Dave McNally and 19-game winners Mike Cuellar and Pat Dobson—each would work twice more If each manages to win 20, the Orioles would be the first team with four 20 - game winners since the 1920 White Sox

Detroit's Mickey Lolich, the winningest pitcher in the majors, was foiled in his bid for his 26th victory when Boston rallied for three runs in the eighth inning to overcome a 2-0 Tiger lead

Bunt Works

Singles by Billy Conigliaro and Duane Josephson and a successful bunt by pinch hitter Phil Gagliano filled the bases The first Boston run scored on Doug Griffin's force out, and the tying and winning runs came home on Luis Aparicio's double down the left field line.

Lolich, 25-12, went the distance in lifting his league-leading totals to 27 complete games and 359 innings pitched Oakland's Vida Blue, the league's No 2 winner with 23 victories, worked five scoreless innings in the A's loss to Chicago. Blue, tuning up for the playoffs, allowed only two hits and struck out three.

The White Sox broke through against reliever Jim Roland in the seventh on Rick Reichart's homer They added two runs in the eighth off Mudcat Grant on a single by winning pitcher Tom Bradley, a sacrifice and singles by Rich McKinney and Bill Melton.

Wins 15th

Bradley shutting out the A's for the third time this season, permitted four hits in winning his 15th game

Kansas City overcame a 3-1 California lead with nine runs in the ninth inning Two-run singles by Amos Otis and Bob Oliver highlighted the uprising, while Chuck Harrison delivered a pair of singles and Sandy Valdespino contributed a pinch run-scoring double Pitcher Bill Gogolewski's bases-loaded double in the second inning following three walks by Cleveland pitcher Vince Colbert drove in all three Washington runs.

Only 1,458 fans turned out at RFK stadium in Washington, bringing the attendance for the three-game series with the Indians to 4,512 for the Texas-bound Senators

'Clay' Issue a Factor

Cliff Richey Quits Davis Cup Squad

LOS ANGELES (AP) — U S Open Tennis champion Stan Smith says he knew for two weeks that Cliff Richey planned to quit the U S Davis Cup squad. He says he tried unsuccessfully to talk Richey out of his decision.

Smith, expected to occupy one of the two singles berths on the team, said Wednesday he doesn't mind that the Davis Cup match with Romania will be played on clay rather than cement

The match is scheduled for Charlotte, N.C., Oct. 8-10.

Richey, 24, San Angelo, Tex , announced Tuesday he would not be a member of the team. He criticized U.S. Lawn Tennis Association officials for electing to play the matches on clay and also for its methods of selecting a team captain. He said the USLTA should have consulted the players in the decisions.

Another factor behind Richey's decision is believed to be that he is not happy with his play during recent tournaments.

May Do Better

The USLTA has been criticized by others for selecting clay courts. The Romanians are expected to do much better on clay than they would have on a faster surface and they stand a good chance of taking the trophy behind the Iron Curtain for the first time

Smith commented between matches at the Pepsi Pacific Southwest Open tournament here that "I think the key to being a good tennis player is to adjust to any conditions

"I have been successful this year on both clay and grass, so I don't mind the clay courts on which the cup matches will be played in Charlotte," he said.

The non-playing captain of the U.S. squad is Ed Turville, an attorney from St Petersburg, Fla He says he expects the basic squad to be Smith, Clark Graebner, Erik Van Dillen and Frank Froehling, plus Roscoe Tanner and Jim Connors. Each team is permitted six members until a week before the competition two must be dropped

Texas Stadium To Open Later Due to Rain

DALLAS (AP) — Rain Wednesday forced the Dallas Cowboys to announce that their Oct. 3 game against the Washington Redskins will be played in the Cotton Bowl instead of in new Texas Stadium

Dallas officials said, "It is now anticipated that the Cowboys will play their first game in Texas Stadium against the New York Giants Monday night, Oct. 11."

Tex Schramm, president and general manager of the Cowboys, said, "Today's rain plus the forecast of continued rain and inclement weather through the weekend has made it impossible to complete enough paved parking to handle a crowd of 65,000 at the new stadium"

Injured Prep Gridder Dies In Hospital

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — Chuck Anderson, 17-year-old senior, at Walla Walla High School, died in a Richland hospital Wednesday from head injuries suffered in a football game

Anderson, who played offensive guard and defensive linebacker, was hurt with less than five minutes to play as Walla Walla defeated Pendleton, Ore , 41-20 last Friday night

He was in his three-point stances as guard when Walla Walla was called for illegal procedure. The movement brought a Pendleton lineman cracking across on Anderson He collapsed three plays later.

August Hickok Prize Awarded to Gibson

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Gibson of the St Louis Cardinals, who pitched a no-hitter in August, was named Wednesday as the monthly winner in the race for the 22nd annual Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year Award

Gibson's no-hitter against Pittsburgh, helped give him the August award over pitcher Mickey Lolich of Detroit, 30 first-place votes and 130 points to 18 first-place votes and 98 points.

Officers Dismissed

Carty Cleared After Hassle With Police

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — "Everybody in Atlanta knows I'm not the type to go out on the streets and pick a fight," declared Atlanta Braves outfielder Rico Carty after he was cleared Wednesday of charges growing out of a hassle with three city policemen.

Municipal Court Judge Robert Sparks said the incident, which earlier prompted the dismissal of the officers, was "shamefully handled" by city police.

Carty's brother-in-law, Carlos Ramirez, who also was involved in the August incident, was cleared of a charge of obstructing an officer. Carty had been charged with striking a police officer and creating a turmoil.

Sought Help

He testified during an earlier aldermanic police board hearing for the three policemen that the fracas erupted when he and Ramirez pulled up to a police car and sought assistance after two white men in another car insulted them.

The Dominican Republic native testified that the uniformed patrolman and the two white men, who it was later learned were off-duty policemen, joined in beating him and Ramirez.

Carty testified that the off-duty policemen, who were in civilian clothes at the time of the midnight altercation, called him and Ramirez "cop-killing niggers."

534-Pound Bear Bagged

RHINELANDER, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin's bear hunting season has resulted in the killing of a 534 pounder in Vilas County, the Department of Natural Resources reported today.

The kill made by Thomas Hill of Phelps could be a record. The department said the bear will be scored for possible placement among record Wisconsin black bear. Scoring is done, the DNR explained, after the skull has cured for several months by combining measurements of the length and width of the skull.

Don Bragg, DNR administrative assistant in Rhinelander, said the bear was shot twice near a baiting station and dogs were used to locate it after it was killed.

Stargell Liked Beating Gibson in Title Clincher

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "Beating him makes us feel like we earned it," said a jovial Willie Stargell from the din of the Pittsburgh Pirates' raucous clubhouse Wednesday night.

Stargell's reference was to Bob Gibson, whom the Pirates tagged in beating the St. Louis Cardinals 5-1 for a repeat National League East Division title.

In contrast to a three-way battle for the division title they sewed up with only three days left in 1970, the Pirates breezed home with a week to spare.

Only the Cardinals and, fleetingly, the Chicago Cubs were in the race after the Pirates, frontrunners from early June, won 11 straight games before and after the All-Star break.

The Cardinals crept four games back Aug. 15, one day after Gibson fired a no-hitter in Pittsburgh, but quickly fell off the pace again in a five-game spin.

Race Over

Successive losses to the Philadelphia Phillies left the Cardinals 7½ games back last week, and the race for all practical purposes was over when Pittsburgh knocked them off twice to open a 9½-game lead.

"It's been a team effort," said Stargell, his uniform drenched from champagne, beer and water tossed and sprayed across the clubhouse.

"We couldn't have gone all the way without every man on this club. Now it's our turn to make it to the World Series."

In reference to Gibson, who had humbled the Pirates 11-0 with his no-hitter, Stargell noted, "He didn't have tonight what he had that night, but he's a tremendous competitor."

Bob Robertson, who stroked two hits off Gibson and like Stargell drove in a run, echoed the sentiment, declaring "It's always great to get it off someone like Gibson. He's probably the best pitcher in the league.

Platteville 2nd In NAIA Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — Platteville State, defending champion of the Wisconsin State University Conference, is runner-up this week in the NAIA's ratings of college football teams.

Grambling is No. 1 with 139 points and seven first-place ballots. Platteville got 89 points and one first.

Carthage College is sixth in the NAIA's Division II poll.

Phil Olsen May Return To Duty Soon

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams got some good news Wednesday. Defensive tackle Phil Olsen may return to action in two or three weeks instead of late in the National Football League season.

Olsen underwent knee surgery after an injury in the Cleveland Brown game Aug. 13. His recovery was expected to take much longer.

Bulls Defeat Royals, 105-91

MOUNT PROSPECT, Ill. (AP) — The Chicago Bulls defeated the Cincinnati Royals 105-91 in a National Basketball Association exhibition contest Wednesday night.

High scorer was Stan McGregor of the Royals with 19 points. Jerry Sloan led the Bulls with 18.

Coach Dick Motta of Chicago was especially pleased with rookie Howard Porter, who had 14 points.

Economists Study Pros

Two Claim Alcindor Underpaid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lew Alcindor, who signed a reported $1.4 million contract with the Milwaukee Bucks three years ago, "is grossly underpaid in relation to his team," say two economists.

Roger G. Noll and Benjamin A. Okner of the Brookings Institution say the 7-foot-2 Alcindor would be underpaid "even if he earns $250,000 annually."

In testimony prepared for a Senate judiciary antitrust subcommittee the two economists suggested Congress permit the National and American basketball associations to merge for three years as an experiment.

As a price for relaxing antitrust laws, they said, the leagues should be required to adopt better gate sharing arrangements and a liberal player option system.

Fair Policy

The two urged Congress to "undertake a complete evaluation of the present status of professional sports operations in the economy with the objective of establishing a fair and consistent policy for all of these enterprises."

They said the basketball merger, in its present form, would be disadvantageous to both fans and players.

"Our conclusion . . . is that a merger is in the public interest, but only if certain restrictions are placed upon the operating rules of the merged entity to guarantee that the public interest is served," the 54-page report said.

Split Gate

They suggested balancing revenues for strong and weak teams by splitting gate receipts for every game—60 per cent to the home team and 40 per cent to the visitors—and sharing playoff revenues with non-playoff teams.

The report said a merger "will not succeed in making professional basketball games more competitive nor will it be able to salvage the few disastrous franchises."

Beene Stars as Rochester Wins Junior Series

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The Rochester Red Wings of the International League won the Junior World Series Wednesday night with a 9-6 victory over the Denver Bears.

Fred Beene won his second game of the seven-game series and drove in the first of three runs the Red Wings scored on the American Association team in the sixth inning. He was relieved after giving up one run to Denver in the eighth.

Beene once pitched for the Appleton Foxes.

Thomas Back With Cowboys But Offers No Apologies

DALLAS (AP) — Coach Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys said holdout running back Duane Thomas reported to his first team meeting of the season Wednesday. "His attitude is fine with me," Landry said.

Thomas returned to the Cowboys last week from a voluntary retirement during which he was traded to New England and returned to Dallas when he failed to pass the Patriots' physical examination.

Landry said, "The team attitude toward Thomas is good. If he can come back and help us win the Super Bowl, it would be very good as far as the team is concerned."

Thomas is suffering from an infected calf and will not be activated for Sunday's National Football League game in Philadelphia.

Landry was asked if Thomas had apologized for remarks he made about the Cowboys' executive staff and Landry said, "He volunteered no apologies."

Hunter Runs With 1st Unit

cerns. He also is considering a change in his starting quarterback against the Broncos and wondering whether Mike McCoy and Jim Carter will be ready for Denver, a Packer opponent for the first time ever.

Scott Hunter, who triggered a bristling, if unsuccessful, comeback in the second half against the Giants, was running with the first unit Wednesday and Devine said "it's likely Scott will start, although I haven't said that for sure."

Zeke Bratkowski started the New York match and Devine heretofore has said he considered the 13-year veteran the No. 1 quarterback

McCoy's rate of recovery from strained knee ligaments could involve a manpower decision, should the strapping sophomore be unavailable.

"We definitely would consider activating Jim DeLisle," Devine said, "We only have one spot open on the roster right now (the vacancy created by the release of placekicker Dave Conway) but we could have two if Mike is not able to play.

"But I hate to lose Mike for two games, which is what would happen if we felt we had to deactivate him, if he's just going to be out for one "

Devine, weighing the possibility of Carter's return to duty and how it might affect Ray Nitschke's starting status, said, "I honestly don't know . . We'll have to leave that open right now "

Nitschke went the route against the Giants Of his performance, which evoked admiration from the faithful, Devine said, "Ray played the run good, but he doesn't have the speed that Jim has to play the pass."

Carter, moving about more freely Wednesday than he had been earlier in the week, reported. "The leg has been a little tight the last couple days, but I've been running and it feels pretty good."

PACKER PATTER — Lou Michaels, newly installed as the Packers' resident placekicker, was reaching the end zone on kickoffs with regularity during Wednesday's workout He also was connecting from field goal distances up to 40 yards with consistency.

Donny Anderson, fourth place finisher a year ago, currently leads the National Football Conference in rushing off his 99-yard performance against the Giants . . . And his running mate, Dave Hampton, is out front in NFC kickoff returns with five for 194 yards, a 38.8 average.

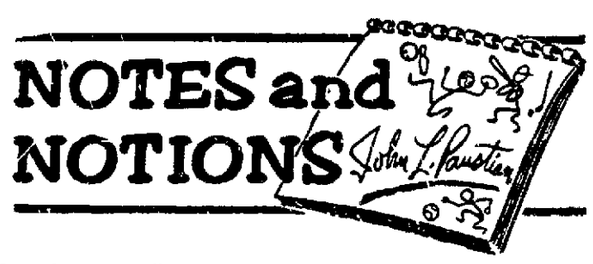
NOTES and NOTIONS



How about a mulligan on last week's picks? In that we'd-like-to-forget card of football puzzlers, this practitioner of the wild guess got only 21 right, along with 18 wrong and three ties. That adds up to an embarrassing 53 9 per cent record. For example, we were wiped out completely (4-for-4) in the Olympian conference. And, in the worst NFL predictions ever, it was a 5-7-1 showing. (I had plenty of company here, because the pro results gave everybody fits, from Jimmy the Greek and Eleanor Kaine on down). If it hadn't been for a 5-for-5 Midwest Collegiate Conference week, it would have been worse yet Anyway, the young season's accuracy rate is now a mere 607 (48-31-6)

Packers over Denver — This one looks about even. The Bays will have to stop not only their own fumbling tactics but a sure-to-be-keyed-up Don Horn. If the Green Bay pass defense can play up to its potential, the Packers should edge the Broncos

Wisconsin over Louisiana State — The Tigers are one of the best teams the UW will play, but after the Badgers' performance against last week (they outdid Syracuse in everything but the final score), they seem ready to give anybody an all-out battle. Perhaps the Badgers will bet a few of the breaks they didn't receive against the Orangemen and come out on top.

Lawrence over Grinnell — If the Vikes play anywhere near as well — both ways — as they did in their opener, they should be able to snap the Pioneer jinx.

Oshkosh over Kimberly — A real power struggle is in prospect, with the outcome probably in doubt until the closing minutes (or minute). Both teams can rush the ball well and both have distinct aerial threats. The Oshkosh defense has been better to date, and that could be the deciding factor.

Kaukauna over Neenah — Backed by two impressive wins, the unbeaten Ghosts may have too much momentum for the Rockets However, Neenah has caused Kaukauna more trouble over the years than any other team, and the Rocket offense could come to life to make it an even-up game

Appleton West over Menasha — If the Jays can recover from their experience at Kaukauna, they could well make it interesting all the way. But the Terrors gained considerable confidence from their win over Neenah.

St. John over St. Mary — The Dutchmen have been getting stronger each week and have too many guns for the Zephyrs

Xavier over Marinette — The Cavaliers are usually tough at home, but the Hawks' ground game and improving defense should prevail.

Racine Case over Appleton East — If the Patriot attack jells, it could spell trouble for home-standing Case. But, on the basis of the two games to date, East's efforts will likely fall short.

Manawa over Fox Lutheran — The unbeaten Wolves apparently have too much for the Foxes, even though the latter continue to improve week by week.

Little Chute over Marion — Little Chute's offense came into its own last week and will be too strong for Marion.

Other NFL Games — Dallas over Philadelphia, Cincinnati over Pittsburgh, Detroit over New England. Buffalo over Miami, Washington over New York Giants, Baltimore over Cleveland, Kansas City over Houston,, San Francisco, over New Orleans, Minnesota over Chicago, Los Angeles over Atlanta, Oakland over San Diego, St. Louis over Jets.

Other MC games — Monmouth over Coe, Ripon over Cornell, Knox over Carleton, St. Olaf over Beloit.

Other CWC games — Wittenberg-Birnamwood over Wautoma, Bonduel over Shiocton.

ECC games — Waupaca over Berlin, Hortonville over Weyauwega, Ripon over New London, Omro over Winneconne.

Other games — Chilton over Luxemberg - Casco, Clintonville over DePere, Oconto Falls over Seymour, Denmark over Valders, Freedom over Wrightstown, Brillion over Reedsville, Mishicot over Hilbert, Pennings over Lourdes, Roncalli over Springs.

Pennings and Lourdes Clash offense in suffering two setbacks. The Dutchmen, a tough physical team, relied heavily on an aerial game so far but Tom Van Asten, a block-busting fullback, made a return last week after missing the Lourdes game.

Coach L. G. Friedrich has his Zephyrs playing strong defense, especially against the pass where they've been nicked for only 129 yards but have only put one touchdown on the board.

Coach Avitus Ripp's Dutchmen stood their ground against Premontre (10-0) and Lourdes (21-14) in two narrow losses before stopping the Jets

Central must stop the running of Xavier's Jeff Nack, second in the conference with 236 yards, and big Pat Earle fourth in the league with 213 yards

Bolstering the Hawks' offense is the return of quarterback Tom Connolly who hit on four of nine passes last week in his FVCC debut for Xavier Connolly gives the offense a boost because of his experience.

Connolly has a good receiver in end Don Bobber, third in the FVCC, with nine receptions for 93 yards Leading pass receiver is St. John's Dave Van Lieshout, with 15 catches for 191 yards and two TDs.

Central also owns a win over St. Mary (25-6) and last week downed Fox Valley Lutheran. Biggest problem facing Xavier is containing halfback Mike Farley, who has gained 143 yards in 28 carries.

Pirates Clinch Title; Dodgers Lose Ground

ter in San Francisco's victory that gave the Giants a little breathing room over the Dodgers.

"It puts us closer to where we're going," said San Francisco Manager Charlie Fox. "We just broke out of our slump We got some hits."

The Giants' slump has been something, all right. Prior to Wednesday night, they had lost 12 of 16 games and most of a lead over Los Angeles.

Gary Nolan pitched a five-hitter and George Foster smacked a two-run double as Cincinnati dealt a blow to the Dodgers' pennant hopes

"We've been playing 10-11 games over the .500 mark all year, and now everyone expects us to win six out of seven games at the end," said a disconsolate Walt Alston, the Dodger manager. "I know it looks like we're not trying to win it—but believe me, we are "

San Diego snuffed Atlanta's flickering pennant hopes as Ed Acosta scattered eight hits and Clarence Gaston, Don Mason and Nate Colbert hit home runs.

Pitcher Bill Hands drilled a three-run double and spaced eight hits as Chicago beat New York and Bill Stoneman also allowed eight hits, pitching Montreal over Philadelphia.

John Hilton Signs Pact With Vikes

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings have signed veteran National Football League tight end John Hilton to shore up a position where three players have been injured.

Hilton, cut by the Green Bay Packers last week after serving as a starter in 1970, has caught 133 passes for 14 touchdowns in six NFL seasons—the first five at Pittsburgh.

Regular tight end John Beasley of the Vikings is out for the year after knee surgery His replacement, Stu Voight, caught three passes in the 16-13 Vikings victory over Detroit Monday night and is healthy, but two other backup men have injury troubles.

Lawrence Soccer Opener Slated

The LU team was unbeaten in nine matches last year. Captains are Archie Korantang and Al Berger.

WDP, Oconto Duel for Lead

BAY CONFERENCE

	W	L	TP	OP
West De Pere	3	0	69	0
Oconto	3	0	53	6
Ashwaubenon	2	1	27	26
Bay Port	2	1	46	44
Clintonville	1	2	39	28
De Pere	1	2	34	38
Marinette	1	2	21	54
Oconto Falls	1	2	23	31
Pulaski	1	2	13	44
Seymour	0	3	18	62

Results Last Week: West De Pere 35, Marinette 0; Oconto 14, Seymour 0; Ashwaubenon 8, Clintonville 7; Bay Port 13, De Pere 6; Oconto Falls 17, Pulaski 6.

Friday's Games: West De Pere at Oconto; Clintonville at De Pere; Seymour at Oconto Falls; Marinette at Bay Port, Pulaski at Ashwaubenon.

Two tough defensive and potent scoring teams clash Friday for the lead in the Bay Conference.

Oconto, the surprise team so far, plays host to co-leader West De Pere. Other Friday contests have Clintonville at De Pere, Seymour at Oconto Falls, Marinette at Bay Port, and Pulaski at Ashwaubenon.

West De Pere scored in every period and the Phantoms squelched Marinette, 35-0, last week, while Oconto's Blue Devils turned back winless Seymour, 14-0.

Quarterback Gene Pichette has been the key to the Phantoms' thundering offense. Pichette scored once and threw a touchdown pass against the Marines. He went 10-of-12 for the game, for 149 yards.

Initial Score

Oconto was extended by a determined Seymour team, but Pat Ragen blasted in from four yards for the initial score in the second period and Jeff Belongia teamed with Jim Exferd for a 28-yard strike in the final quarter.

Oconto Falls, a young but talented team, passed on some of its frustrations to Pulaski, another pre-season favorite with a 17-6 win over the Raiders.

Pulaski's only score came on a 70-yard jaunt by Earl Hylock. Pat Hickey keyed the junior-studded OF team with 110 yards in 19 carries.

Frustrating Defeat

It's unlikely Clintonville will suffer as frustrating a defeat as the one dealt it by Ashwaubenon last week

Dean Arndt had just scored a 3-yard touchdown for the Truckers, and John Heiderscheid a PAT kick when the Jaguars made their only threat of the game.

The Jags executed a perfect screen pass for a 36-yard scoring play and quarterback Jeff Skoronski hit Phil Coffaro for a 2-point conversion.

Clintonville will try to get back on the winning trail at De Pere, at 13-6 victim of Bay Port.

Volleyball Meet Set

Appleton West will sponsor an invitational volleyball tournament Saturday, beginning at 9 a.m.

State champion Kaukauna heads the field, along with two other WIAA finalists of last year, Baraboo and Whitefish Bay.

The other entrants are Appleton East, Kimberly, Neenah, Antigo and host AHS-W.

Finals will start at 1 p.m.

Pat Peppler Given New Field Duties

GREEN BAY — There is a "new" face on the Packer practice field today . . . and another in the front office

A. P. (Pat) Peppler assistant to the general manager and personnel director, of player personnel, henceforth "will devote more time to on-the-field coaching responsibilities," Gernal Manager Coach Dan Devine announced Wednesday.

In a companion announcement, Devine revealed that Gary Lane, employed only last week as a taxi squad quarterback, has joined the organization's personnel department "and also will have other duties assigned to him by Coach Devine "

Elaborating on Peppler's partial reassignment, Devine said, "Green Bay has one of the smaller coaching staffs in the league and I feel we can use more personnel in that area."

Peppler has an extensive background in coaching having produced state high school championship teams in football in the East Lansing, Mich., area before moving on to the University of North Carolina, where he served as an assistant coach for eight seasons.

He also was an assistant coach at Wake Forest for one year before coming to Green Bay in 1963 to succeed Dick Voris as director of player personnel.

Nick Gaffney.

West's Terrors, who became potential darkhorses in the FVA race with their season-opening win, will make their home debut. Last year, Jack Anderson threw two scoring passes in an 18-6 West win over Menasha, and he'll be back at the controls Saturday. Anderson, last year's most prolific FVA passer, completed three of the only four aerials he got away against Neenah.

The Bluejays' Tom Bohmke, who caught a TD pass against West last year, is back to give his team a "home run" threat Jay quarterbacking is handled by Jeff Chew.

Prior to its loss at Kaukauna, Menasha was tripped by a second-half Mayville rally in a non-league skirmish.

Appleton East bids for revenge at Racine Case and also looks for its initial '71 victory. Last year, the Eagles flew to an 18-0 victory over the Patriots.

Shows Promise

In last week's Oshkosh game, East's aerial game showed promise of developing. Dave Van Handel completed eight of 15 passes. East's Bob McDonald caught six of them (for 51 yards) to take the FVA receiving lead.

Racine Case has lost its two league starts, 40-24 to Madison LaFollette and 10-0 to Beloit Memorial.

'Too Bad'—President Nixon

Few In Washington Mourn Passing Of Senators to Dallas

By BOB GREENE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Very few cried foul on Capitol Hill when the American League sent the Washington Senators scampering down the base path to Arlington—Texas, that is

The nation's No. 1 fan, President Nixon, said it was "too bad" the city would be without a team, then began rooting for the California Angels

"I think he is looking forward to throwing out the first ball for the Angels," said Ronald L Ziegler, Nixon's press secretary.

Before the American League club owners voted to move the franchise, Nixon said it would be "heartbreaking" if the nation's capital lost major league baseball. But he indicated he certainly didn't "want to deny Dallas" a major league team.

There was speculation here Wednesday that Texas' 26 electoral votes in next year's presidential election, as opposed to only three electoral votes for the District of Columbia, may have been partly responsible for the "off-speed pitches" thrown by the politicians.

Quiet Now

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., was considered instrumental in providing Kansas City with an expansion team when the Athletics struck out for Oakland. He was blunt about the part he played then and is quiet now.

"One was my business and the other's not my problem," Symington said "I'm sorry to see the Senators go, but nobody asked me to intercede."

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa , said he would "like to see any kind of a ball team" in Washington Asked if he would approve moving the Pittsburgh Pirates here, he said: "Any kind of a ball team that is not in Pennsylvania now "

Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Senate Democratic leader, said the franchise switch is "not the responsibility of this body."

Five members of the Senate, however, requested a hard look at the antitrust exemptions of professional baseball and football.

"We've got to take a good look at the practices of franchise owners in baseball," said Sen William B. Spong, D-Va. In recent years the game "has taken on the aura of big business first and the interest of the fans . second."

Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., denounced "playing one city off against the other" and said "disregard for the public interest" was shown in "the movement of the Senators away from Washington."

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind said, "I think it's outrageous when a handful of club owners sit around a table somewhere and decide that the capital city of the nation that invented baseball isn't going to have a major league team anymore.

Need to Reconsider

"I think we need to reconsider the whole question of exempting professional sports from antitrust laws," Bayh said.

Rep B. F. Sisk, D-Calif., introduced a bill in the House to end baseball's antitrust exemption.

Other senators vocal in the objection to the Senators' move were Sam Ervin, D-N.C., and Charles McC Mathias and J Glenn Beall, both Maryland Republicans.

Rep Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, said he was unsure whether he would hold hearings on the bill introduced by Sisk.

"One cannot stop a club from moving to a city any more than you can stop a manufacturing plant," Celler said.

Scott whipped in what might be termed a "sneaky fast ball" on members of the House

"I imagine that the House of Representatives would be glad to see the Senators move to Fort Worth-Dallas," he said, not referring to the baseball team.

Colonels Top NBA Bullets

Record Crowd Sees Kentucky

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Colonels' Dan Issel says he didn't mind the second-guessers for a while, but after a year they got under his skin

"They asked why I went to the American Basketball Association, and now I've got the answer," said the ABA standout after the Colonels handed the National Basketball Association Baltimore Bullets a 111-85 thrashing Wednesay night.

The victory, forged before an ABA exhibition game record crowd of 13,821, was the first ever for an ABA team over an NBA squad, and Issel was delighted.

"They—the Bullets—represent the NBA." he said after the Colonels' win, "and that's been pushed down my throat for a year now. Now maybe that's over."

The former University of Kentucky All-American had 24 points to pace all scorers as the Colonels overcame an early 6-0 deficit and pulled away from the Bullets.

Both teams substituted liberally, testing rookie prospects in advance of the regular season.

Rookie Stan Love of Oregon paced the Bullets with 19 points, while 7-foot-2 Artis Gilmore, making his first start for Kentucky, scored 16 points and had the same number of rebounds.

Baltimore was hampered by the absence of guard Earl Monroe and forward Gus Johnson, both injured. Darel Carrier, a holdout until Wednesday, didn't play for Kentucky.

The loss was a special disappointment for the Bullets' Wesley Unseld, who starred at the University of Louisville. Unseld managed only seven points and eight rebounds, but still impressed Issel.

Monster Coho Landed

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) — Fishing enthusiasts were discussing with awe today the monster coho salmon caught by George Adema of Southfield which came within eight ounces of setting a world record.

It was the first time Adema had gone salmon fishing, he said.

The fish—which weighed 30 pounds, eight ounces—set a state record, according to Donald Reynolds, a fisheries habitat bilogist for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources at Traverse City.

The only recorded catch weighing more was hooked 24 years ago in British Columbia. It was half a pound heavier.

Adema said he landed his prize catch Monday in Round Lake, in the east arm of Grand Traverse Bay. The fish was 41⅜ inches long and 26 inches in girth

Powerful Fish

"It was a powerful fish, and I knew I had a big one," Adema said. "But I sure didn't know how big.

"The fish never did jump, but he made several long, strong runs. At one time, he ran so far and so hard that he almost ran all the line off the reel. Another time he ran straight past the boat, and I had to switch sides to keep up with him."

Adema estimated the fight took something short of half an hour. He used a trolled spinner with several strands of red and white yarn strung on the hook.

With Adema at the time were his wife and two other couples.

Massive Attacks On North Vietnam Aimed at Fuel Supply

SAIGON (AP) — The massive U.S. air raids inside North Vietnam's southern panhandle two days ago were ordered by President Nixon primarily against fuel depots to blunt a dry-season push of troops and sites and antiaircraft guns firsources said today.

The U.S. Command, in announcing the trikes, initially said they were directed against surface-to-air missile—SAM—sites and antiircraft guns firing on American reconnaissance planes flying over North Vietnam and bombers attacking the Ho Chi Minh trail supply network in Laos.

The U.S. Command acknowledged today, in a second communique, that the 200 air strikes in an area running 35 mile s north from the demilitarized zone included attacks on fuel storage depots. Official sources outside the command said they were the primary targets and today's communique, reporting damage assessment, dealt mainly with the fuel storage depots rather than the antiaircraft defenses.

The sources said that the nature of the strikes meant that they had to be ordered by the highest authority, meaning the President.

Protective Reaction

The sources said the attacks did not represent an expansion of the "protective reaction" policy in that three previous major strikes since May 1, 1970, were similar. The official reason given for the previous strikes was that they were primarily against antiaircraft defenses although the bombers attacked scores of other targets including supply depots and trucks.

"Look at the past protective reactions of this size," said one source. "You see the sort of targets undertaken and the pattern that has developed."

Communist negotiators canceled today's session of the Paris peace talks to protest the raids.

Storage Areas

The command said today that pilots "reported numerous large sustained fires and heavy black smoke which indicated that strikes on POL—petroleum, oil, and lubricants—storage areas had been successful."

"In addition," the communique said, "three air defense radars were put out of commission. An accurate assessment was hampered by heavy smoke and weather conditions."

Explaining the decision to attack the fuel depots, one informant said:

"If men and supplies can't be moved southward, they're not a threat. You need fuel to move men and supplies. Look at the time of the year. The dry season is approaching. This is the time when North Vietnam begins to organize its system to move southward."

Only Calley Convicted of Massacre

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

There was William Calley, with the face of a cherub. At 24, a lieutenant in the United States Army, leader of an infantry platoon in the assault on My Lai.

There were Sgts. David Mitchell and Charles Hutto, squad leader and machine gunner There was Capt. Eugene Wm. Kotouc, round-face and pixie-ish, the intelligence officer for the attacking force

And then Ernest Medina, with bearng and mannerthat shouted prid And then Ernest Medina, with bearing and manner that shouted pride o nifo „-,,,,,,,,,,,,

And then Ernest Medina with bearing and manner that shouted pride of uniform and rank, the captain who commanded Charlie Company that bloody morning in South Vietnam

Thirteen had been charged with crimes of assault and murder. These five were tried. Only Rusty Calley stood branded a mass murderer when the gavel dropped Wednesday for the last time at Medina's trial, the last trial of the men who fought at My Lai.

Others Acquitted

Separate courts-martial decreed Mitchell and Hutto not guilty of assaulting respectively 30 and six Vietnamese civilians with intent to murder; Kotouc not guilty of maiming a prisoner by cutting off a finger; Medina innocent of killing a woman, assaulting a Viet Cong suspect or involuntary manslaughter in the death of 100.

But Calley was pictured at his trial as ordering his men to fire into two groups of old men, women and children, then spraying round after round of M-16 ammunition into the screaming mass. The jury convicted him of at least 22 murders and sentenced him to life in prison after the longest court-martial in history.

The verdict brought a national outcry of "scapegoat," a presidential promise of review, and later reduction in sentence to 20 years at hard labor with opportunity for still a lesser sentence in appeal.

Blame-Fixing

There remains for the Army only some final blame-fixing and in - house punishment stemming from the slaughter at My Lai 3½ years ago.

Col. Oran K. Henderson, a quiet Hoosier with 30 years of service and a chestful of ribbons for valor still is on trial at Ft Meade, Md.—not for what happened at My Lai, but its aftermath

The Army charges that by failing to follow on orders for thorough investigation and reporting the incident to higher command Brigade Commander Henderson helped in the coverup And, it charges, he lied to a high-level board of inquiry when the story finally became public 1½ years after the action.

13 Officers

Henderson was one of 13 officers charged with whitewash as a result of that Pentagon investigation. None of the others was brought to trial, however. The division commander, Maj Gen. Samuel W. Koster, was stripped of one star and his assistant, Brig. Gen George H Young, was reprimanded. Some of the others still face administrative sanctions.

But with Medina's acquittal, the government closed the legal books on participants in the assault.

The men of Charlie Company who returned to civilian life are out of the Army's reach and no civilian court has jurisdiction The enlisted men who were charged but not brought to trial have been let out of the service And the statute of limitations has run out for any further coverup trials

In the 4½ months of Calley's trial at Ft. Benning, the story of My Lai became well known

Lt Col. Frank A Barker, commander of the task force named for him, briefed his company commanders the day before the assault. Co. Henderson, who had moved up from executive officer to brigade commander that day, was at the meeting and stressed aggressiveness.

Medina Innocent

war in other circumstances," the colonel said

"I think the general public will support the decision of this court"

Nelson, 40, of Eatonton, Ga., said he personally was convinced that Medina had no knowledge of the activities of Calley and the other soldiers at My Lai

"We all began this trial with the assumption that Capt Medina was innocent We were waiting for the government to convince us otherwise It did not do so

Proctor, 47 of Atlanta, issued a written statement to newsmen in which he said the jury had conscientiously striven to seek out the truth "We feel that justice has been done We the jury have done our job to the best of our ability"

The other jurors were Lt Col Bobby G Berryhill, 39, of Cochran, Ga., Maj. Dudley J Budrich, 37, of Chicago and Lt Col Clarence Cooke, 44 of Enterprise, Ala.

All the jurors had served in combat in either Vietnam, Korea or World War II.

Army officials at the Pentagon indicated disciplinary action still could be taken against Medina in the form of administrative punishment such as official censure or demotion in rank. But one officer said this is unlikely since Medina has indicated his intention to resign.

Medina was accused of the premeditated murder of a woman as she lay on a rice paddy outside My Lai He testified that he shot her when she moved because he thought she had a grenade

Other Charges

He also was accused of involuntary manslaughter in the death of 100 civilians during the operation and was charged with assaulting a Viet Cong suspect by twice firing a rifle over his head

The judge had instructed the jury that it could acquit on the assault charge if it determined that Medina's actions were "justifiable under the circumstances"

Medina s wife said afterward "I expected acquittal I saw it in the jury's faces"

Medina s lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, said "There wasn't much evidence against Capt Medina In the Calley case, you couldn't escape the evidence that he had murdered children and in my opinion, that's why they got him"

The infantry assault against My Lai was spearheaded by Calley's platoon, a unit of Medina's Charlie Company within the Americal Division

Calley, 28, was convicted of 22 murders at My Lai and was sentenced to life imprisonment. A reviewing authority reduced his sentence to 20 years. The case is still going through review channels

Medina was the fourth soldier to be acquitted of charges in the delayed aftermath of the search and destroy mission against the tiny Vietnamese hamlet, and the sixth to be court-martialed.

Lone Survivor of Mountain Trip Didn't Want to Die

EUGENE, Ore (AP) — "I just wanted to live. I kept thinking of home and my parents and all the people I love. I wouldn't allow myself to die"

But despite her efforts, two of Pamela Sullivan's companions perished while on a survival training exercise in the rugged Three Sisters Wilderness of Central Oregon early this month.

Pamela, 18, gave a written statement on her ordeal shortly after being rescued to officials of Outward Bound, sponsor of the exercise. The statement, released Wednesday, told of a harrowing struggle during the first week of September and of how Joyce Howden, 21, Fall Creek, Ore., and Lorene LaRhette, 17, of Sudbury, Mass., died of hypothermia—lowering of the body temperature—in the snow-covered Three Sisters Mountains.

Headed for Shelter

"Halfway up the ridge, Joyce could no longer make it," Pamela's statement said "We headed back for the shelter. Then couldn't find it We dropped our packs, took our sleeping bags and headed for trees. Joyce just couldn't make it. I pulled and pushed, but she couldn't get to the trees. Also, she was losing her sight and hearing and kept asking us where we were when we were only a few feet away.

"At this time Lorene went for help.

"I wrapped Joyce in all three wet sleeping bags and liners Then I layed over her with my poncho Shortly after this she began breathing hard, lost total awareness, went delirious and in about 10 minutes stopped breathing.

"I tried mouth to mouth resuscitation, but no good. After this I stayed around camp maybe five minutes, then I went after Lorene, following her tracks in the snow. I finally caught up with her about 6 p.m She had sacked out near a lake with her poncho on . . .

Into Trees

"We packed into some trees. Then I found out she had lost the map and compass . . . We huddled together trying to create warmth . Lorene kept saying she just couldn't move As we talked more, her speech kept getting slurred. I put my wool cap on her, layed myself on her and tried to keep her coherent.

"Her breath kept getting more labored. I kept getting her name in her ear but she didn't answer. Her eyes were wide open. After about two hours her breathing stopped altogether I tried artificial resuscitation and chest massage. It did no good.

"I used her body warmth and stayed there 'til Friday morning"

On Friday morning Pamela left Lorene's body in the snow and followed their tracks back to the original camp, arriving that afternoon.

"Now the weather was beautiful and clear," she said.

"I was very tired and cold so I took my clothes off and layed in the sun. The next day was Saturday (Sept. 4). I got some honey and ate it . . . I layed down to sleep . . . When I woke up Vern (Vern Bush; an Outward Bound instructor) found me and we hiked out."

Evaluating her companions' efforts, Pamela said:

In The Dark

"Joyce stayed pretty together She never got too depressed, but she never fully realized the situation . . ."

"Lorene was really scared and kept yelling: 'This — weather!' By Wednesday she was pretty depressed and stopped eating. By Thursday she was pretty much giving up.

"Me—I just wanted to live."

The three girls were a subgroup of 43 young women enrolled in Northwest Outward Bound, a Eugene-based school which trains young people in outdoor survival

Kidnaper Convicted

MONTREAL (AP) — Bernard Lortie, a 19-year-old French Canadian trade school dropout, was convicted Wednesday night of kidnaping Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte

Lortie still faces a charge of noncapital murder in the death of Laporte, who was found strangled a week after his abduction last fall

Paul Rose and Francis Simard, already serving life sentences for murdering the minister, will be tried on kidnaping charges Oct. 18. A fourth defendant, Jacques Rose, Paul's brother, goes on trial for murder Oct. 12.

All four belong to the outlawed Quebec Liberation Front—FLQ—which seeks to separate French-speaking Quebec from the rest of Canada.

Lortie took the verdict calmly Before the jury left for 3½ hours of deliberation, he told its members the verdict was unimportant. He said the only important thing was whether the jury favored the "liberation" of Quebec.

Lortie will be sentenced Nov. 22. He faces a possible life imprisonment

Drinking Water in Wisconsin Is Safe, Scientist Reports

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Mercury, arsenic, boron, cyanide and other trace elements are not threatening the safety of drinking water supplies in Wisconsin.

That was the conclusion expressed here Wednesday by Robert Baumeister, a scientist in the staff of the state Department of Natural Resources, on the basis of a survey made this year.

Baumeister presented an advance summary of the study at the 50th annual meeting of the Wisconsin Section of the American Water Works Association. About 400 persons attended the opening session of the three-day meeting at the Hotel Northland.

"Low concentrations of trace elements are distributed in waters throughout the state," Baumeister reported, "but they do not contain any appreciable quantities that would affect the water quality for the consumer."

DNR Samples

The DNR sampling, most of which was done in March and April, covered 53 ground water sources and 23 surface supplies. Baumeister said the detailed report will be published in the near future.

"All of the samples met the required standards," according to Baumeister.

He expressed some concern about shallow wells, however, stressing that they could be hazardous. The same point was made by C. L. R. Holt, of the U.S. Department of Interior. Holt cited wells in Door County which recently were found to be polluted by septic tanks

Though the water samples were declared safe, Baumeister stressed the need for caution and controls. He noted that the use of toxic chemicals, particularly by industry, has been increasing steadily the last 20 years.

Adverse Effects

"Chemicals eventually must be disposed of in one way or another, and they may have adverse effects on health, he said.

The DNR survey found that ammonia concentrations in raw water samples all were within the permissible criteria, but that some exceeded the officially desirable criteria.

Arsenic, boron, cadmium and chromium tests were run on the samples. None exceeded the proposed or existing criteria, according to Baumeister.

He said some tap water samples tasted of copper and there were stained plumbing fixtures. It wasn't due to the water supply, but to plumbing lines.

Due to the highly complicated procedure involved, only nine samples were tested for cyanide "None of them exceeded the mandatory standards," Baumeister reported.

Further Check

One sample exceeded the mandatory standard for lead Preliminary investigation indicated that the source was the mechanical installation, but a further check is being made.

"You have heard about the mercury problem, but a lot of mercury is found in nature. Fish that have been in museums for many years were found to contain residues of mercury, so it's nothing new," Baumeister continued

"The samples of drinking water supplies all had mercury concentrations considerably below the proposed standards."

Recent studies have shown concentrations of trace elements and chemicals in the bottom muds of rivers and lakes. Baumeister said there is no evidence now that they constitute a health problem.

Deep wells, properly installed, can be regarded as safe in most areas of the state, according to Holt He said the ground waters which are protected by layers of shale are naturally virtually immune from pollution.

"But an exception is the wells, particularly shallow wells, in stratified limestone areas," he warned. "Water can move very fast between limestone layers, and it can come from a great distance"

In some cases, Holt declared, it may be necessary to find another source of water supply. In other cases it may be possible to clean up the problem.

Democrats Draft Redistricting Plan to Their Advantage

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A Democrat-sponsored legislative reapportionment plan was unveiled in the statehouse Wednesday while Republicans, hard at work on their own redistricting proposals, murmured "gerrymander."

State Rep. Fred Kessler, D-Milwaukee, took the wraps off what he called a politically pragmatic plan that — by his own calculations — could be expected to give Democrats an inside track on 51 Assembly seats, compared with only 48 for the Republicans, based on past performance.

Features of the plan include:

— The reduction of the 100 seat Assembly to 99 seats to meet a requirement that none of the seats be split between any of the 33 Senate seats set up under court "one man, one vote" decisions.

New Assembly Seat

— Adds a new Assembly seat to the Green Bay area and throws incumbent Republican Lawrence Kafka of rural Denmark, who represents De Pere, into a district with Rep. Everett Bolle, D-Francis Creek.

— Pits four sets of Republican incumbents against each other, four sets of Democratic incumbents against each other, and four sets of incumbents of opposite parties against each other for Assembly seats.

— Creates 11 Assembly districts which do not currently contain an incumbent.

— Matches incumbent senators of opposing parties against each other in two districts, while creating two Senate districts in which no incumbent currently lives — Provide for less than a one per cent deviation from the statewire mathematical average district for all legislative seats, again to meet the U.S. Supreme Court's "one man, one vote" decisions.

Practical Politics

Kessler, chairman of the Assembly elections committee which will receive the bill, said the measure he cosponsored with Sen. Carl Thompson, D-Stoughton, is not a gerrymander, but that practical political considerations were contained in its drafting.

"There is no use in denying the fact that politics was involved in the drafting of these districts," said Kessler. "I suspect that I will hear charges that this is a gerrymander. But it is not. I don't regard it so. It fits the equal population rulings to an excellent degree. It is fair," he said.

His expectations were fulfilled.

"You can work a gerrymander within those percentages," said GOP State Rep. Byron Wackett of Watertown

"I've never seen such a deliberate gerrymander to knock off Republicans," said Sen Nile Soik, R-Whitefish Bay, who would be pitted against incumbent Sen. Mark Lipscomb, D-Milwaukee, in a district Soik claimed would reach from the Republican suburbs "all the way into the inner core in the city (of Milwaukee)."

Fox Valley Incumbents

Kessler said that his plan would strengthen most incumbents in the Fox Valley.

State Rep. James Sensenbrenner, R-Shorewood, the ranking Republican on Kessler's committee, refused comment on the Democratic plan, saying that he intends to unveil his own proposals for the minority within a few weeks.

Kessler, meanwhile, said that the Democratic party's congressional reapportionment plan will be submitted next week. Difficulties between incumbents of both parties on the redistricting of the state's congressional seats — due to a drop from 10 to nine next year and Gov. Patrick Lucey's hesitancy to split the Legislature early in reapportionment fights — have delayed both reapportionment plans until late into the session.

Courts May Decide

The lines forming between Republicans and Democrats in the legislature over both issues indicate that the courts again can be expected to be the final mapmakers of Wisconsin congressional and legislative districts.

Kessler, who is not forced to run against another incumbent in the plan which he drafted, said that his proposal also does away with the requirement that Wisconsin legislative districts not cross county lines. No towns are split in his proposal, however, and only two villages — Menomonee Falls and Fox Point — would be split between Assemby districts.

Kessler's proposal pits four set of Republican incumbent representatives against each other: William LaFave (Peshtigo) and Milton McDougal (Oconto Falls); William Schwefel (Oakfield) and Gordon Bradley (Oshkosh; Tommy Thompson (Elroy) and Bert Lewison (Viroqua); and Alan Robertson (Blair) and Robert Quackenbush (Sparta).

Democratic incumbents thrown into the same district are Lewis Mato (Fairchild) and Al Baldus (Menomonee); James Rutkowski (Hales Corners) and James Lynn (West Allis); Glen Butman and Gus Menos (both Milwaukee); and James Wahner and Paul Sicula (both Milwaukee).

Incumbents from opposite parties who must face each other, under Kessler's proposal, are Kafka and Bolle; Robert Thompson (D-Poynette) and Kenyon Giese (R-Sauk City); Thomas Hanson (D-Beaver Dam) and Esther Luckhardt (R-Horicon); and Virgil Roberts (D-Holman) and Gerald Grieder (R-LaCrosse).

Senators facing each other under the disputed Kessler proposal are Bruce Peloquin (D-Chippewa Falls) and Raymond Johnson (R-Eau Claire); and Lipscomb and Soik.

The new Green Bay area district would include the Allouez and Ashwaubenon area. Kessler said that his determination of the Democratic advantage over Republicans in his plan by the 51-48 margin was based on popular votes cast in the new districts in the last four gubernatorial elections.

Bomb Threat Fails To Halt Proceedings

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Chairman Joseph Swidler kept his cool Wednesday when a bomb threat was telephoned to the Public Service Commission building in the midst of a hearing on natural gas shortages

Swidler corralled the recording stenographer and invited all parties outside to the parking lot where he resumed the hearing in balmy sunshine.

About 30 minutes later, police said their search found no bomb and Swidler led the group back indoors.

Intruder From Woods Released Unharmed

MARION, Ind. (AP) — Police received a report of a loud, crashing noise Wednesday night, went to a Marion elementary school, discovered an intruder and forcibly ejected the guilty party—a deer

The animal had crashed through a plate glass window. It was taken to a nearby wooded area and released.

Lucey Lists Tax Reform Proposals That Would Help State Industries

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A potential tax break of $10 million or more annually is available in tax bills and revenue sharing reform proposals being studied by legislators, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey said Wednesday

The governor, addressing a businessmen's meeting, said tax cuts would be particularly beneficial to manufacturers engaged in interstate business.

Shared-revenue reform would help "prevent future loss of firms in many of our major metropolitan areas," he added

A package of proposals for property tax relief, sales tax credits and reform of the corporation apportionment formula was cited by the Democratic governor.

Helps Big Employers

"This tax break will benefit those companies providing the greatest amount of employment to Wisconsin citizens," he said.

A revenue reform measure which had been approved by the Democratic-controlled Assembly was rejected Wednesday 20-13 by the Republican-controlled Senate in Madison.

The measure, proposing to overhaul the 1911 system under which the state shares its tax revenue with cities, now goes to a legislative conference committee.

The state's business climate would be improved if legislators would adopt tax reforms and would approve tax plans contained in the 1971-73 budget proposal now under legislative debate, Lucey said.

A budget conference committee has suggested an income tax credit for sale taxes paid on fuel and electricity by manufacturers.

"This provision," Lucey said, would "reduce corporate taxes by approximately $2 million a year."

Reform of the corporate apportionment formula, involving a Wisconsin-taxed company doing business on a multistate level, also offers savings, Lucey said.

He called it "an estimated 20 per cent income tax reduction" for corporate income "for 85 per cent of Wisconsin companies doing out-of-state business."

The conference committee, he said, has suggested personal property tax relief to municipalities be increased 60 per cent more, an estimated annual saving of "approximately $6 million to Wisconsin corporations" which pay much of the tax.

Assembly Debates Use Of Food Preservatives

MADISON, Wis (AP) — The Wisconsin Assembly has gotten into a stew over sauerkraut and pickles.

The thubarb came during debate Wednesday on a bill which would permit the use of sulfurdioxide in canning pickles, and the use of benzoic acid or benzoates in pickled vegetables, pickles or sauerkraut.

Rep. David O. Malley, D-Waunakee, Agriculture Committee chairman, said removal of restrictions on the preservatives would bring Wisconsin into line with federal standards and standards of other states

"We're taking a step backward," Rep. Edward Nager, D-Madison, replied. "Information is coming to light daily that we may be poisoning ourselves slowly without knowing it by putting additives into our foods."

Nager said that in large amounts, substances that would be permitted under the bill are poisons.

"What we're really allowing here is legalized adulteration," Nager said.

Rep. George Volinaro, D-Kenosha, said preservatives only preserve the color and appearance of a product.

"Meat could be spoiled rotten but still have its natural color" with additives, he said.

After Nager unsuccessfully sought to have the bill sent to the Commerce and Consumers Affairs Committee, it was tabled.

Patriots' Pantry Will Help East Go South

By Lillian Mackesy POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

It's out! All 201 pages of it! "Patriots' Pantry" is its name and the cookbook represents hours and hours of work on the part of members and friends of Band Parents of Appleton High School-East. These are the grown-ups who are playing a vital part in the raising of money to send the 230 students in the school's marching band (and their chaperones) to the Orange Bowl Parade at year's end. Appleton High-East students will invade AHS-West territory this coming weekend in a door-to-door walk to sell the orange-covered cookbook. Another weekend trek will come later until the entire city has been covered — and we hope — conquered.

The book is worth it as a straightforward, wonderful cookbook, besides being a memento of the year AHS-East Patriots went south with enthusiastic bandman Tom Jacobs to appear in two parades with all the folks back home proudly watching them on television. The book is filled with favorite recipes, foolproof recipes and easy-to-make recipes that come direct from Appleton's family kitchens. Actually, they come from the kitchens of many Packer players, several government officials — even the White House and from the governor's home — as well as from AHS-East-backing relatives of the marching Patriots from all over the country.

The call went out first for recipes of Band Parent families, but soon the idea expanded to include certain VIPs and friends of the Band. The five-member cookbook committee has done yeoman service collecting, sorting and classifying the more than 800 recipes that came to their attention. These workers are Mrs. R. N. Johnson and Mrs. Robert Sawyers, co-chairmen, and their willing workers Mrs. Harley Rogers, Mrs. William Gleason and Mrs. Milton Schwandt. Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs helped wherever needed; the executive board of the Band Parents started planning their strategy for promoting the cookbook (including the preparation and eating of delicious foods from its recipes before each weekly session in various member's homes). Assistant Band Director Gordon Nelson went to work at his second talent of illustrating and produced the wacky but delightful Patriot Chef for the cookbook cover and all the designs for the different sections of the recipe collection. He was ably assisted by artist Pete Skutley.

In keeping with the musical theme, the recipe sections are aptly named. The appetizers have become the Prelude, salads are renamed Accompaniment; Theme is the name of the main course section and Pastorale are the vegetables, Sostenuto the bread and rolls. Naturally, Finale has been chosen for the desserts with miscellaneous recipes under the title of Potpourri. Encore is the last section, highlighting 70 recipes that fit into an Orange Bowl classification.

The recipes today are those tested and tasted at one of the recent planning sessions of the Band Parents at the home of cookbook co-chairman Mrs. R. N. Johnson. They're merely a sample of what's in print in "Patriots' Pantry."

Band Director Tom Jacobs and Mrs. Jacobs carry the chicken and Beef Burgundy to the serving buffet. "Patriots' Pantry" is dedicated to Bandmaster Jacobs because "his unique mixture of spice with sugar adds zest to and puts the frosting on the Cake of Life" for everyone concerned with the cookbook.

Beef Burgundy

(Green Bay Packer Mike McCoy)

2 pounds sirloin, cubed
2 tablespoons butter
1 can Golden Mushroom soup
¼ cup red cooking wine
10 small onions
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
⅛ teaspoon pepper
6 ounces wide egg noodles, cooked

Place meat in pan; brown in butter. Add remaining ingredients, except noodles. Cover pan; cook over low heat about one hour. Stir occasionally. Serve on top of cooked noodles in serving dish. Recipe makes four servings.

No-Peek Chicken

(Mrs. Edward Lutz)

1½ cup Minute Rice
6 chicken breasts
1 can cream mushroom soup
1 can cream celery soup
1 pkg. onion soup mix

Line baking pan or roaster with foil; grease. Place rice in first layer; cover with chicken. Mix mushroom and celery soup; pour over chicken and rice. Sprinkle onion soup mixture over chicken-rice; shake to mix well. Seal foil securely over top of ingredients. Bake in preheated, 300-degree oven for 2½ hours. GOOD!

Members of the Band Parents' executive committee have all the fun of tasting the meal — and thereby testing the recipes in the cookbook — as they dine informally together before their business meeting. From the left are Alvin Golz, Mrs. Golz, Fred Froehlich, Mrs. Froehlich, Robert Duthie at the far right and Mrs. Clarence Hoeft in the foreground.

Look-Listen Poll Begins In Green Bay Diocese

Family Listening will be the focus for the 1971 national volunteer Look-Listen Television Poll, according to Mrs. Robert Skarban, general chairman for diocesan participation for the Green Bay Diocesan Council of Catholic Women (DCCW). This year the organization is encouraging its members to invite families of other faiths to join them in their TV rating program.

Volunteer monitors in the 16 counties of the diocese will begin recording comments on the new programs Sept. 16 and will continue through Sept. 30.

Results will be tallied for the diocese and along with individual opinions, will be forwarded to the American Council for Better Broadcasts to be included in the national report. The report is distributed to sponsors, stations and individuals requesting it, to participating organizations, the Federal Communications Commission and pertinent Congressional committees.

Parish and inter-parochial society presidents picked up materials during the recent DCCW convention at Oneida. Included were poll cards for monitoring eight shows. Ten packets were given to each president or chairman.

Packets will be collected Oct. 1 within each parish and returned to the Deanery president or Look-Listen chairman.

Totals will be calculated when Deanery chairman and committee meets Oct. 8. These will be sent to Mrs. Skarban.

Results will be tallied and forwarded to Madison by Nov. 10 so that they can be included in the national report.

Cheddar Cheese Kitchen Magic

Keep an airtight container of shredded Cheddar cheese in the refrigerator to help work magic in the kitchen.

When it's right at hand you'll reach for it daily to sprinkle over hot cooked vegetables, casseroles, meat loaves or hamburgers.

When unexpected guests arrive, bring one cup of shredded Cheddar and half a stick of butter to room temperature. Blend in a mixing bowl, add a drop of Worcestershire sauce and there's an instant spread great on crackers.

For an even fancier appetizer, spread the cheese-butter mixture on rounds of party rye, then broil until the cheese melts. Top with a slice of pimiento stuffed olive.

Beefburgers

Top 'em; stuff 'em, sauce 'em, spice 'em or just season 'em and then eat 'em. These are a few varied treatments that can be given to beefburgers.

Smart Shopper's Recipe for Week

Homemade Tiffany Potato Chips tip the scale in reverse. Crisp and crunchy, with that unique baked Idaho potato flavor, they have fewer calories, wonderful food value and a lot more charm.

They can be used for a snack or to round out a meal. Besides, potatoes are "in" foods for plentifuls.

Make these healthful baked potato chips with a mixture of enriched cereal and wheat germ. Don't peel — for an important part of the goodness is in the skin of these well-washed beauties from Idaho.

Season them with any of the packaged dry sauce mixes — barbecue seasoning, taco mix, chili mix. Dip them in butter or beaten egg and roll them in sesame seeds or caraway. Shake them in a paper bag with dehydrated onion soup mix or any of the packaged coatings for meat, chicken or fish.

TIFFANY CHIPS

2 small Idaho potatoes
¼ cup butter, melted or 1 egg, beaten
1 cup enriched cereal flakes, crushed
2 tablespoons wheat germ
Parmesan cheese
Salt and pepper
Malt vinegar

Scrub potatoes. Cut each in half and slice halves into four or five wedges. Dip wedges in butter or beaten egg, then in crushed enriched cereal mixed with wheat germ. Place on baking sheet and sprinkle with cheese and salt and pepper. Bake at 400 degrees 20 to 25 minutes. Shake a little vinegar over potatoes.

For variation add: Sesame seeds, caraway seeds, packaged mixes, BBQ, Taco, Chili, Spaghetti, salad seasoning mix, dehydrated onion soup mix, garlic salt and paprika. Recipe makes 20 chips.

Diet Facts, Fancies Easy to Understand

How to Enjoy Eating without Committing Suicide by Charles D. Ewart. $2. Publishers: Nutrition Information Inc.

Charles D. Ewart, midwest advertising man in the field of food marketing for 20 years, has done a job for the homemaker that's been needed for a long time.

His small paper book of 71 pages is all about diet and nutrition, based on the premise that "whatever you eat and drink is your diet" and death by the knife and fork route is not impossible for anyone.

That's why he calls his detailed but palatable book "How to Enjoy Eating without Committing Suicide." He's taken the subject of nutrition and spelled it out with vigor, an immense knowledge by way of research and in a style that's easy to understand. He tells all about vitamins, minerals, proteins, carbohydrates, fats and water — the six nutrients required for a basic diet and consequent good health. He tells it all in a way that makes interesting reading, then rounds it out with complete charts (even these can be understood once the material is read).

Ewart

Losing weight is no problem, he says, nor is sustaining good health once a personal, complete diet is worked out the Ewart way. Here's a man that explains in specific terms what good nutrition really is and then applies it in specific terms.

All in one Place

Author Ewart doesn't pretend his material is new nor that it hasn't been written before. But he rightly contends that he's brought together facts and information on the subject of nutrition so that it's all of a piece and usable. He started researching and writing a few years back when he became involved in a nutrition study for a client. He simply became so personally interested that he kept on after his client's work was finished.

"You can design your own diet to fit your own needs, varied as they might be," he says. "Diet can be complete, and one to enjoy, even on a weight-losing program, he contends.

He seems to prove his point by showing the way and includes shopping attitudes gained through knowledge to increase consumer demand in the right places and at the right time. Labels and advertising will become more factual (and thereby more valuable) when manufacturers learn that this information is now very important in Mrs. Shopper's food selection.

"Ignore those products which do not contribute to health and there'll be some important changes made," he says.

The Ewart book is available in book stores and departments and several food markets in the Fox Cities.

Start With Ham, Create From There

For an appealing appetizer start with minced ham.

A spread of minced ham and cream cheese deliciously fills celery sticks or covers cheese crackers.

Your Problems

Animals Fill Void in Her Life

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I liked your answer to the lady who showed pictures of her dog when the women she worked with bragged about their children and passed around snapshots.

I have both children and pets, and I can tell you quite honestly that I've had more pleasure from my pets than I've had from my three sons. I have never demanded anything of my children, just hoped to raise them to be good citizens and independent. They are both. I am now in my 70's, live alone (wouldn't have it any other way) and I have two Yorkshire terriers and a Persian cat. The four of us get along beautifully. I am just as proud of their little shennanigans as I am of my sons' achievements — which are considerable. The terriers ("Malcom-the-Moose" and "Super-Star") have distinctive personalities. The cat ("Madame La Zonga") is a real aristocrat. They are wonderful company. I am never lonely.

I'm sure some of my neighbors think I am odd but I don't care. My pets fill a void in my life and I am not ashamed to admit it. — Your neighbor to the North

Dear Neighbor: Thank you for writing. I can't help but feel a little sad for the mother of three sons who must look to a cat and two terriers to fill the void in her life." I hope your sons are happy with their "achievements."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter from the big galoot who signed himself "Color Me Gone." I'm furious I can't see straight. My sister was married to a bully like that and I'm sure if she had shot him, no jury would have convicted her.

There are thousands — maybe millions—of women in this country who wish they could color themselves "Gone," especially after the brutes they are married to have colored them black and blue a few times. But it isn't so easy to pick up and leave a man when you have small children, no money, and no parents who will take you in. So these trapped, miserable women make the best of it.

"Color Me Gone" has a lot to say about his wife's excess weight and the fact that she is a bore and not up on things. He also criticizes her for not being a good sex partner. I wonder when he last brought her a little gift, a handful of flowers — told her she was important to him. Most men who criticize their wives for being slobs treat them like hired help. They save their company manners for some tramp who isn't fit to be in the same room with their wives.

If I sound like a bitter women, believe me I am not. My own husband is a wonderful man. He has made me feel wanted and loved. But my little sister's life has been hell because she married a rat. I've seen her change from a delightful, fun-loving girl into a sick old woman.

I hope you will print this letter, Ann. It will be a welcome change from the pro-male letters I have read so often in your column. — Chattanooga Reader

Dear Chat: Here's your letter. I agree that every story has two sides. Sometimes three.

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' booklet, answers some of the most frequently asked questions about weddings. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of your newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

World Champions

by IRA G. CORN JR., TEAM CAPTAIN

The qualifying rounds of the 1971 World Championships were dominated by France and The Aces. The order of finish after qualifying sessions was:

	Victory Points
The Aces	228
France	182
Australia	154
China	118
Brazil	103
North America II	98

Today's hands were played by France against China. See if you can improve on the actual results.

Question No. 1. You are South, both vulnerable, and hold:

♠ Q8642
♣ J642

What do you bid after? 9/23

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Dbl.	Pass	2 ♣
Pass	2 ♦	Pass	?

Answer: If you pass, two diamonds goes down 200 points. If you try to improve matters, they will undoubtedly get worse. The entire hand:

♥ AQ86
♦ AK8632
♣ A3

WEST
♠ AK1095
♦ 1075
♣ KQ10

♠ J3
♥ KJ1074
♦ Q4
♣ 9875

SOUTH
♠ Q8642
♥ 952
♣ J642

In the match, Pierre Jais of Paris decided to pass and North (Roger Trezel) managed only six tricks for down two, 200 points for China. When the Chinese held the North-South cards, South decided to improve matters by bidding two hearts over two diamonds. Unfortunately, North did not read the rescue attempt and bid game in hearts, doubled by East, resulting in 800 points for France and a good case against rescue bids.

Question No. 2. You are South, East-West vulnerable, and hold:

♥ A8742
♦ AKJ2
♣ 10872

What do you bid after? 9/23

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	Pass	?

Answer: If you bid one of your suits you lose a chance for a bundle. Double will yield a sizable penalty. The entire hand:

♠ AK10965
♥ K
♦ 1097
♣ K96

WEST
♠ J8742
♥ QJ3
♦ Q3
♣ AQJ

♠ Q3
♥ 10965
♦ 8654
♣ 543

♥ A8742
♣ 10872

In the match, Elmer Hsiao doubled with the South cards and North (Conrad Cheng) was happy to leave it in for penalties. Down three, 500 points for China. This wasn't enough, however, since the Chinese East in the other room found a frisky one-no-trump response to one spade. This postponed the doubling, but only for a while. The final contract was two no trump doubled, resulting in down five 900 points for France.

Pears Highlight Crisp With Twist

Pears are plentiful and of high quality this season, so it might be interesting to collect a few recipes.

Pear Crisp is an old fashioned recipe that always turns out and in this one Anjou of Bosc pears are used.

PEAR CRISP

4 cups diced pears
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
⅓ cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon flour

¼ cup melted butter
⅓ cup brown sugar
1½ cups crushed cornflakes

Toss diced pears with lemon juice, grated lemon peel, granulated sugar and flour. Blend well; turn into buttered baking dish.

Combine melted butter, brown sugar and cornflakes. Sprinkle over pears. Bake in preheated, 375-degree oven 30 minutes, or until pears are tender. Recipe makes six servings.

All the Right Ingredients Were There for University Merger

BY TIM WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The merger of Wisconsin's two university systems may be an idea whose time has finally come.

And if that is true, after 20 years of discussion in the backrooms of the higher education agencies of Wisconsin government, it is because, ironically, merger may be one of the lasting legacies of the man who dominated the state's higher education for the past decade and more: Fred Harvey Harrington.

The Senate passage of the merger proposal will send the bill to the Assembly, where approval by the Democrat-dominated house is expected without change. Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey has made the merger proposal one of the keystones of his legislative program this year, and his will be done.

The merger proposal calls for a two-year study of the advisability of the proposition by a committee made up of citizen appointees of Lucey, and regents of the two affected systems The reality of the situation is, however, that merger may become an unofficial fact long before that study is done and long before the two-year waiting period before central administrations can be merged is up.

The abrupt departure of Harrington from the University of Wisconsin presidency last year was in part a response to conflicts in Wisconsin's higher education which he had helped to trigger. But it also fit a final piece into the jigsaw series of events which has led to merger.

Harrington dominated his board of regents throughout his presidency, and held considerable sway over it before he ascended to that post. The selection of John Weaver of Missouri for the presidency of the UW was in part based on a line of thinking privately summed up by one current UW regent.

"Fred always ran his board of regents. We wanted someone we could run for a change."

But Weaver, almost a year after his selection as Harrington's successor, remains a question mark in terms of administrative power and clout in the rough and tumble of Wisconsin politics. His repeated turn-abouts on the merger question have left many in the statehouse and through Wisconsin convinced that he is far from certain to be the choice for president of a merged system, a post which Lucey once privately assured him.

Weaver, in fact, may not want to be president of any such merged system His acceptance of the UW presidency last fall had all the trappings of a man returning to the idyllic life of his boyhood, to the gentle, peaceful campus where his father once taught and where he studied as a lad.

The University of Wisconsin is now a different world.

And the merger proposition, dropped like a bombshell by Lucey on Weaver only a few weeks after his return to Madison, does not fit into that pastoral scene.

Harrington's powerful leadership of the UW regents played a large part in the final demise of the ill-fated Coordinating Council for Higher Education, in turn the miscarriage of another merger proposal 15 years ago. Citizen members of the unit, backed by usually weaker staff work than that which supported UW and state university regent representatives, finally lost the will to fight. The CCHE, in the words of one of its most articulate members, "committed suicide" as a result

These factors in turn have merged with another qualification which may cement merger into place in Wisconsin's framework of government State University Director Eugene R. McPhee must retire before next July, and no apparent successor is in sight The state university regents' hand-picked successor for McPhee, President Sam Gates of LaCrosse State University, left the scene when it appeared that any state university head would play second fiddle to Weaver in a merged system.

That means that a new director will be weeks or months in the finding, even if he comes from within the existing system, as is most likely. He'll be starting any merger race half a lap behind the rest of the pack

The leadership of higher weaker than it has been for a education in the state today is decade or more as a result.

Countering any pressures from within education to oppose merger will be similar pressures to speed the process along UW faculty leaders have spoken against the proposition, but state university faculties are for it They will be dubbed "UW" professors, a ranking title in higher education; their pay is likely to be boosted rapidly as a result of merger.

Those assets, once granted, are not likely to be taken away from an outspoken and increasingly militant interest group in state government. Government seldom moves in reverse.

Even if he wanted to, it is unlikely that any successor to McPhee could hold back such a mounting tide. And there are indications that the state university system may in fact be working on both sides of the merger question, despite the official position of the Board of Regents of State Universities against Lucey's merger plan.

Backers of the move say that McPhee's agents have been as helpful to them as to the opponents of the bill, unlike the UW troops around the legislature

All of these factors are built upon a 20 year foundation laid by the University of Wisconsin, and which the UW now finds indestructible.

Two decades ago there was a fight within the UW system to wipe away the infant two year center system. That fight was lost, and the system was expanded greatly, in large part to counter the growing political power of the state university system, which had campuses geographically spread through a sizable block of legislative districts.

That same battle was fought first with the acquisition of the Milwaukee campus, and then with the creation of the UW-Green Bay and Parkside schools. In those cases, and even down to the level of some two year center campuses, a large part of the backroom fighting was over the political power control of such campuses brought. Both systems wanted it.

In almost every instance, the UW won. And Harrington was intimately involved, leading the charge, almost every step of the way

But the unrecognized result has been that the UW has in so doing become almost exactly what the state university system is — a sprawling, statewide system of basic, undergraduate education And those advances made outside of Madison in graduate education have in large part been countered by similar advances in the state university system.

And so the UW has destroyed many of its own arguments against merger in the effort to counter the growth of the state university system.

The most powerful argument behind statehouse doors against merger has been that the UW, powerful now, might become even more powerful with the added backing of the political forces the state university system could bring into its tent through merger.

The countering contention is that higher education's power in the past came in part because battles were fought before they reached the legislature, at the weak CCHE level. The legislature, the argument goes, was limited in its control of education, in relation to the rest of government, because the compromise and self-interested decisions of the two systems were "sanitized" by the CCHE.

The merger and the removal of the CCHE escalates that process a notch in the governmental framework, the logic goes. The disputes that were once worked out between the systems are far more likely to reach the legislative floor and into the budget process And pressured, the argument continues, the remnants of the UW system are far more likely to move to protect the "crown-jewel" Madison campus and treat Milwaukee, Green Bay and Parkside on a par with the state universities, easing many of the complaints about the current structure of higher education in the state.

Lucey was able to win the battle because of all of those factors, and because he fit by chance and timing into a very necessary formula.

He is a Democrat: any merger move had to come in this era from a Democrat to counter the false but prevalent notion in Democratic Dane County, home of the Madison campus, that Republicans are "against" the UW while Democrats are "for" the campus.

He is the first governor to serve a four year term; that is vital to overcome any possible UW-Democratically linked backlash. He has strong control over one house of the legislature; that is necessary to counter a purely-partisan reaction by Republicans. And he linked merger to the budget; that is the most powerful weapon a chief executive has in his arsenal.

All of these factors fell into place at one particular moment in Wisconsin history, and Lucey seized the time.

Merger may indeed be an idea whose time has come.

Cautious Approval

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Spokesmen for the state's two university systems expressed cautious willingness Wednesday to work with an administrative merger plan approved by the state Senate.

Endorsement of merger hasn't been unanimous among college spokesmen. The Senate sent it on an 18-15 vote to the Assembly, where the Democratic majority was expected to provide swift approval.

The measure would promptly consolidate the University of Wisconsin's Board of Regents with that of the nine-college state universities system.

However, merger of the bulk of administrative operations would be delayed until perhaps 1973 UW regent Frank J. Pelisek said he wasn't entirely pleased with the postponement.

"I would have preferred, if merger were going to pass, to see a single system immediately created in order to provide some solutions to the many administrative problems," Pelisek said

Another UM regent, Dr Robert Dahlstrom of Manitowoc, remained opposed to virtually any type of administrative merger.

"It is very disappointing," he said, "that the Senate took the action because it means it is going to cost the taxpayers of the state of Wisconsin about $15 million more per year to support higher education."

Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey had listed merger as a major goal of his administration, saying it would reduce expenses by eliminating considerable top-level duplication.

The president of the state college system's Board of Regents, W. Roy Kopp, said the measure approved by the Senate seems as though it would be easier to effect than many of the other merger plans submitted since Lucey outlined his goal in January.

The governor's "initial bill would have been impossible to administer," he said, referring to a Lucey blueprint which the governor allowed legislators to modify.

Kopp said UW and the state universities system should not immediately discard all existing executive personnel because of a need for maintaining a good supervisory staff during transition.

He specifically mentioned Eugene McPhee, the college network's executive director who has spoken of retiring by July 1, 1972.

McPhee said merger has been inevitable, and "has always been a popular issue," having been suggested regularly in the legislature since 1893.

BY CAPPY DICK

An unusual photo display to make for your dresser top is shown in figures one and two. Attached to the top of an attractive cardboard box is a photograph of a friend or a magazine cutout of a movie star. This photo will lay flat on top of the box or stand upright, as you wish.

The picture is hinged to the box top and has a folding easel attached to its back. The box itself may be used to hold jewelry or handkerchiefs.

Attach the picture to a cardboard backing with rubber cement, then apply a frame of colored mending tape.

Apply another piece of mending tape to the back of the photo to serve as a hinge. Also make a cardboard easel and glue it to the back of the picture. The easel must fold up so the photo will lie flat on the box with the easel concealed as in figure two.

When you lift the picture, the easel should swing into position to hold it up.

SEND FOR CAPPY DICK'S HELPFUL BOOKLET!

Mothers! If you need new ideas to entertain your children's scout meetings and birthday parties, you'll find 45 of them in Cappy Dick's "Birthday Party Stunts" booklet. Action Raucous, Sexy In Two-Actor Comedy

'Owl and Pussycat' by Green Bay Theatre May Forecast Future Production Types

BY JAMES AUER
Post-Crescent Sunday Editor

GREEN BAY — What with production costs rising and the value of the dollar declining, we're likely to see more and more shows like "The Owl and the Pussycat".

The Bill Manhoff comedy, first of four attractions to be offered by the Green Bay Community Theater during its 1971-72 season, has two actors, one set and lots of raucous, sexy, often funny action.

As staged by Robert Lee Brault, the community theater's managing director, the show offers an evening of lively, if not precisely intellectually uplifting entertainment.

It has occasional moments of sheer hilarity, a few stretches of pure tedium and a general premise that is definitely not for prudes.

Two Actors

The "Owl" of the title is a would-be author who lives, amidst his pretensions and a rising pile of rejection slips, in a cluttered San Francisco bachelor apartment.

The "Pussycat" is a loud-mouthed "businesswoman" with principles ("I may be a prostitute. but I'm not promiscuous") who moves in with him after he's had her evicted from her own boudoir-workshop.

What follows is the anticipated blend of insult humor, sex (thankfully, offstage), misunderstandings, reconciliations and, ultimately, mutual self-acceptance.

Brault has kept the action moving with commendable briskness, and his hard-working cast had the lines and business well in hand at last Thursday's premiere.

If there was a weakness in this first o feight performances (the show resumes at 8:15 p.m. today, and continues through Sunday at CT Playhouse), it lay in the fact that some of the experiences and motivations of the characters seemed at this point, to be too far removed from those of the actors.

Casting Difficult

On Broadway, Manhoff's "Pussycat" was played by Diana Sands, a black actress whose supercharged felinity brought out the crowds. In films, Barbra Streisand impersonated the caterwauling, yet vulnerable, hooker, with similarly profitable results.

At Green Bay, the role has been assigned to pert Katie Vanden Heuvel, an apple-cheeked mother of two who, the program notes tell us, "enjoys bowling for relaxation".

Little wonder, then, that the otherwise experienced and attractive Katie has some trouble, especially at the outset, persuading us that she is a "model" who entertains men professionally for a living.

Really Gets Going

Once the proceedings are underway, however, and her initial stream of tough talk happily in the past, Katie loosens up and gives the role some rewarding dimensions, both emotionally and in terms of comedy. She is fortunate in having, as her opposite number, Brian T. Schmidlin, a young actor who not only looks the part of the stuffy intellectual, but seems to have a gut feeling for the character's contradictions and inner conflicts.

Schmidlin may not appear as sexy as the lines continually declare he is, but he has a winning way with a number of his scenes — in particular, the pantomime which precedes his various surrenders to her well-displayed charms.

The actors run through Manhoff's paces in a persuasive and workable setting, designed by the versatile Brault. Lighting and other technical credits are well up to par.

Shows to follow in the Green Bay Community Theater schedule are "Tea and Sympathy", Nov. 11-21; "Ladies in Retirement", Feb. 3-13, and "Plaza Suite", April 20-30.

Tickets for '72 Olympics On Sale Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans who want tickets to the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich will have a second chance starting Oct. 15.

Raimund Eberle, director of the Bavarian state press department, said 35,000 ticksts to individual Olympic events will be on sale to Americans from Oct. 15 through December.

Eberle, who came here to publicize the games, said 81,000 individual event tickets were sold earlier through the American Automobile Association, which has exclusive rights to Olympic ticket sales in the United States.

He said 5,000 hotel rooms already have been reserved by Americans who plan to attend the Aug. 26-Sept. 10 games. Eberle said 10,000 Americans are expected. They will be put up in accommodations in Munich and other towns within a 30-mile radius, including Garmisch, Stanberg, Murnau and Tegernsee.

News Officials Pick CBS Head For Recognition

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, will receive the Paul White Memorial Award for the most significant contribution to the advancement of broadcast journalism in 1971.

The Radio Television News Directors Association said Sunday it chose Stanton for his "courageous and determined efforts in defending the broadcast journalist's constitutional rights in the face of a proposed contempt of Congress citation, arising from the subpoenaing of nonbroadcast material used in preparation of the documentary, 'The Selling of the Pentagon.'"

Stanton, who also received the award in 1957, will receive the new citation at the association's International Conference Oct. 1 in Boston.

'Counselor' Offers Good Story Line

BY TV SCOUT

9-10 Channels 11-9 — Owen Marshall, Counselor at Law comes to grips with an intriguing case, and that means a good story. His client is a dedicated teacher (Michael Tolan) accused of molesting a girl pupil (Cindy Eilbacher). Both tell credible stories and a psychiatrist believes them both. Yet one must be lying and Marshall (Arthur Hill) must discover the truth.

7-8 Channel 11 — On Alias Smith and Jones, we watch as Hannibal Heyes (Pete Duel) does his ex-thing — robs a bank. He doesn't want to go back to his old criminal career, but he's forced to because the real robber (Jack Cassidy) is holding Heyes' partner (Ben Murphy) prisoner and will kill him if Heyes fails. But Heyes has something up his sleeve.

7-8 Channels 2-7 — Bearcats! is still outlandish, but this week's story is far better than the opening show. We're in World War I and the Kaiser has sent over some troops who masquerade as Yanks and try to foment war with Mexico. Our boys (Rod Taylor and Dennis Cole) use their charm, a primitive airplane and a masquerade as a German to foil the villains.

7-8 Channel 5 — The Flip Wilson Show, after its smash first show last week, doesn't quite achieve these heights this week, but still manages some good moments. George Gobel helps out on some sketches, and there's a cheerful bit when George and Flip, using makeshift instruments, sing and play "You Done Stomped On My Heart." Mahalia Jackson is also on the premises, but doesn't do anything beside a couple of gospel numbers, which is enough for her fans. Joan Rivers has another of her monologues about the problems of being married.

8-9 Channels 11-9 — On Longstreet, Mike (James Franciscus) continues his progress with his new handicap, blindness. This week, he learns to trust himself with a gun — and a killer. There's been a rash of robberies in the swank apartment, so Mike and Nikki (Marlyn Mason) become Millionaires, the cheese in a trap. The plot works, and Mike finds himself alone in the building's garage with the killer-robber.

8-9 Channel 5 — Nichols, the town, is taken over by a troop of Mexican bandits, so Nichols, the sheriff (James Garner) has to go to work. But all the bandit leader (Ricardo Montalban) wants is to get a new tooth from the town doctor (Stefan Gierasch). Nichols tries to preserve peace, but it's hard, as there are not heads on both sides.

9-10 Channel 5 — Carroll O'Connor, as Archie Bunker, drops in on The Dean Martin Show and, for a few minutes, cheerful sparks fly. O'Connor also appears in a skit with Ruth Buzzi and Martin, set in a colonial times — Martin is John Smith, Ruth is Pocahontas and O'Connor is an innkeeper with Bunkerish overtones.

Twiggy, Known Best as the slim and leggy British model, performs a dance sequence with co-star Christopher Cable in the movie musical of "The Boy Friend." The film is being made in London and it will mark Twiggy's debut in motion pictures. (AP Wirephoto)

Glad You Asked That

BY HY GARDNER

Q: How many husbands has Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton had? And who was the mysterious escort for whom she booked an extra seat at the London Airport for a flight to Los Angeles? — C. Watson, Cleveland.

A: No "mysterious escort," my dear Mr. Watson. She needed the extra seat to rest her feet. So that she could fully stretch out to rest a thigh bone fractured in a mishap. Miss Hutton had six ex's. In order of their apperance (and disappearance) they were: Prince Alexis Mdivani, Count Haugwitz-Reventlow, Cary Grant (the only husband who refused to accept alimony), Prince Igor Troubetzkoy, Porfirio Rubirosa, and the ex-tennis star Baron Gottfried von Cramm.

Q: Does Birch Bayh really relish being a Senator? — M.L. Duncan, Oakland.

A: Obviously. The Indiana senator told a reporter: "We have a saying in the Senate that one sure thing you can say about the seniority system is that the longer you are there the more you like it."

Q: Who said, "I'll always consider applause at the beginning of a lecture of manifestation of faith?" — A. McConnell, Pittsburgh.

A: Bishop Fulton J. Sheen. Who added: "If it comes in the middle, it is a sign of hope. And if it comes at the end, it is always charity."

Q: I saw Gladys Knight & The Pips at the Copa in New York and wondered where she came from to get that starring spot. Can you tell me? — Sybil Beckman, Great Neck, N.Y.

A: The vocal group which became famous for the record "Every Beat of My Heart" is a family affair. After Gladys won a Ted Mack's Amateur Hour, her mother, in Atlanta, encouraged her and her brother Merald to form the basis of the group. Then added two cousins, William Guest and Edward Patten.

Q: The last time I heard, the former middleweight champ, Mickey Walker, was running a saloon on Eighth Avenue in New York. Also trying his hand at painting. What's happened to him? — Walter W. Bloom, Omaha.

A: Known as "The Toy Bulldog," the colorful Mickey, now in his early 70s, is living in Elizabeth, N.J., and devoting all his time to painting. He's recognized as a fine artist and has given exhibitions from time to time.

Q: My brother, who's an engineer, insists the Empire State Building dwarfs any TV tower in the country. Is that story right? — Florence L., Farmingdale, N.Y.

A: That's a tall story, I'm afraid. The Empire State Building is 1,250 feet high. There are nine TV towers more than 50 per cent higher — in Tulsa, Okla., Sioux Falls, S.D., Monroe, La., Jackson, Miss., Cedar Rapids and Sioux City, Iowa, Eau Claire, Wis., Little Rock, Ark. The Big Daddy that towers over all of them belongs to KTHI-TV, Fargo, N.D., 2,063 feet — 813 feet higher than Manhattan's famous skymark.

Q: I heard that Johnny Cash's wife has written original nursery rhymes to read Johnny Jr. to sleep. Can I get a copy? — Mrs. N.P.D., Nashville.

A: You probably already have it in your own home. Because they're not original verses June Carter plans to use. She'll read passages from the Bible to him — when's he's old enough. 'Because," Mrs. Cash says, "it's up to parents to start their children off right and not expect others to do their job."

Q: I saw Mrs. Joe Kennedy on TV recently. What's her secret, at her age, for staying so slim and trim? — F. DeF., Norfolk.

A: Among other things, she credits her youthful lines to exercise. She walks three or four miles every day, plays golf regularly — and carries her own clubs! (A three wood, a five iron, and a putter.)

Q: Is it true that Rudolph Valentino was once confined to Ellis Island for traveling on a phony passport? — P.T.R., Omaha.

A: No. But he once did have a run-in with Immigration after returning from a trip abroad. A customs agent examined his luggage and did a double-take when he looked at Valentino's passport photo. He had sprouted chin whiskers and a black mustache while abroad and the inspector refused to believe it was the same man. He was held just long enough to sign his autograph for the cuspicious customs officer and his family.

Irate Reader Praises Goat's Milk for Health

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I just read your answers to cow milk problems. I am furious! Of all things, recommending soy bean milk to a person allergic to cow's milk.

Will you tell me why doctors go clear around goat's milk and put their patients on pills and every artificial device there is instead of goat's milk, the most clean, pure, perfect food God has given us?

We people who are truly

interested in the honest-to-goodness health of our human race have a constant battle because we are fighting doctors who would rather prescribe a pill or some artificial thing and keep the patient coming back when they could be drinking goat's milk and get well sooner and cheaper.

I am sorry but I must ask this: do you and how many other doctors have interest in soy bean factories? Our motto is help the high cost of medical care, drink goat's milk. Respectfully yours, M.H. and M.J., Bouquet Dairy Goat Ranch.

I'm mighty sorry to have made you so furious. It's bad for your blood pressure. And I have, you know, mentioned goat's milk at times as one answer when a person is sensitive to cows' milk.

And no, I don't have any stock in any "soy bean factories," and I will not argue with your statement that your interest in goats is purely for the health of the human race.

But I'll tell you why soy bean milk is recommended so often: because it's readily available in grocery stores. It's a vegetable product, remarkably high in protein. It certainly isn't "pills," and I wouldn't call it an "artificial device."

It is an excellent and useful substitute. I haven't said a thing against goats or their milk, and I trust that you'll not stay as angry as you sound.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 11 years old and very interested in becoming a pathologist. My mother is trying very hard to find someone I can contact for some information on this career.

There is a hospital near me that has volunteer candy-stripers (aids) which I am going to join when I am 14 to start my medical career. Could you help me find someone? — Miss J.F.

Seems to me the obvious source of some information would be a pathologist — and there must be one, or probably more, at the hospital you mention. Besides that, many state medical societies have pamphlets or brochures on careers related to medicine, so why not write to your state society?

Eleven may be a bit young to make up your mind definitely—but pathology is a demanding though fascinating and necessary specialty, so more power to you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you please explain what mononucleosis is? Is it contagious? — M.S.

Full name is infectious mononucleosis, quite common among young people, but it is also what is known as a self-limited disease. That is, there isn't any "cure" for it, but you get over it, just as you get over a cold. Only it takes longer, and you temporarily lose all your pep and my have sore, swollen glands.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have to stick to margarine to avoid cholesterol. To my wife it does not make any difference. My daughter, 12, has gotten so used to margarine that she doesn't like butter at all. She drinks a normal amount of milk daily. Are we depriving her of the benefit of butter? — P.C.

No. So don't worry about it.

Although cholesterol has been implicated in heart attacks and other circulatory troubles, it is also vital to human life. For this reason, Dr. Thosteson has entitled his booklet, "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly." For a copy write to him in care of The Post-Crescent, enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope.

Glad You Asked That!

BY HY GARDNER

Q: I hear there's another "government secret" being kept hush-hush. About the great number of Peace Corps volunteers who met death on active duty. Can you print the facts without risking the threat of jail? — Bernard B., Syracuse.

A: No risk involved. Director Joseph H. Blatchford of the Peace Corps doesn't hestitate to reveal the facts. "During the 10-year history of the Corps," he tells us, "there have been 85-deaths. The majority were caused by accidents involving motor vehicles. In addition, there were six drownings, and in the Peruvian earthquake of a year ago two volunteers were killed when their apartment building collapsed. There were also 14 deaths due to illness of various types, including malaria, meningitis, and heart failure. As tragic as these deaths are," Mr. Blatchford notes, "they do not represent an extraordinary percentage of our 50,000 volunteers . . . no greater than the death rate among the U.S. population at large."

Q: Steve Allen looks so strong and healthy. Is it true he suffers from asthma? — D.R.T, Denver.

A: Not unless he's around cigars or dogs. "The thing that would bother me most," Steve smiles, "would be a dog smoking a cigar."

Q: I've heard that the original couch Sigmund Freud used in the practice of psychoanalysis in his Vienna office was given to o neof his students — the late actor Peter Lorre. Can you track this down? — Constance H., Dallas.

A: Though Lorre ofte nreminisced with us about the brief time he spent studying with the father of psychoanalysis, he never mentioned anything about receiving any other gift than knowledge from Freud. The historic couch is prized by daughter Anna Frued, now practicing psychology in London.

Q: How many pizza pies are consumed annually in the U.S.? — M. Castalucci, Jamaica, N.Y.

A: Okay — I'll bite. About 1.6 billion.

Citizen Complaints Reveal Discontent With DNR Policies

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Brewing public discontent over the policies and management of the Department of Natural Resources surfaced Wednesday as state lawmakers questioned DNR board members for hours over citizen complaints regarding details of state conservation policy.

"There is no agency in the state of Wisconsin that is more controversial, or subject to more vilification than the Department of Natural Resources," said State Rep. Francis Byers, R-Marion.

Both the "monolithic" nature of the state agency and its duties in highly controversial areas combine to make the organization suspect in the eyes of many state citizens, Byers told DNR board members John Potter of Wisconsin Rapids, Roger Minahan of Milwaukee and Daniel Tyler of Phillips.

The accumulation of "vast powers in one agency" reinforces this suspicion, said Tyler "I wonder if it is good policy to vest enforcement powers, along with arrest and adjudication powers in one agency," he said.

Separate Duties

After a "clandestine" meeting with dissatisfied departmental wardens from throughout the state, Byers said, he led a group of legislators in drafting a bill which would separate those enforcement activities and grant them to the state Department of Justice.

"The role of the policeman is never a very popular one and in times like this it is unpopular," replied Tyler. "We do have responsibilities that we are bound to carry out. We are bound to step on toes, and there is bound to be dissatisfaction" with DNR activities because of the wide scope of its work, he said.

The department was aware of the meeting with the discontented wardens, but feels that there are many wardens elsewhere in state service who are not unhappy with changes brought by the Kellett reorganization of state government and with uniform state districting ordered by Govs Warren P Knowles and Patrick J. Lucey.

Potter said that that Kellett reorganization within the state has caused many of these complaints within the warden corps. Operational efficiencies require that wardens be put on problems of environmental protection in times of pollution trouble and that environmental specialists be used temporarily for warden's duties during times such as deer hunting season, said Potter.

Don't Like to Move

Some wardens are unhappy at being forced to transfer the location of their work because of the gubernatorial decisiors, but the department is doing as ordered, he said.

"The people who live in Black River Falls don't want to move to Eau Claire and the people who live in Oshkosh don't want to move to Green Bay. If you don't believe that, just ask Sen. Jack Steinhilber," said Potter of the complaints.

"But these are decisions by Mr. Voigt and his staff," said Potter of Natural Resources Secretary Lester P. Voigt. "They have to be worked out I think we'll be hearing rumbles for the next year or so, however."

The bulk of the complaints, however, fell into far more specific and localized categories, as lawmakers from the Assembly Natural Resources and Environmental Protection committees brought repeated citizen complaints to the board members.

Most centered on departmental policies affecting land purchase and sales, including the long-standing and controversial Kettle Moraine State Park development, and policies regarding water rights and use, including environmental protection.

Same Rules

Several suggested that the state agency is not requiring state agencies to abide by the same rules as private citizens and industry in the protection of the environment, and Rep. Terry Willkom, D-Chippewa Falls, criticized development of Lake Wissota State Park in his area of the state.

The park was placed in the midst of a residential area with high property values, he said.

The park was placed in the original ORAP bill 10 years ago by the Legislature as a "sweetener" required to win enough votes to pass the measure and the department had to develop it, replied Potter.

Decisions regarding the park were nevertheless made incorrectly, said Willkom. A fish spawning area in the lake was wiped out to create a sand beach, he said.

Any Pressure?

Rep. Edward Jackamonis, D-Milwaukee, questioned whether the department had fallen under the influence of the special

County's Taxes May Hold Line

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

With several big "ifs," Outagamie County Executive Alvin Woehler expressed optimism today that the county might be able to hold the 1972 tax rate to the present $4.75 per $1,000 equalized valuation.

Outagamie County will be working with its first executive budget in history for 1972. The budget schedule calls for Woehler to present his budget to the board at the October session. The executive budget will then be referred to the policy and finance committee for its review and recommendations before coming back to the entire board for action in November.

Woehler said that three major departmental budgets have not yet been submitted to him — social services, county health center and Golden Age Home — which could affect the total budget picture.

"I think we will be able to hold position at this point," Woehler said. He said the highway budget is about the same as this year's while the airport and parks budgets are down.

Social Services Review

A review of the social services budget is scheduled for Sept. 30, Woehler said, to give the new social services director, James Stampp, time to make his own review of the programs.

Two other factors which could have a major effect on the budget are the labor contract negotiations and state action involving medicaid.

Labor negotiations are a big question mark at this time, Woehler said. Because of the wage and price freeze, the board's personnel committee has been talking mainly working conditions with the unions and waiting for government action before talking money.

Woehler said he plans to ask Corporation Counsel William Schuh for an opinion on whether the county can set up its normal budget provision for salary increases in the event of a continued limitation on wages.

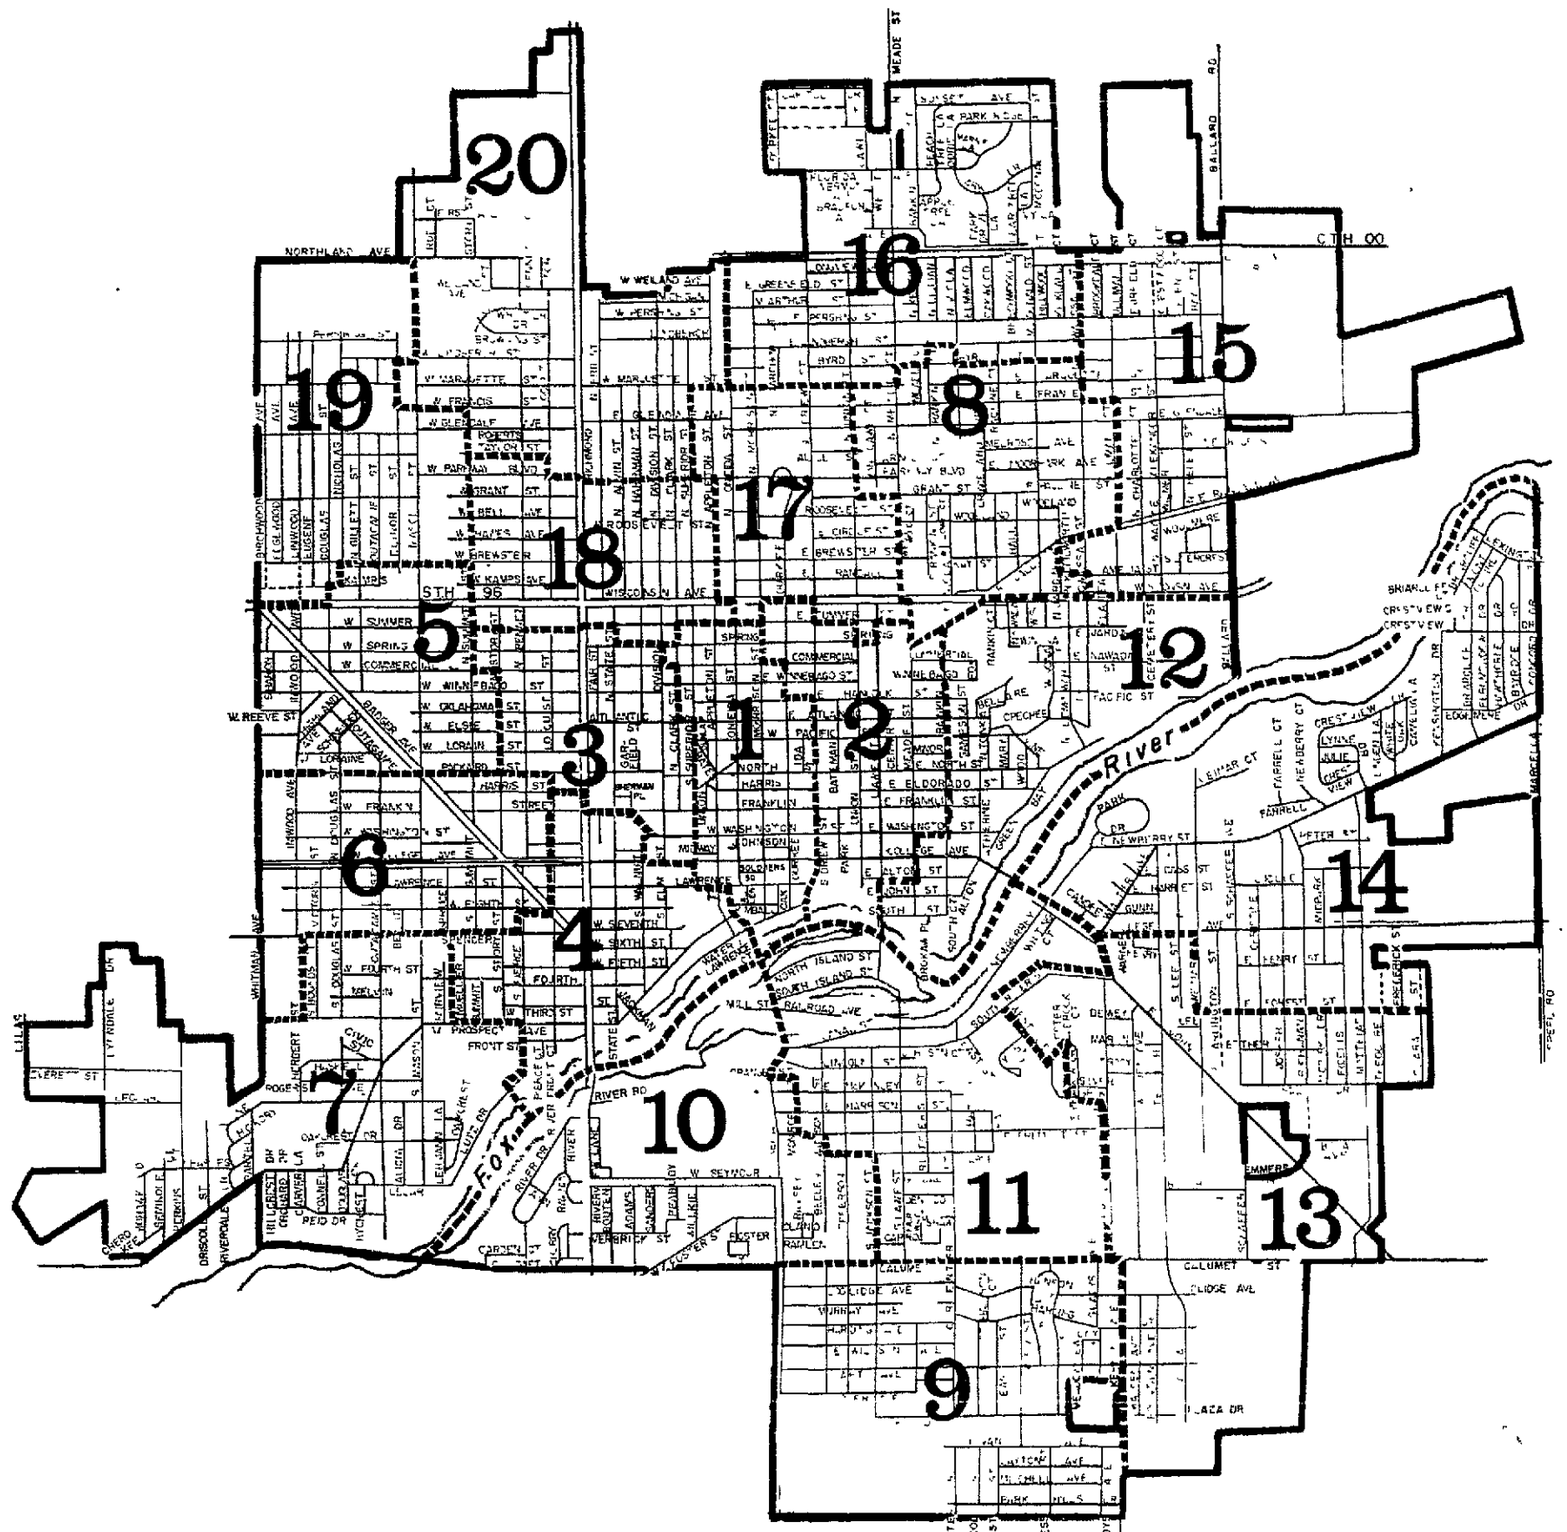
Lump Sum

Because contract negotiations frequently are still in progress when the budget is adopted, the county has been simply putting a lump sum of money in the budget to cover any salary increases for the coming year.

Woehler also indicated there is a possibility the state could cut back on medicaid benefits which would throw a bigger burden on the social services budget.

The county executive praised department heads for their cooperation in keeping budget requests to a minimum, particularly in the area of capital outlays.

He said he plans to have the completed budget ready for the Oct. 12 board meeting, but if it gets delayed he will ask authority to submit it directly to the policy and finance committee.



Boundaries of Appleton Wards would follow the broken lines shown on this map, according to a plan to be taken up by the City Council next month. Redistricting is required to meet one-man, one-vote requirements of the U.S. Supreme Court. The 1970 census, broken into population counts on a block-by-block basis, was used by Planning Director Jack Hetu to draw the map. Major changes from the present map include an increase of one ward on the south side and a corresponding north side decrease. The boundaries are vastly different from the present layout. Irregular lines are necessary, according to Hetu, in order to keep population in each ward as close as possible to a 2,813 average. (Post-Crescent Map)

Smith Speech

Liberal Arts Defended

The future of Lawrence University is flexible, but not in the sense that the university intends to shape itself to meet society's immediate needs, Lawrence President Thomas S. Smith said today.

Smith spoke at Lawrence's matriculation convocation before more than 1,000 students, faculty members and visitors on the first day of classes of the 1971-72 academic year.

"Lawrence can, has, and will continue to alter its stance and objectives to meet the changing expectatons of its students, alumni, friends, and the general public," Smith said. "These changes, however, will occur within the concept of the liberal arts program."

There have been and will continue to be pressures to move the university in additional directions of professional programs, of applied training, of an immediately marketable skill, the president said.

'Avoid Temptations'

"Small colleges that try to be all things to all people become so thin as to become superficial," the president warned. 'We must avoid the obviously exciting temptations that are so often pleaded so earnestly before us."

The president declared that society needs the unspecialized but liberally educated individual.

Those individuals, he said, "function in the most essential profession of all time, that of being the conscience and guide to a society whose very survival is being threatened."

"The United States is saturated with know-how people," he continued. "We know how to reach the moon, we know how to build more efficient automobiles . . . we know how to prolong life with miracle drugs and astounding surgical techniques . . . we know how to produce enough food for the population."

Liberal Arts Role

"These skills are terribly important to the human race, but what is more important than any of them, or all of them taken together, is the need to know why to do them."

"Men and women who have given much time and thought to understand not only how man stands in relation to man and to his environment but also why man stands so are required to say why certain skills should be exercised or not exercised in an attempt to improve man's condition."

President Smith declared that the role of the liberal arts college is not to solve immediate problems of society.

"These problems, particularly those of the environment, poverty amidst wealth, the inner-city, racism, to name a few, do need direct, head-on attack, and colleges should be providing an opportunity for direct involvement in their solutions, but it is not the role

New Welfare Chief Eyes New Policies

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

New employes in the Outagamie County Department of Social Services will be expected to live in the county and remain with the agency at least two years.

The new policies were outlined for the county's Board of Social Services today by James E. Stampp, who takes over as welfare director Monday. Friday is his last day as a supervisor in the Dane County Department of Social Services where he has worked the past 12 years.

Stampp said that while he knows he cannot make it legally mandatory that new welfare department employes live in the county and stay on the job two years, he will ask that it be done in the interest of loyalty. He said he intends to make every attempt to enforce the policies.

Employes who live outside the county can't properly serve or represent the people they are expected to work with, Stampp explained.

Several welfare agency employes presently live outside Outagamie County, he said, including one caseworker who recently was given permission to move to Oshkosh

Former welfare director Alfred R. Eggert, whom Stampp replaces, lived in Shawano County. He communted to Appleton.

The social services board voted unanimous support for Stampp's policies regarding residency and tenure.

Although it was not brought out today, personnel turnover has been one of the major problems of the county welfare agency in the past couple years.

The board authorized Stampp to fill two positions, that of case aide and clerk.

Stampp said the shortage of

Louis Marshall Completes Century of Caring

BY LILLIAN MACKESY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Appleton's Louis J. Marshall is celebrating his 100th birthday today. Remarkable as this achievement is in itself, there's more to this centenarian than mere years — much more.

The hundreds of birthday cards and personal greetings from friends and admirers attest this. So does the collection of handsomely framed citations, awards and plaques that decorate his bedroom at the Marshall home at 925 N. Leminwah St., where his wife still resides. They tell the story of his life as a humanitarian who cares about his fellow man, who is proud of his community and deeply interested in children and youth His interest shows in his long years of service in the organizations to which he belongs.

There's one citation that's missing from his wall at home. Simply because he took it along with him when he moved into quarters at the Oak Ridge Nursing Home on Midway Road. This is the award presented to him earlier this year by Rotary International during the time he was in a hospital.

Highest Honor

He was made a Paul Harris Fellow, the highest honor bestowed by Rotary and always presented for outstanding service to the organization. He has other Rotary citations for service during his long membership in the Appleton club. He was chairman of the student loan fund committee for 17 years, from 1924 to 1941. But the Paul Harris Fellow award is treasured because not many men own this one.

He has been honored by the Elks and is a life member of Appleton Lodge, No. 337. He is one of the original members of Butte des Morts Golf Club, the last living charter member of Appleton Rotary Club and a 65-year member of United Commercial Travelers, which he served both as president and treasurer. He has the distinctive honor of being the oldest Mason in Wisconsin.

It was during his longtime membership in Waverly Lodge 51, Free and Accepted Masons, that he became interested in the Shrine organization and its work with children. When he became a member of the Shriners, he swung into years of enthusiastic service for their hospitals for crippled children: he has several citations for this work.

Interest in Boy Scouts

Today, from his bedroom window on his good days, Mr. Marshall watches with keen interest the happeinings at the new Boy Scout office on Midway Road. He was one of the men who started the Boy Scout movement in Appleton.

Mr. Marshall is a member of Zion Congregation and was its president for many years. He also has been active in B'nai B'rith, Jewish men's organization. One of his greatest interests was in Zion Cemetery, keeping it beautified and orderly; this program was important to him.

Among his most treasured mementos is a plaque and clock from the First National Bank of Appleton, noting that 1971 is the centennial year for both the bank and himself. Another that came this week is a birthday greeting from the top man in Social Security, Commissioner Robert Ball of the Baltimore office. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall have been

Park Name Still Being Sought

The Appleton Park and Recreation Commisson still is looking for a permanent name for Langedye Park, now in the early stages of development on the northside.

The commission has received only three suggestions after an earlier appeal to the public for ideas. And Mayor George Buckley offered a fourth Tuesday during a commisson meeting.

He offered the name of "one of the great civic leaders of Appleton — Walter Rugland" Buckley said the president of Aid Association for Lutherans has made "great contributions" to the city.

No audible reaction to the proposal came from the commission, which discussed forming a special committee to pick a name, then decide to leave it up to the news media to spread word that ideas still are being sought.

Commissioner William Heerman offered his opinion on past practices in naming both parks and schools.

Some parks bear the names of civic clubs that have contributed to their development, but Heerman said that is "a corny, parochial way of doing things." He also said he disapproves naming schools after directions — such as East and West, the city's two high schools.

Langedyke presently bears the name of the owner who sold the 106-acre tract to the city. By seeking a new name, officials indicated disapproval of naming parks after former owners.

Recreation Director Lloyd Koehnke said efforts to install baseball diamonds at Langedyke and making progress, with about half the sod for one outfield in place and with light poles ready for installation.

Fence and a backstop from the former Lynndale Park diamond have been moved to the new site, and Koehnke said he expects the grass seed for the three remaining diamonds in the complex of four to be sown this fall. But he said sod is running short for the first diamond, and he hopes to collect more from Lynndale or another source.

Firemen Injured Fighting Blaze

A lieutenant was hospitalized and two other members of the Appleton Fire Department injured while fighting an early morning fire at the Korth Upholstery Shop, 214 N Morrison St. today

Lt. Lloyd Eisner was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital after he experienced difficulty breathing from smoke inhalation. Deputy Chief Harold Kramer was treated at the scene after he stepped on a nail and fireman Tom Corbett sustained a cut on his hand, apparently from broken glass

The call was received at 12:16 a m and firemen found the entire structure in flames when they arrived

They remained on the scene for two hours fighting the fire, which spread to an adjacent building owned by Everett Sell. The fire burned through the roof of this building before it was stopped

Sell lives in the apartment above the upholstery company and originally reported the fire He told fire officials that he could see the flames breaking out of the structure.

Firemen were called back to the scene at 3 a m. when it was noted that bins of materials were still smouldering. They remained about 45 minutes

DNR Refuses Permit For Sewage Bypass

NEENAH — The State Department of Natural Resources has turned down the city's second attempt to get permission to install bypassing equipment at the Lake Edge Park sewage lump station.

The move was proposed by Wayne Bryan, director of public works, to alleviate flooding conditions on the city's southeast side on an interim basis until larger sewer lines could be built

However, in a letter dated Monday, Robert M Krill, DNR municipal wastewater section chief, said, "We cannot condone the installation of an automatic bypass in the Lake Edge Park lift station "

'False Sense'

"To provide an automatic bypass at this time might lull the city into a false sense of security with regard to this Department's policy on elimination of all bypasses, "Krill wrote.

Krill, back in June, asked the city if it was in a position to prohibit additional residential development in the area, if he would approve the bypass

The city, however, argued that since the bypass would only be a temporary measure to alleviate the flooding conditions, it should get permission to install the $6,000 bypass equipment.

Krill, in explaining his thumbs down policy on bypassing said, "It appears the major problem associates with flooding the station and of tributary basements in the downstream sewer capacity.

"The fact that the city council would continue to permit development of the tributary area can only increase the number of times and the amount of sewage bypassed." Krill said

Bryan, after introducing Krill's letter to the public works committee, said. 'It appears we have three alternatives forget about the bypass, negotiate with the DNR on it, or install it anyway and see what happens "

The committee, a bit weary of installing it and then having it ordered removed, decided to have Bryan try his hand at negotiating

Mayor Roman V Hauser said, "I believe that further negotiations are in order

Ald Walter "Doc" Loehning agreed, adding, "You know how to negotiate, Wayne "

Bryan answered. "I'm not accustomed to negotiating from a weakness, and we're kind of weak on this one "

Illegal Bypasses

Ald Robert Troyer, who has been pushing for the bypass agreed with the negotiations approach, pointing out that "if they won't let us install this one, then maybe all the bypasses we have on the other stations are illegal too "

The alternative suggested by Krill to complete installation of the beefed up sewer to serve the area would cost about $500,000. according to Bryan

Troyer suggested another alternative ' The pumps there are too big The problem could be alleviated by installing smaller pumps" and not overloading the sewers downstream

Kaukauna School Transportation

Irate Parents Ask Additional Busing

KAUKAUNA — The board of education listened to parents plead for bus transportation for their children even though they lived less than two miles from the schools for over two hours Wednesday, but failed to change its decision on limiting the transportation.

Over 35 persons, mostly mothers, appeared at the hearing to plead on the basis of a statement by Outagamie County Sheriff Calvin Spice that their children live in a hazardous traffic area

Most of those present live on State 55, north or south of the city There are no sidewalks, so children must walk on shoulders of roadways

Many mothers warned of the danger to youngsters, especially the smaller ones They pointed out that they reside only about 1 8 or 1.9 miles from school.

Others claimed buses pass their houses with empty seats and could stop to pick up additional passengers.

Earlier this month the board ruled that persons living less than two miles from the school who want to have a child ride a bus must pay a $2 per week fee to the bus company.

No Money

Board members argued that if the two-mile rule were relaxed, it would open the door to a flood of busing requests which could make the transportation portion of the annual budget unrealistic.

School board members pointed out that money for additional student busing is not available in the budget But some irate citizens responded, "We pay taxes, too, and should get something for it."

Board Chairman Mrs. Carl Chopin attempted to keep the meeting orderly, but she had difficulty as the audience muttered complaints and interrupted board members who attempted to answer questions.

A bus company representative explained how buses are chartered by the school district and described the difficulty in meeting schedules and satisfying the many individual demands.

Residents talked of dangers on the State 55 and U.S. 41 underpass, the railway crossing and County Trunk OO. One woman who lived within the two-mile limit, stated, "If my children were black you would provide buses," to which the audience responded with assent

Others claimed the board "had no feelings" and was 'more concerned with the dollar than with the lives of children." School board members provided figures showing the district must pay $80 per year to bus a student. Cost figures for the past several years showed how the cost is increasing.

They suggested a change in the state law whereby the district could receive additional state aid, or a change in the mileage limit under which state aid could be received. But one parent answered, "that bunch down at Madison are throwing too much of our money away now."

None of the audience appeared willing to pay individually for bus transportation, feeling the school district was obligated. Two families warned, "my children will not attend school unless a court order is given if bus transportation is not provided."

Children at Home

One admitted having kept her children home the past few days and warned she would continue to do so. Board members learned one of her youngsters was physically handicapped and thereby, might qualify. When informed of this she replied, "I have four others going to school and if one gets bus transportation, they all do or all stay home."

Others claimed the board was discriminating. They suggested that board members walk the routes to see just how hazardous it is, before a decision is made.

Town of Vandenbroek Chairman George Spierings opened the talks by pointing out the hazards, and at the conclusion of the hearing requested board members to look further into the matter. Crossing guards were suggested as an answer, but Spierings felt this was not enough.

Board members attempted to point out that they sympathized with the situation, but many parents were heard at the conclusion of the meeting, "the board had this cooked and done and there was no sense in our wasting our time by coming here."

Courts May Favor Schools

NEENAH — The pendulum may be beginning to swing back a little in favor of decisions made by school officials, Alvin Long, Shattuck High School principal, told members of the Neenah Kiwanis Club Wednesday noon.

In the past several years, the courts have generally been backing student rights — such as on dress codes and due process — making it more difficult for some school rules to hold up.

But this may be changing, Long said. For example, in the last couple weeks the local court has sentenced or fined students for loitering in the school's parking lot.

These are not students merely walking through the lot, but those who refuse to leave (not Shattuck High students) or who keep coming back, and, as Long said, are "downright nuisances."

"This (court backing) is the kind of thing we need," Long said.

"I believe young people should have rights, but responsibility should go with the rights," he said.

Neenah May Get $34,400 for Streets

NEENAH — Through a new federal program the city, with 50 per cent funding from the government, could construct $70,800 worth of streets during the next two years.

Called FAU (Federal aid urban) in the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1970, the city has been allotted $17,700 for each of the next two years to offset costs of rebuilding major thoroughfares within the city limits

Until now, the only aid the city was eligible for was FAS (federal aid secondary) which was administered by the Winnebago County Highway Commission, and pointed more to rural areas than urban.

'Vast Potential'

Wayne Bryan, public works director, sees the new program as offering "vast potential" to urban areas to assist in street reconstruction.

Although he isn't sure where Neenah will be spending the money over the next two years, he said that the Smith-Torrey-Columbian link in the one-way system, and Oak Street, north of Washington would be likely candidates for the money

To some extent, the FAU system is tied into the TOPICS program which the city has been involved in for the past two years. TOPICS, however is aimed specifically at improving capacity and safety.

FAU, on the other hand, would be pointed to major traffic carriers within the city limits. However, before any cash is sent to the city coffers, the public works department would have to design and submit a federal-aid urban system earmarking each street.

The system, according to the program, "shall be so located as to serve the major centers of activity and designed taking into consideration the highest traffic volume corridors."

However, any street on the FAU system cannot be a route on any other federal aid system, which would rule out the FAS corridors.

According to Bryan, the money which is being released under the new program, is available because the interstate system is nearing completion.

The schedule calls for interstate completion within the next five years, which would release vast sums of money, now going for interstate construction, for the FAU systems

Indian Trust Head Blasts Lawsuits

NEOPIT — The chairman of the Menominee Common Stock and Voting Trust, George Kenote, has sent the Wisconsin Judicare Board a stinging criticism on the Judicare program's director, Joseph Preloznik, Madison.

In the letter and an accompanying copy of a lengthy complaint to the federal Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), Kenote said Preloznik has "engaged in an attack on the efforts of the leaders of the Menominee people to improve the economic conditions of their people" during the past year.

Under Preloznik, Judicare has filed six lawsuits against Menominee Enterprises, Inc. The suits were filed on bhealf of Menominees called DRUMS (Determination of Rights and Unity for Menominee Stockholders), who object to policies of Menominee Enterprises, the corporation that holds Menominee land and timber resources in Menominee County. Kenote said all six suits have been dismissed and Judicare has filed appeals, some of which are still pending.

Kenote described the suits as "frivolous and facetious" and added, "It appears to me absolutely incongruous and ironic that a so-called anti-poverty agency . . . is working to wreck a tribal and state approved development program designed specifically to help overcome the poverty situation in Menominee County."

He expressed the hope the appeals will be dropped, saying for a small corporation like Enterprises, "this continual litigation is a burden that it should not have to bear."

Judicare is operated with OEO funds, and the state board sets the scope of the Wisconsin program's activities. Kenote's letter was prompted, he said, by reports in a Milwaukee newspaper on testimony before the board recently by DRUMS spokesmen who urged continuing services to their group.

Eliminating the services has come under consideration due to possible OEO fund cutbacks.

Land at Issue

A central issue in the rivalry between DRUMS and Enterprises is the Menominee corporation's partnership in the Legend Lake artificial lake development project at Keshena.

Former reservation land is being sold to non-Indians for vacation and retirement homes, in an effort Enterprises says is the county's best hope of building a diversified tax base and relieving Enterprises of its present 63 per cent county property tax burden.

Kenote said Preloznik has acted "as a self-styled political leader more than as an attorney. He has shown a lack of good judgement and self-restraint."

He added that the attorney "has caused a tremendous economic loss to the county at a time when the county can ill afford it." Enterprises maintains that Legend Lakes property sales have been disrupted by the DRUMS lawsuits and demonstrations by the organization at the lake sales office.

Kenote said Preloznik apparently has "decided to cut back on helping poor people solve their domestic problems so that he can continue his more glamorous crusade for DRUMS." If the board permits this, he said, "you will be betraying Judicare's supposed goals of helping poor people."

Testimony Given

The report mailed with the letter is a copy of one sent to the national OEO director, Frank Carlucci. Enterprises officials were in Washington in May to testify on legislation affecting the Menominees and to express their displeasure with Judicare to federal officials in the program.

Preloznik declined to comment on Kenote's letter, which was also made available to the news media. He said it would be improper to discuss pending litigation he is handling for a client, and added he refuses to engage in "an attack personally" on individuals.

Local Street Projects to Get Federal Funds

Four Fox Valley cities have been notified that they are eligible for a total of $164,200 in federal funds during the next two years for upgrading local streets, with the provision that they come up with equal funds of their own.

The funds are to build the Federal Aid Urban System established under the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1970.

The aim of the program is to upgrade major traffic arteries in urban areas. Only streets that are off existing federal-aid highway systems are eligible for upgrading under the program.

According to the Green Bay district office of the State Highway Commission, the following valley communities are eligible, with the amounts listed set aside for each of the next two years:

Appleton, $44,200 per year; Neenah, $17,700 per year; Menasha, $11,500 per year; Kaukauna, $8,700 per year. Oshkosh is eligible for $41,200 per year and Green Bay for $67,900 per year.

Wisconsin has been allocated a total of $1,631,500 for each of the two years, out of a total federal fund of $100 million per year.

Officials in each community must lay out routes to be placed on the urban street system, with each route required to connect to an existing federal-aid route. The locally-proposed routes must then meet state and federal approval before projects are approved.

The funds are available for fiscal year 1972 and 1973, ending July 1, 1973. Fiscal 1972 began July 1 this year.

According to terms of the federal act, the new system is to be located to serve major centers of activity and designed to take in highest-volume traffic arteries and routes used for longest trips by vehicles crossing the urban area.

The funds are reserved for urbanized areas with populations of 50,000 or more. There are nine such areas in Wisconsin, according to the Highway Commission.

The primary emphasis of the program, a commission spokesman said, is expected to be upon upgrading existing streets, although establishment of new thoroughfares is a possibility.

Local communities are at present beginning to carry out projects under a similar federal matching-fund program called TOPICS (Traffic Operations Program to Improve Convenience and Safety.)

The difference between TOPICS and the urban system is that TOPICS is primarily for "spot" projects such as intersection improvements and installation of traffic controls, while the urban system may include significant stretches of street construction.

The first-year funds are immediately available for use, as soon as local and state officials establish plans for the new systems in each municipality. Under some conditions, funds set aside for use in the second year of the program may be received in the first year, according to E. E. Gehrmann, highway commission secretary.

Family Business

There's also the business and family story of Louis Marshall. He was a successful businessman, connected with the Marshall Paper Co from 1901 until he sold the business and retired in 1942. By that time he was president and treasurer of the family firm.

He was born in De Pere in 1871, the son of Simon and Rose Strauss Marshall. He was educated in De Pere and Green Bay, attending a business college in the latter city in order to help his father in the business side of operating a general store. When his parents came to Appleton in 1890, his father went into the grain, flour and wool business. In 1893, young Louis was sent to Syracuse, N. Y., to work with his uncle in a similar field, only specializing in hides, wool and leather.

By 1901, brothers Samuel and Harry already had established the wholesale paper merchandising firm. This was the year Louis joined them. A sister, Irene, was married to M. F. Levy and lived with her husband in Chicago. Another brother, Dr. Victor Marshall, had an established medical practice in Appleton and in those years was helping the new St. Elizabeth Hospital get under way.

69th Anniversary

The family was well acquainted with Appleton long before they moved here because they were members of the Zion Congregation in the 1880s and attended services at the synagogue on Durkee Street. The girl Louis Marshall married, Miss Elsie Hammel, of Appleton, was someone he knew since they were children (he was 13 and she was only 2 when they met). Their wedding day was Sept. 10, 1902. They marked their 69th anniversary this month.

The Marshalls had three children — their well-known doctor son Dr. Fred S. Marshall, an orthopedic surgeon who died in 1965, and two daughters, Mrs. Arthur Kovacs of Milwaukee, and Mrs. E. Leon Foreman, Redlands, Calif. Two more generations are represented in their six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

All of which proves a century is a long time in one man's life, but Louis J. Marshall has more than made his mark in its span. Maybe many will remember him best as the man who always had the gift of a paper-wrapped piece of hard candy in his pocket, a friendly gesture that became his trademark, but he will be remembered.

case aides is one of his most pressing immediate concerns. He termed "deplorable" the 11-month caseload lag in one area of medical assistance.

Stampp told the board he "absolutely will not compromise quality" in hiring departmental personnel. He said he intends to "hire the best people available."

He added, "I will let the positions go unfilled rather than put in people of poor quality."

In other business today, the board heard from Kenneth Gibson who, with his brother, Keith, founded Honeyrock, a preschool and day care center opening Oct. 4 in St. Joseph Grade School, and Mrs. Ray Rundt, a member of the advisory committee of North Side Day Care Center, 3310 N Durkee St.

Gibson and Mrs. Rundt asked the county to consider making arrangements whereby children of working welfare mothers or welfare mothers receiving job training can receive services at the new day care facilities.

The county is now providing babysitting funds, totaling nearly $50,000 annually, for the welfare mothers, the board was told by Martin Downs, member of a recently-named welfare advisory committee.

Supv. L.O. Woodard of Appleton, social services board chairman, suggested that officials of both day care centers work through Stampp on their proposals. Final action would come through the board.

Lawrence President Defends Liberal Arts

The president said colleges must be informed of questions and approaches to their solutions but, more importantly, "we should have a firm grasp as to why the problems exist and why they must be solved. A clear analysis of the problem with some insight into the relation of its continuation or solution to seeming unrelated causes and effects must be made before action is initiated."

Dr. Smith acknowledged that anyone who doesn't "dirty his hands with a problem, but instead seeks to understand it, to articulate it, and then to propose general and reasonable solutions- risks being labeled a useless intellectual."

"Today we are experiencing a rising wave of anti-intellectualism that is more extensive than in the 1930's, when it was enjoyed primarily by blue collar workers and was promoted as much by the depression as by any other single factor.

"More recently, anti-intellectualism has taken a giant social stratum leap into the level of the white-collar worker and indeed to the very desk of the administrator and the executive."

The president said two factors seemed to account for the rising anti-intellectualism. "The first is widespread and has to do with the feeling that the universities of the country have failed to solve the nation's problems, and many problems have not only not been solved but have grown."

"This is unfair because many outstanding successes in solving problems in many areas and the partial solutions in other areas have been accomplished by the efforts of the people in and the graduates of our colleges and universities."

The second factor, according to Dr. Smith, stems from what he referred to as the "Harvard Business School Syndrofe."

During the 1960's when this country experienced serious manpower shortages, the degree was often considered more important than ability, the president explained. When it was belatedly discovered that having a degree was not the same thing as being educated, a negative reaction set in, according to the president.

"It isn't only the graduate who holds a degree from the Harvard Business School or any other specialized degree who has been a victim of the Harvard Business School Syndrome," the president said. "The same happens to the liberal arts graduate who fails to learn the art and love of learning and thus stops learning before he becomes really useful to his time."

interest groups it was created to regulate, including outdoorsmen and industry. What pressures from special interests are felt by board members, he asked?

"It's surprising, but there are many less pressures from special interest groups than I expected," said Potter. Most of the pressures we get from special interest groups are from the environmental groups," he said.

"The main pressure on the board is from people who are pro-environment and who want more restrictive management," he added. Little is felt from groups such as the Wisconsin Manufacturers' Association or the Pulp and Sulfite League in the paper industry, said Potter.

"Pressure is what you use when you are on the outside," said Jackamonis. "If you are already on the inside, you don't have to use it."

The hearing was to be continued Thursday.

K-C Chairman Is Director Of Paper Unit

Guy Minard, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Kimberly-Clark Corp., Neenah, has been re-elected as a director of the paper group of the American Paper Institute.

The election was this week at the institute's annual meeting. The term is one year, according to bylaws which also provide for 15 directors each on the paperboard group and the paper group, and two for the pulp and raw materials group.

Others re-elected in the paper group were John H. DeVitt, board chairman of Hammermill Paper Co., Erie, Pa.-based parent of Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co., Kaukauna, and Charles N. Egan, board chairman of Shawano Paper Mills, Green Bay.

Elected to the paperboard group was William S. Woodside, senior vice president and group executive for packaging, American Can Co., Greenwich, Conn.

Robert Pamplin, board chairman and president of Georgia-Pacific Corp., Portland, Ore., firm with an operation in New London, was elected to the pulp and raw materials group board.

James W. McSwiney, president of The Mead Corp., Dayton, Ohio-based parent of Gilbert Paper Co., Menasha, was re-elected to the paper group and also as a member of the executive committee.

Water Utility To Reconnect Area to City

Appleton residences on Garden Court and W. Calumet Street are expected before the end of the year to be reconnected to the city water system, after several months as customers of the Town of Menasha Sanitary District

The Appleton Water Commission agreed Monday that it will assess the owner of a garage built in undeveloped right-of-way of Calumet Street for the cost of tunneling beneath the garage to extend the city water main.

A utility official said Louis Chudy, 2 Garden Court, owner of the garage, has agreed to pay the assessment.

Special Permission

The City Council last year granted Chudy special permission to build the garage in the street right-of-way, with the stipulation that he move it when the street is completed.

The .Calumet-Garden Court area has been connected to the town water system the past several months, following termination of an agreement between the city and town under which Appleton provided water to both city and town property in the area.

The water commission estimates that it will cost about $12,000 to extend a new city main to the area. The work is to be done by a contractor who also has been performing other work for the commission during this year's annual repair and upgrading program on the water distribution system.

The Mayor's Vetoes

The six vetoes issued by Mayor Buckley as promised earlier this week do not require editorial comment beyond the observation that we are becoming bored with the mayor's personal vendetta against Welfare Director Ehricke and his palsy-walsy concern over how hard his finance director is working.

But the seventh one he added to the list does concern us seriously. That was his rejection of council authorization for the public works director to extend the collection of cans and bottles for recycling to other collection points like hospitals and taverns.

The collection program is one of the few progressive acts of city government which we can recall at the moment during Mayor Buckley's current term of office. It is off to a fine start and the only handicap at the moment was the limited number of collection points originally authorized by the council.

We hope the council will override this veto along with the others.

The Danger of Botulism in Food

The tragic case of botulism in a can of vichyssoise soup made by the Bon Vivant Company has resulted in bankruptcy for that company which supplied at least a dozen other firms, many of them prestige ones, with various canned products. Now the Federal Food and Drug Administration has released more information of errors that serve to mediate sympathy for the company.

According to the FDA, there were numerous violations found last July 1 at the Newark plant, including the undercooking of foods supposedly sterilized to kill bacteria, "totally useless" cooking records, blunders in recalling products from the shelves, and faulty canning processes that the FDA reported resulted in defective cans of 60 per cent of some spaghetti sauce examined.

Meanwhile a chicken vegetable soup canned by another company in the south has been ordered removed from the shelves in the southern states where it had been distributed.

Something the FDA did not comment upon, however, is the real lack of information given to the general public about the products made by Bon Vivant for companies which don't mention the name of the parent corporation. A few of the larger newspapers listed the companies and the particular products — and there were hundreds of them ranging from mushrooms in butter to a variety of shellfish in sauce — but for the majority of people in the country there was no way of knowing exactly what might be on home shelves that could be suspect. There were warnings issued of dangerous signs — cans that bulged on the ends, disagreeable odors, for instance. But these signs may be lacking and the botulism bacteria is so virulent the slightest taste could kill without proper and fairly quick medical treatment.

There are other worrisome aspects that accompanied the incidents. While extensive publicity and orders were given to outlets of the canned goods in the chicken and vegetable soup case, what of some shopkeepers who just don't bother to read the papers or take note of directives from the FDA? Obviously no reputable individual in the grocery business would be guilty of the latter but there well could be some careless ones around.

It is clear that this is one area where there must be continued and more effective government inspection of canning procedures at all plants. It begins to appear that partly due to careless home canning methods as well it is a great wonder that there are not more cases of botulism every year than there are.

Detention Camps Abolished

The House of Representatives moved intelligently to vote repeal of an emergency detention act passed by Congress in fear of communists in 1950. At that time Congress even overruled President Truman's veto of the bill, but times have changed.

The act authorized the setting up of detention camps, not only for those actually caught in an act of sabotage or espionage — and there are other laws to take care of such cases — but to incarcerate "each person as to whom there is reasonable ground to believe . . . probably will engage in — or conspire to engage in . . . acts of espionage or sabotage" in time of war or "insurrection in aid of a foreign enemy." Actually six such camps were established but never had a tenant.

It is particularly encouraging that the Nixon Administration urged the repeal of the law and that the House passed the repeal overwhelmingly by a vote of 356 to 49. The Senate is likely to do the same. The last few years have given us some examples of incidents that could be interpreted as "acts of espionage or sabotage . . . in aid of a foreign enemy" with the bombings, the hoisting of the North Vietnamese flag, the violent demonstrations against the war. Black militants have also been suspect, as the charges against some Chicago police officials suggest. While there has been little real fear by any responsible individual that Asian Communists were about to invade, concerns about deep-rooted conspiracies have existed. Attorney General John Mitchell's demands for wiretapping privileges without previous court approval if he and the President believe there to be a threat even domestically to the national security have not quelled doubts about the dangers of hysteria in high places.

The House-passed repeal went even further than requested by its usual advocates. It would require Congressional approval of the setting up of any such detention camps. In 1941 those for the Japanese Americans — the great majority of whom had shown no animosity toward what had become their homeland — was done by executive order by President Franklin D. Roosevelt and later was amazingly upheld by a peace-time United States Supreme Court.

We have laws to deal with bombers, spies and saboteurs. Provisions to keep in detention camps those who "might" become such is just about as un-American as anyone can get.

Registration Rules For Voting Badly Need Simplification

BY M. WILLIAM GERRARD

MADISON — Democracy is a form of government in which people participate in making the decisions which affect their lives; the outstanding feature of a democracy is citizen participation.

The Democratic Party of Wisconsin is an organization that was set up to help people participate in government. The party is an aid to participation because it attempts to develop interest and knowledge about candidates and issues and to support individuals and policies that are in the broad interests of all the people.

Gerrard

Mr. Gerrard is the chairman of the Democratic Party of Wisconsin. His is one of a series of guest columns by prominent personalities in Wisconsin public affairs which will substitute for the usual commentary of vacationing John Wyngaard.

The Democratic Party of Wisconsin is accordingly concerned that in the last presidential election only 73 million of the 120 million eligible voters chose to cast a ballot. Only about six of 10 registered voters participate in the average Wisconsin election.

Statistics show that the most important reason why citizens fail to vote is the confusing, complicated and unfair registration laws.

Seeks Registration Reform

Therefore, one of the major projects of the state Democratic party is its effort to reform the registration and election process and then to promote a comprehensive registration and election campaign. This mission becomes especially important when it is realized that our present laws seem to discriminate against certain groups in society.

It is clear that individuals in high income brackets and with an above average education are registered in larger numbers than those who are disadvantaged. There is also evidence that present laws impose a special hardship on those who are immobile, on those who are ill and confined to long-term care facilities and on those who are university students.

It is only if all groups in our society — poor as well as rich, black as well as white, young as well as old — can be dual participants in the process of government that we can have confidence that government does in fact represent the will of all of the people.

This country can still be the society which offers each citizen a chance to be heard. The possibility for real participation and representation can be realized in this state, indeed in this country, by reforming the registration and election machinery.

Universal registration and uniform election laws are two possible proposals which can help us achieve significant progress toward the realization of a truly participatory democracy.

Must Be Accessible

In large part, the answer to the fundamental question of whether this country will remain a land of opportunity for all groups will depend on whether the machinery of government is accessible to all citizens.

Without registration there can be no vote; without the vote the most widely practiced method of participation is nullified; and without that participation, men do not help make the decisions which affect their lives.

Magazines Dying Because They Don't Charge Enough

BY WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

I too regret the death of Look Magazine. But scanning the obituaries in search of an answer to the question: why should a magazine that six and one half million Americans desire to read every fortnight go out of business? One finds only the standard lucubrations. Rising costs, diminished revenues. The latter are accepted as seasonal afflictions. The former were judged to be decisive by the directors of the corporation.

The new bogey is the Post Office. Mr. Gardner Cowles put it graphically. The rise in the postal rate, as projected by the postal corporation, would have brought the costs of mailing Look from four million dollars a year before the rate increase set in, to ten million dollars by the time the scheduled rate is fully levied. That is a lot of increase, six million dollars. That's practically one dollar per Look reader. FLASH! Why didn't Look try charging its readers a dollar more apiece?

Refuse To Raise Rates

The grave crisis in the magazine publishing business is, in the humble judgment of one practitioner, an aspect of the general refusal to raise the rates substantially. Take Look. It charged $3 a year to a subscriber, five dollars for two years. In the latter case, that meant 52 issues for $5, or about ten cents per copy. For ten cents you get delivered to your home a great fat package full of colored pictures and enough text to keep you busy, if you should read it all, for three to four hours. Permit me to say, ten cents is too little to pay for that much attention.

Time magazine has gravely raised its subscription rates — so that if you look at the posted rate, it is up to $15 per year. But open a typical copy of Time (this week's, say), and out falls a card: thirty-three issues for $4.93, which it publishes for fifteen cents per copy. On the newsstand, it's fifty cents per copy.

Fifteen cents per copy is too little to pay for what Time provides — too little, I mean, in a society that charges thirty-five cents for a hamburger, and three bucks for a movie. Life magazine, which recently editorialized to the effect that the post office is about to bankrupt the magazine publishing industry, charges, in its promotion package, twelve cents for an issue of Life. That is not enough for an issue of Life.

I have reminded my despairing brothers in the magazine publishing business that the New Republic charged $6 per year in 1933, and thirty years later, costs having risen over three hundred per cent, was charging $8 per year. Why? Because the little opinion journals are locked into a price structure which the giants impose. The giants are subsidized by the big advertisers. The big advertisers are manifestly unwilling to continue their subsidies in such large measure. Thus

Buckley

Colliers went down almost fifteen years ago, with over three million readers.

Then Look Dies

Then, in 1969, the great Saturday Evening Post, with over five million readers. Down and Down we go — but still the major publishers, when they manage to choke their sobbing, do so in order to authorize a new promotional mailing: Look magazine, for as many weeks as you want, at the sensational price of eleven cents per copy! And then one day Look magazine dies.

One thing I do not understand. And that is: why don't people give their readers a vote? Why not say: subscriptions beginning in January will be at twenty-five cents per copy, no bargains, no cut rates. If enough readers are willing to pay the price, continue to operate. Otherwise fold.

The rumors are everywhere and have been for over a year that Life is going down. I hope it doesn't, and hope that before it does, it will raise the rate, and put the burden where it should primarily rest, on the man or woman who wants to take a couple of hours a week away from television in order to savor the special pleasures of pictorial journalism.

There are few — a very few — who begin to discern the nature of the gorwing problem of network television. There the cost is handled exclusively by the advertiser — 100 per cent of it. Inevitably the consumer begins to twitch. And if a program gets down to a mere 10,000,000 viewers or so, it is axed; not enough audience. No wonder the consumer is progressively ignored.

Tremors of Attica Felt Right Here in Appleton

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

I think the occurrence at Attica has sent a tremor of concern through all of us. With concern we try to find someone to blame. Likely candidates are guards who use brutality, prisoners who have no respect for anything decent, and a penal system that seems to increase criminal inclinations among its inmates.

We in Appleton have some experience for us to see the real culprit. Recall how long it took to decide on the building of a new county jail? Recall how much energy and concern we each had to do something about a deplorable jail condition? Also recall when citizens really care about something, elected and appointed officials usually respond (with some nudging, of course)? I think we have found the culprit behind the Atticas in our midst. It is us and our priority on personal contentment and comfort while the institutions of our society are collapsing before our eyes.

Strictly Personal

Thoughts at Large Offered by Harris

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The tragic irony of our century was our belief that we could eliminate "fanaticism" by disavowing religion, and produce reasonableness by preaching the gospel of science — but succeeded only in reaching new heights of fanaticism through the political religions of fascism and communism.

The destruction of tyranny is less a guarantee of justice than an invitation for the opposite sort of tyranny to assert itself.

We are all willing to admit that there is some trace of madness in the most sane of men; what we are unwilling to admit is that there is always some reason in the maddest of men, screaming to be released from its prison of insanity.

The same person often demands constancy in love, but variety in sex; but not even the most agile of emotional contortionists can bring off this trick successfully.

The public's insatiable cry for new television shows was anticipated some 70 years ago by Thomas Bailey Aldrich, when he observed: "There is always a heavy demand for fresh mediocrity — in every generation, the least cultivated taste has the largest appetite."

The chief effect of argument is to strengthen one's own opinion, and sometimes, indeed, to drive us to more extreme positions than we would take without the spur of controversy.

Possibility of a U. S. detente with Russia and China must frighten the skin right off hundreds of politicians; if they lose an outside aggressor to "view with alarm," most of their campaign appeal will be gone.

(Incidentally, it is an interesting political observation that conservative administrations can take steps in foreign relations which, if undertaken by liberal administrations, would promptly be labeled as "soft on communism"; and it might be plausibly argued that while reforms and rapprochements are initiated by liberals, they are effectuated by conservatives.)

Whatever is given us costs more in the long run than what we pay for.

If you imagine that fun is fun and seriousness is seriousness, that only proves you don't really understand either.

The "liberty" that most men clamor for is merely the right to remain enslaved to the prejudices they have grown comfortable with; genuine liberty — to become who you are — is more feared than coveted.

Stray Law Explained in Detail

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for Sept. 23, 1871.

We frequently are asked for information regarding the estray law. Since this is the season of the year when many strays are taken up, we publish the following on the subject:

"Any person taking up a stray shall within 7 days notify the owner — if the owner be known — and if the owner be unknown and the stray be less in value than $5, he shall file notice within 10 days with the town clerk, and also post notices.

"If the stray is worth more than $5, he shall cause notice to be published in some newspaper in the county, four weeks successively. And such notices shall contain a brief description of the stray.

"Every stray of more than $10 shall be appraised within one month of being taken up. If the owner shall appear within one year, he may take the stray by paying all charges. If the owner shall not appear in one year, the person taking up the stray is entitled to the property, provided the value is not over $10. If the value is over $10, the stray shall be sold at auction and half the proceeds, after paying costs, shall belong to the finder, the other half shall be paid into the town treasury.

"If the finder shall neglect to advertise the stray, he shall be punished by losing all rights thereto, or receive any charges for its keeping.

25 YEARS AGO
Thursday, Sept. 19, 1946.

Cheerleaders that year at Washington High School, New London, were Richard Dorsey, Henry Lippold, Edward Macklin, Sally McPeak and Mary Larson. They were chosen from student tryouts held earlier.

Mary Alice Schuster was elected president of the senior class at Washington High, New London. Other officers were Sharon McDermott, vice president; Arden Ann Polzin, secretary; and Avis Popke, treasurer.

Officers of the Future Farmers at the same high school were Harold Tech, president; Thomas Flanagan, vice president; James Johnson, secretary; Ronald Backes, treasurer; and Earl Thoma, reporter.

10 YEARS AGO
Thursday, Sept. 21, 1961.

Officers of Appleton High School Student Council were Cary Anderson, president; Mike Woehler, vice president; Susan Spanagel, secretary; Charles Dostal Jr., treasurer; David Schilling and David Hem, sergeants-at-arms.

The Northeastern Wisconsin Veterinary Auxiliary elected Mrs. Elvin Prather, Manawa, its new president; Mrs. Keith Breyer, Hortonville, vice president; Mrs. William Madson, Appleton, secretary; and Mrs. Robert Birr, Pulaski, treasurer.

Two new directors were elected to fill vacancies on the board of the Appleton Taxpayers Association — Edward G. Merton and Richard V. Allen. Fred Bach, former ATA president, had left the city for a new position elsewhere and attorney David Bliss had accepted a federal appointment to a position in Washington, D.C.

Parachute Fails, Woman Is Killed

MARSHALL, Wis. (AP) — Mrs. Gary P. Venden, 25, Madison, member of a sky divers club, was killed Wednesday when her main chute failed to open over the airport near Marshall.

Jack Johnson, Madison area safety officer of the U.S. Parachute Association, said Mrs. Venden's main chute failed to open at about 3,000 feet and for an unknown reason her reserve chute did not open.

Mrs. Venden's body was found in a cornfield adjacent to the airport.

Her husband, who was waiting at the airport for his jump, said his wife had completed about 80 successful jumps during the last year.

Federal Aviation Administration and parachute association officials were investigating.

Carrier Will Sail Despite Protest

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A peace group says more than 82 per cent of the 54,721 ballots cast in a street corner straw vote here favored keeping the Navy aircraft carrier Constellation at home. But the Navy says the vessel and its 5,000-man crew will sail for Southeast Asia Nov. 1 anyway.

The vote, held over a five-day period throughout the county with no guarantee that a person did not vote more than once, showed 45,060 ballots opposing the Constellation's departure and 9,661 favoring it, organizers said Wednesday.

Hurricane Damages Costa Rican Bananas

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Hurricane Irene caused more than $1 million damage to Costa Rica's banana crop. The loss will seriously curtail exports to North American markets, a spokesman for the industry said Wednesday. The storm passed along the nation's northern Atlantic coast Sunday and Monday.

Guide Is Offered to Conservation Careers

BY SYLVIA PORTER

How many high school and college age youngsters do you know who are determined to build careers in ecology-conservation?

Almost surely you know some, quite likely including your own son or daughter. But, also almost surely, you have discovered that, although the kids have an over-all burning desire to be involved in the preservation of our planet, they have a minimum of specific knowledge about what types of jobs will be available, where the greatest employment opportunities will lie, how to get information on the details of each job category, where the new career frontiers will be.

Thus, to help the millions who are considering careers in this field, I've done some digging and now offer you this guide.

First, here are the estimated numbers who will be needed in key fields in 1980, as against those actually working today.

Porter

Field	Workers Now	Needed 1980
Ecology	4,300	12,000
Geology	22,800	33,400
Geophysics	6,800	10,400
Meteorology	4,000	12,000
Oceanography	5,800	40,000
Forestry	25,000	37,000
Forestry aids	13,000	23,800
Range management	6,000	8,000
Soil conservation	26,000	30,000
Wildlife conservation	26,000	30,000
Fisheries conservation	15,000	20,000
Recreation and parks	215,790	220,000
Architecture	34,000	61,600
Engineering (construction)	40,000	70,000
Landscape architecture	8,500	14,500
Urban planning	7,000	16,600
Environmental protection	217,500	565,000

In addition, more than 150,000 environmental health workers will be needed by 1980, about double the number of trained workers expected to be available. And tens of thousands will be required in fields ranging from microbiology to biomedical engineering, water quality management to computer science, marine biology to toxicology.

By 1980, about 1,200,000 workers will be needed in environmental careers, approximately twice the number for 1970.

But beyond even these traditional specialities, here are details on some newly developing fields, described in "Opportunity in Environment Careers," by Odom Fanning (Universal Publishing & Distributing Corp., $5.75) and "Career Opportunities: Ecology, Conservation and Environmental Control" (J. G. Ferguson Publishing Co., Chicago, $6.95).

Enviromental psychology: a sparsely populated field, concerned with what one observer calls "the crisis in human dignity" in the face of environmental degradation.

Environmental health engineering: planning and operating programs for the prevention and control of environmental health hazards — e.g., air and water pollution, rodent infestation.

Environmental design: planning and building or rebuilding and restoring structures, neighborhoods, towns and outdoor spaces — covering specialties from city planning to landscape architecture.

Environmental geology: investigation of immediate and long-term environmental needs: sedimentation in lakes, waste disposal.

Environmental education: teaching of a wide range of subjects on environment from kindergarten through graduate school.

Water hygiene: study of chemical as well as bacteriological contamination of water supplies aimed at protecting consumers.

Radiological health: control of dangerous levels of radiation — from such devices as microwave ovens and atomic power plants.

Community environmental management: exploring solutions to the effects of such poverty conditions as overcrowding, rats, noise and air pollution, etc., on the 15 per cent who live in their midst.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice of public hearing to whom it may concern, the Calumet County Zoning Board of Adjustments will consider the following petition on Friday, October 1, 1971 at 10:00 a.m. in the third floor assembly room, Courthouse, Chilton, Wisconsin.

Petition of Ambrose Van DeHey regarding a certified survey map located in the SW¼, NE¼, Section 7, T20N, R18E, Town of Harrison, County of Calumet, and more fully described as Lot 1 of Block 3, Stacker Plat. Petitioner requests reverse of denial on certified survey map. Map was denied because it exceeds the county definition of subdivision and lots were judged too small for septic tank-soil absorption sewage systems.

All persons desiring to appear and be heard for or against said petition may appear at said hearing and be heard thereon.

Respectfully submitted,

Justice Black Seriously Ill After Stroke

34-Year Veteran Of Supreme Court Retired Last Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hugo L. Black's condition weakened Thursday and he was placed on the "very serious" list at the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

An official statement said the prognosis for the 85-year-old former Supreme Court justice was poor.

Black entered Bethesda Aug. 28 with what his office described on Sept. 15 as "an inflammatory condition of the blood vessels." He retired from the court Sept. 17.

The new hospital statement said Black's condition worsened Sunday when he suffered a fairly severe stroke. "He has gotten progressively weaker until he was placed on the hospital very serious list at 10 a.m. today," the statement added.

A hospital spokesman said Wednesday that Black also suffered a stroke Monday.

Black's retirement came with another justice, John M. Harlan, 72, also in a Washington hospital with a back ailment.

President Nixon is expected to announce a nominee to the court to fill Black's spot before it convenes Oct. 4 but Nixon has declined to say who is being considered for the job.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said today he hopes a Southerner will be appointed and that this will not touch off a sectional battle.

Consult Scott

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., a Judiciary Committee member, suggested Nixon would be well advised to consult with GOP Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania before submitting a nomination.

"I believe he is a man uniquely qualified to offer very sound advice to the President in the selection of a new justice, and I trust he will have the opportunity to do so," Mathias said.

Both Eastland's and Mathias' statements reflected the battles that led to Senate rejection of two Southerners Nixon nominated for the Supreme Court, Judges Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., of South Carolina and G. Harrold Carswell of Florida.

Eastland said Haynsworth and Carswell "were victims of a prejudice against the South—a slap at a certain region of the country."

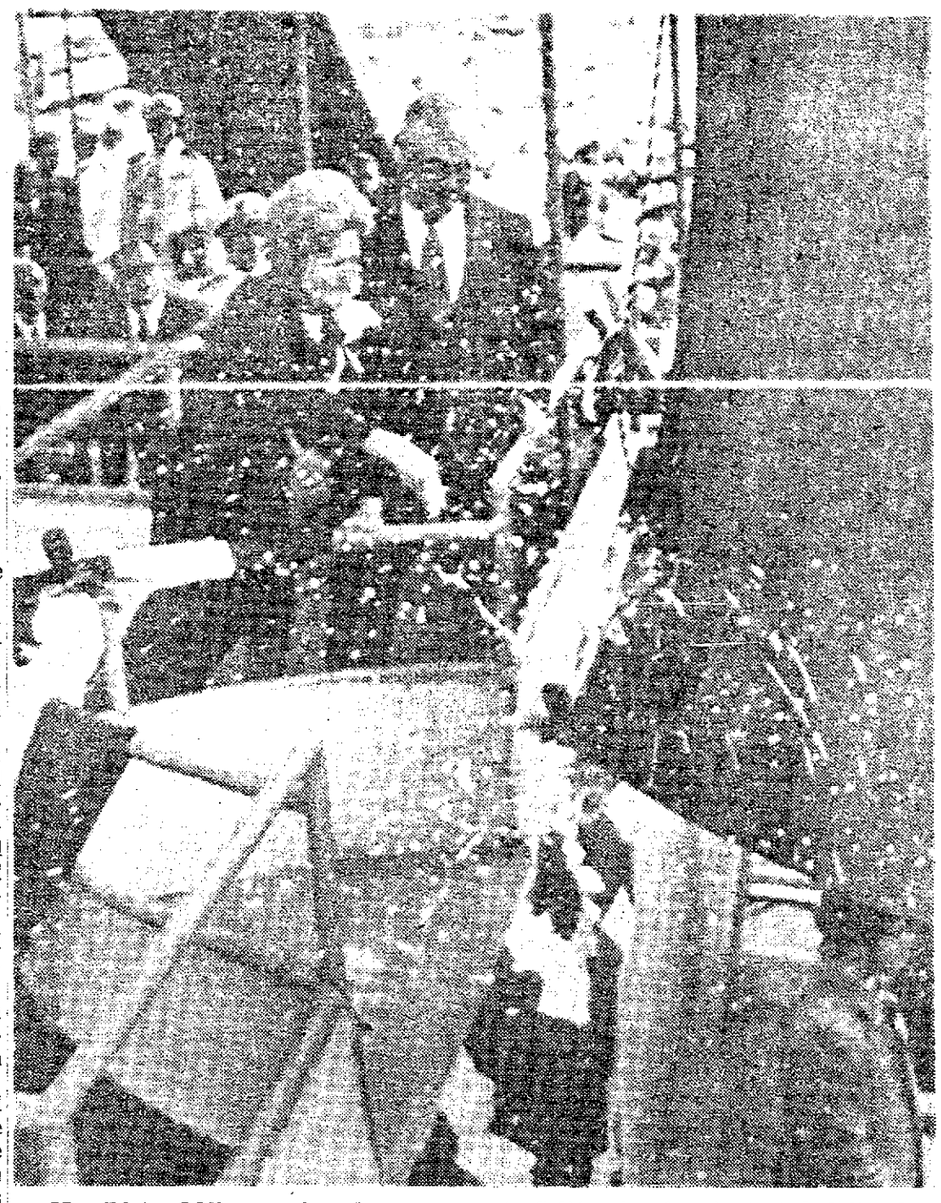
Sectional Differences

"I hope the Senate—and the nation—recognize that the time has come to lay aside sectional differences and let a man stand on his merits when he is nominated for the highest judicial post in the land," Eastland said.

After the defeat of Carswell's nomination in 1970, following the rejection of Haynsworth the previous year, Nixon accused the Senate of prejudice against Supreme Court nominees from the South.

He then nominated Judge Harry A. Blackmun of Minnesota, who was confirmed by a 94-0 vote. However, Eastland said Nixon had promised his next appointee would be from the South.

"The South is entitled to one—if not two—members of the Supreme Court," Eastland said. If a Southerner is not chosen to succeed Black, he said, "a vast segment of the nation's population will have no voice whatsoever on the court."



Mrs. Richard Nixon makes champagne fly as she is forced to hit a moving target. The First Lady was commissioning the nuclear-powered guided-missile frigate California when it started sliding before the traditional bottle-smashing. Launching was Wednesday in a heavy downpour at Newport News, Va.

Tax Plan Wins Crucial Victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tax portion of President Nixon's new economic program has won the crucial approval of the House Ways and Means Committee—but in sharply revised form that gives business less and individuals more short-range tax relief.

By rough preliminary estimates, the Democratic-controlled committee's decisions would mean about $4.9 billion less ... in tax breaks over a three-year span for business and about $3.4 billion more for individuals than Nixon recommended. In the long run, the business relief could increase somewhat.

There is at least a little income tax relief for all individuals in the package approved by the committee Wednesday and scheduled to be voted on by the House about Oct. 6 It would begin showing up in the returns due next April.

Much more relief proportionately would go to low-income taxpayers, those at poverty levels or close to them.

Investment Credit

For business, the package includes an investment credit allowing 7 per cent of the cost of equipment to be charged off against taxes and special help for exporters. But the committee would take back part of the gains for business by brimming the special depreciation advantages the Treasury already had put in effect without new legislation.

The 7 per cent excise tax on automobiles and 10 per cent excise tax on light trucks also would be repealed under the bill.

Major provisions affecting individuals:

—The personal exemption for this year would be increased from $650 to $675. Instead of increasing to $700 next year, it would go to $750.

Tax Benefits

—Increased tax benefits for low income persons would begin this year and by 1972 would help some 25 million return-filers, relieving an estimated 1.9 million completely of income tax.

—Next year, a single individual would have to have $2,050 income before owing any tax, a couple $2,800, a family of four $4,300.

—The estimated poverty levels for these categories are $2,170, $2,810 and $4,290.

Most of the individual relief was added by the committee. Nixon had recommended only a speedup of the increase in the personal exemption, to $750 next year instead of a year later.

Preliminary estimates were that the committee changes, as compared with the original Nixon program, would add $925 million in tax relief for 1971 through the increase in personal exemption and $443 million through the minimum deduction change. Next year the additional minimum deduction was estimated to be worth $1 billion.

Industry Provisions

Major provisions affecting corporations:

—The investment credit would be restored in the 7 per cent form previously agreed on by the committee rather than a two-stage version Nixon asked.

However, the committee offset some of the gain to business, by deleting from the Treasury's new faster depreciation guidelines a provision for a special large first-year writeoff.

Nixon's proposal for tax aid to U.S. exports also was approved in sharply trimmed form.

The committee's repeal of the 10 per cent tax on trucks up to 7,500 pounds was described as a move in favor of farmers, small businessmen and individuals who use light trucks for personal transportation or to support camper bodies.

Although the Democratic-controlled committee carried out its announced intention of switching a substantial part of the Nixon-proposed tax relief from business to individuals, the result did not satisfy all its own members.

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, said the package is "harsh and cruel to the average taxpayer."

He calculated it would save only about $26 for a taxpayer with $9,000 income and three dependents.

U.S. Gains, Loses in Bid for Two Chinas

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States has met success and failure in the opening round of its campaign to prevent the expulsion of Nationalist China from the United Nations.

The victory came in getting its two-Chinas proposal recommended Wednesday for the General Assembly agenda, and rounding up a good number of cosponsors for its two resolutions, including Japan.

The first resolution, which calls for the seating of Peking and Taiwan in the General Assembly with Peking getting China's permanent Security Council seat, had 17 cosponsors. The other, which calls for a two-thirds vote instead of a simple majority to pass any resolution to oust Taiwan, had 19.

The defeat was in the Steering Committee session, which recommended that both the U.S. proposal and a rival Albanian-sponsored resolution to seat the Communists and oust the Nationalists be placed on the agenda, but as separate items. The Albanian resolution had 18 cosponsors.

The committee voted down a U.S. motion that they be combined for debate by a 12-9 tally with 3 abstentions. This meant the assembly was being advised to debate the Albanian resolution before the American one. However, U.N. precedent indicated both would be debated under the Albanian resolution's title.

The Albanian resolution was recommended for the agenda 17 to 2 with 4 abstentions.

The U.S. two-Chinas proposal was recommended 11 to 9 with 4 abstentions.

Taiwan's Foreign Ministry issued a statement after the vote criticizing the U.S. resolution and declaring the Nationalist government is "firmly opposed" to giving China's Security Council seat to Peking.

"Such a move to sacrifice a founding and faithful member is in flagrant violation of the charter of the United Nations," the statement said.

"The government of the Republic of China solemnly declares that it is firmly opposed to such an attempt."

My Lai Killings

Medina Found Innocent

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — Capt. Ernest L. Medina, acquitted of My Lai massacre charges, says he has no bitterness toward the Army but still plans to leave it.

The 35-year-old career officer who commanded a U.S. company which swept through My Lai on March 16, 1968, was acquitted Wednesday of murder, involuntary manslaughter and assault after a court-martial jury of five Vietnam veterans deliberated an hour.

All Charges

"It is my duty as president of this court to advise you that the court in closed session and upon secret ballot has found you not guilty of all specifications and charges," Proctor told Medina, who stood at attention.

The trim, black-haired Medina appeared stunned by the verdict. He saluted again and then looked toward his sobbing wife Barbara, who had sat on the front row each day since the trial began Aug. 15.

Extremely Happy

"I am extremely happy," Medina said later, his usually expressionless face broken by a wide grin. "I have always had complete faith in the military and the military justice system. I always felt I'd be found innocent."

Medina, who joined the National Guard when he was 15 and has been an officer for seven years, said he still plans to resign from the army.

Asked if he felt any bitterness toward the Army, he replied, "None whatsoever."

During the trial, Medina testified in his own behalf and maintained that he was not aware of atrocities at the time of the massacre.

"Reflecting back now, I know I lost control because there were noncombatants killed by my company," he testified. "If I had been aware of it that day, I would have stopped it."

The jury also said it was convinced Medina was not aware of civilian deaths.

Col. Robert E. Nelson, one of the jurors, said the verdict does not signify that the jury believes no war crimes were committed at My Lai.

"I am certain war crimes were committed," he said. "In the case of Capt. Medina, the jury was convinced he did not commit war crimes."

Nelson was asked if the jury gave special consideration to the nature of the war in Vietnam.

"I don't see how we can distinguish war in Vietnam from

Fire in Washington

5 Children Die

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five of the six children in one family died Wednesday night in a fire that gutted a two-story row house, police and fire officials report.

Grace Dabney, 26, the mother of the victims, and a son, Keith, 9, were the only family members to escape.

The victims were identified by their mother as Terry, 10; Fonda, 8; Darryl, 7; Michael 5, and Charlene Dabney, 2.

Keith survived when he obeyed his mother's instructions to jump from the second floor, she told a reporter at Freedmen's Hospital where she was being treated for shock.

The bodies of the victims were discovered on the second floor. Three were in a bathroom and two in a front bedroom.

"I kept telling them to jump," Mrs. Dabney said, "but they wouldn't jump."

A fire Department spokesman said that, pending further investigation, the fire is believed to have been started by a short circuit.

Mrs. Dabney said she was going outside the house from the basement when the flames shot upward.

"My children called to me," she said. "The house was ablaze. I told them to jump."

Thieu Hired Rioters, McGovern Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George S. McGovern charged today that the rioters who hurled firebombs and stones at him in Saigon last week included South Vietnamese civil defense forces hired by President Nguyen Van Thieu.

McGovern, South Dakota Democrat and bitter critic of the Vietnam war, made the charge at a news conference at which he reported on his 11-day trip to Paris, Saigon and Tokyo.

Asked for evidence, he said members of the antigovernment group with which he was meeting identified some members of the crowd. He noted, too, that Saigon's police chief said the next day the civil defense force members "were serving patriotically in breaking up a meeting with Viet Cong cadres," something McGovern said was completely untrue.

Withdrawn From Race

He also reported that Gen. Duong Van Minh, one of the candidates who withdrew from the South Vietnamese presidential race charging Thieu had rigged it, told him "there was not the slightest doubt" the rioters were paid by the government in an effort to embarrass McGovern.

In Saigon, there was no comment immediately by Thieu's government. However, the day after the incident, Saigon's mayor said the demonstrators were mostly members of the People's Self Defense Force, a government - organized neighborhood militia. Saigon's police chief claimed that Viet Cong agents were at the meeting McGovern attended.

McGovern, the only announced Democratic presidential candidate, said Thieu told him he would resign if Congress cuts U.S. economic or military aid because he knows he is "totally dependent" on American support.

McGovern also denied that in saying he would soft pedal the Vietnam issue that he had dropped it in favor of domestic economic issues. He contended "those issues are inseparable."

Army Afflicted

He said further that the U.S. Army in Vietnam is afflicted by "a mounting tide of boredom, disgust, antiwar sentiment, racism and drug addiction."

"As I walked etc., A055 at the 4th graf.

"As I walked among our troops, I saw more peace signs flashed than I experienced five days later on my trip to Hawaii, or for that matter at Berkeley or the University of Wisconsin.

"Indeed," McGovern said, "we could not find one single GI in all of South Vietnam who did not regard our presence there as anything other than disastrous."

He pledged that if elected president he would withdraw U.S. troops "with the same urgency that one would bring—and for the same reasons—to rescuing men trapped in a burning building."

Post Office Clamps Down on Dog Bites

By HENRY GOTTLIEB
Associated Press Writer

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The U.S. Post Office is putting the bite on dog owners whose pets chew on letter carriers.

Since July 1, the Post Office has been authorized by law to bill dog owners the cost of treating postal employes bitten while on their rounds.

The Newark Post Office has five such cases pending, including one for $2,100 against a family whose dog tore a mailman's leg and put him out of work for six weeks.

"I don't know what it is," said Newark Postmaster Joseph Bennuci. "A dog sees a mailman and goes wild."

Every year in the United States, 20,000 mailmen are bitten by dogs the Post Office says. The problem is worst in suburban areas.

Guard Dogs

Postal officials blame the increasing use of guard dogs for some of the troubles. Unfortunately, they say, the guard dogs are doing their thing to mailmen as well as to burglars.

Most mailmen nowadays are equipped with dog repellant that causes at least five seconds of eye irritation.

Local post offices are also authorized to stop delivery to families whose pets have attacked mailmen. The household is notified that unless the dog is leashed at mail delivery time, service to the home will stop.

"The trouble with that," said Jersey City Postal Supervisor Harry Brophy, "is that sometimes you even get bitten when you deliver the notice that services is stopping."

Bennuci adds: "It's not only the pain of being bitten that hurts.

Lost Pay

"It's a question of negligence. There's not only the cost of medical treatment, tetanus shots and sometimes sufures, but the loss in salary for the employe who gets bitten."

When a dog bites a letter carrier, the owner is billed for the damages. The owner is given 15 days to pay or notify his insurance company.

If no action is taken, the postal department's legal counsel files suit.

"It's a funny thing," Bennuci said. "I've got a dog at home, too, and every time he sees the mailman, look out."

Express Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General Winton M. Blount has opened overnight Express Mail Service between 33 large cities to general public use and put a money-back guarantee on delivery.

Downtown post offices in the 33 cities have been designated as deposit and pickup points for the service, which went into effect Wednesday at the rate of $1.50 per letter or package weighing up to eight ounces. For heavier parcels, the postal increases.

Blount promised that mail deposited in one of the cities may be picked up at the designated downtown post office in the destination city by 10 a.m. the following morning, or the sender may claim a refund.

The package or letter must be left at the Post Office by 5 p.m. the day before.

The special service, previously available only to business firms on a contractual basis, has made 97 per cent of its deliveries on time, Blount said.

The 33 cities covered are Atlanta, Baltimore, Birmingham, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dallas, Denver, Detroit, Hartford, Houston, Indianapolis, Jacksonville, Kansas City (Mo.), Los Angeles, Louisville, Memphis, Miami, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Newark, New Orleans, New York, Oklahoma City, Omaha, Philadelphia, Phoenix, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, San Antonio, San Francisco, and Washington, D.C.

The Postal Service said expansion to additional cities is expected.

Idea of Year-Round School Is Resurrected

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

With a willingness — and apparently a determination — to make major changes in the Appleton public school system, key school leaders have agreed to look first at the possibility of the year-round school.

Specifically, they will seek a study of the program, called "45-15," a concept of the year-round use of buildings whereby children attend school 45 days (or nine weeks) and then are off 15 days (or three weeks).

The result is that children attend school 180 days, as they do now, but buildings are in constant use, supposedly increasing operating efficiency.

A special committee — a cross-section of school, business and community persons — will be set up next week to make the study, the board of education's education planning committee agreed Tuesday afternoon.

Also, at least some of the new committee's members will be asked to join certain board members, administrators, and possibly students and teachers Nov. 10 in a one-day visit to the Valley View School District at Lockport, Ill., where 45-15 is in its second year.

Some Differences

A brochure described its first year as "exceptionally smooth."

There wasn't disagreement Tuesday about making possible changes, such as to 45-15, in the education planning committee discussion, but there was indication of a split on what the important factors would be in a change.

Kenneth Sager, board president, said that changes should be made with educational improvement the No. 1 consideration and economics, secondary.

Dist. Admin. Orlyn Zieman and James Westphal, director of academic services, said that view may not be practical. They said that most Fiscal Board members wouldn't agree with Sager.

Zieman also noted that while the administration has a responsibility to provide some leadership, it also must administer the policies of the board. He noted the board probably would reject new programs with high educational value, if the cost was very high.

The board has been hesitant about taking on additional expenditures since the years of the big cuts started in the late 1960s. The largest chunk sliced by the Fiscal Board, the school district's financial arm, was $600,000 from the current budget.

Some school officials look upon that as an indication of community dissatisfaction with the schools. They also consider the Ferber school referendum defeat as another similar sign.

Zieman, while not convinced about the need for major change, acknowledged that many schools throughout the nation apparently are seriously considering major shifts from conventional educational methods. He said that many are studying 45-15 at the moment, adding that it can't do any harm for Appleton to make a similar study.

New Ideas

Understanding the board's inclinations, Westphal's department is developing a number of ideas involving major changes for the system. New ideas is a primary function of academic services.

The trimester was the second-most-talked-about concept Tuesday in the education planning committee meeting. Sager noted that the concept as a possible change shouldn't be forgotten.

Westphal said that the idea was presented only in theory last spring, but was faced with a wall of opposition before there was even a chance to study it.

One of the primary concerns about trimester was that it might reduce classroom time in subject areas. The 45-15 plan doesn't necessarily do this.

Valley View incorporated the program because of an overwhelming growth in student population as an alternative to additional school construction.

The school district relied on extensive public relations and careful scheduling to put the program into effect.

The Valley View brochure explained that youngsters still are off for legal holidays, including a week for Christmas and seven to 11 days for Easter. The only thing gone is the 2½ to three-month summer vacation.

Mrs. Harold Danford, also a board member, said that 45-15 might allow the district to phase out use of certain old school buildings, if enrollments continue to remain relatively stable.

Sager warned the group not to "get boxed in" by thinking only of 45-15 in the realm of change possibilities.

The committee spent much time lamenting how members thought the community felt or didn't feel about public education.

However, William Parker, a businessman, also said he had heard people complain that public education wasn't willing to tighten its belt financially while business was willing to. He noted industrial pay cuts and layoffs.

Not Obvious

Zieman said that cutbacks had been made but they haven't been the obvious type, such as a layoff. He added, however, that incumbent upon the schools to "move somewhere, whether there's a firm conviction or not."

Mrs. Danford reminded that the community is the reason for and the provider of funds for education.

Zieman and Westphal expressed some doubt about whether the true feeling of the community had ever been reached. "We don't know if we have a pulse on the community," Zieman said.

Saving Kevin's life didn't mean losing the family's new home.
On the very day Kevin's parents' put money down on the first home of their own, trouble struck hard. The baby was choking with croup, fighting for every breath of life.
A race to Children's Hospital. A tracheotomy and then came 24 days of Intensive Care, including scores of X-ray and lab tests, two surgical procedures, constant medical and nursing care, continuous oxygen. Specialized skills, scrupulous care restored Kevin to his family, about a month after the emergency run to the hospital.
Hospital and doctor bills came to over $5,000. An amount that would have wiped out any chance of a new home. But the family moved in without a hitch because Kevin's dad worked for a company that protects their people with Blue Cross and Surgical Care Blue Shield coverage. It makes a critical difference, with "Service Benefits" that expand automatically to cover the cost of needed care. Kevin's bills were covered completely.
Significantly, a recent survey of 196 cases with charges above $5,000 shows Blue Cross paid $7,362 of the $7,722 average charge per total hospital stay. Today's care. Today's costs. That's what our job is all about.
